2 Things New: Yes, I. An Onion Worker's Family. Can't Shoot Santa Claus. Bless the Ozone Belt.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

DAILY, EVERY NEWSPAPER should answer the question: "What's new?"

At Tampa, Fla., Ramon Perez, cigar maker, out of work, decided to die, took off his clothes, jumped naked into a colony of hornets, the sort that boys call yellow jackets. It was too late when his mother and the fire department arrived. He died, "every part of his body swelled to more than twice its normal size." That is new.

If in boyhood you have poked a hornets' nest with a long pole, or later ridden through a field of hornets' nests in California (this writer has done both), you can think of pleasanter ways of suicide.

THEODORE DREISER, able writer, celebrating his sixty-third birthday yesterday said life is still interesting, but when it bores him he will leave. Asked "Do you mean suicide?" he replied:

"Of course. Why not? If I ever find life uninteresting, why stick around?"

That is new, for this age. In past ages suicide was generally approved, and very respectable. One very old Greek philosopher, who stumbled leaving his classroom, killed himself, disgusted. "Falling on your sword" once was all the fashion. It has died out. Now, with Daniel Webster, men say "suicide is confession," confession of guilt, cowardice, or something else unpleasant.

Mr. Dreiser will never commit suicide, for he will always find something interesting to do, and do it well. May he live 63 more years.

A NEW YORK FIRM making pocketbooks felt it couldn't afford NRA wages and working conditions in New York, moved its plant to Greenfield, Mass., where NRA conditions are less expensive.

The Regional Labor Board tells the firm:

"Runaway employers must be prevented from escaping their obligations to national recovery by removing to a community where they can pay a lower wage."

That also is new in American industry.

Such a rule could have forbidden Pullman to build his town, the steel company to build Gary, Ind., or Ford to create Dearborn.

YOU READ ABOUT the "onion workers'" strike in Ohio: strikers alleged to have bombed the home of the Mayor, citizens rising against strikers, beating their leader, ordering him to leave town.

All this for the majority is far away news, but when you see a photograph of a striker and his family, sitting outside one of the miserable hovels from which strikers are evicted, the thing becomes real.

The man, young, looks old, his young wife looks older than he. Their eight children, five so small that they are held in the laps of the father and mother, or older brothers and sisters, are thin, rickety, bare-footed, miserably dressed, underfed.

YOU HATE TO think of anything like "an attack on vested interests," but if there are many families of that sort, living in hovels with leaky roofs, with not enough to eat, no decent clothes to wear, the father and older children working for eight or ten cents an hour, to support a family of ten, you hope the strikers will win and that the "New Deal," if necessary, will help them.

THE "AMERICAN LIBERTY LEAGUE," organized to protect the beautiful old American dollar and "vested interests" from the "New Deal" expects former Gov. Al. Smith to help.

Mr. John W. Davis, who also ran for President on the Democratic ticket, is said to be with the league "heart and soul."

Former Governor Smith's friends think he may be "too busy."

"You can't shoot Santa Claus, you know, especially around Christmas."

This administration is, for tens of millions of Americans and hundreds of American cities, the greatest "Santa Claus" in all history.

IN CHICAGO, thanks to President Roosevelt, 14,000 public school teachers, and 4,000 civil service employes are paid twenty-six million dollars, unpaid arrears in salary, an aver-

4 STEAL AUTO, FLEE ROCKVIEW

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Aug. 28.—(INS.)—Four convicts of Rockview state penitentiary stole a prison guard's automobile from the garage and escaped today.

They are Ralph Manning, Allegheny County; Charles B. Litzinger, Westmoreland; William Pouch, Cambria, and Davis Prosser, Mercer.

Prison officials said they did not believe the men were armed. State police were notified to watch all highways leading into Johnstown, particularly.

The men went to the prison garage this morning on the pretext of painting the initials of a guard, H. P. Kelly, on the door of his auto.

Cutting the wires of the stockade at the prison, the four convicts piled into the machine and sped down the road to freedom. The automobile was a four-door Plymouth sedan, 1934 model, bearing Pennsylvania license plates 6A-801.

Manning was sentenced from 5 to 10 years for a North Side robbery in 1924. In February, 1929, he was released on parole, according to prison officials. He was returned to prison for five additional years in May, 1932, for violation of his parole.

Mrs. Manville Gets Plane to Stockholm

LONDON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. H. Edward Manville, of New York, the mother of Countess Bernadotte of Sweden, today chartered a special airplane by radio to speed her trip to Stockholm. She is to arrive at Cobh tomorrow aboard the S. S. President Roosevelt.

The rush trip is because of the death August 20 of her youngest grandson, Oscar Fredrik Bernadotte, the 7-month-old son of her daughter, the former Miss Estelle Manville, and Count Folke Bernadotte.

Sleeping Girl Seized As Dillinger 'Moll'

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Miss Jean Burke, 28, suspected by police of being the girl of that name who associated with the John Dillinger gang, was arrested today, asleep in an automobile parked on the Northwest Side. Beside her was a blond wig. Miss Burke has black hair. She declined to discuss her affairs with authorities.

Convict Strike Spreads in Eastern Pen

PRISONERS ON STRIKE IN PEN

2,700 Stage Revolt At 2 Institutions; Violence Looms

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A strike of prisoners at the Eastern state penitentiary here in sympathy with the inmates of the Graterford branch, spread today to the entire population of the old prison, which confines 1,273.

The rebellion stopped all work except in the kitchen. At the Graterford prison farm, scene of Saturday's riot, about 1,400 prisoners refused to work and to eat.

Three hundred prisoners in the weaving, tailor, shoe and print shops were the first to strike at Cherry Hill, the main unit of the penitentiary. They were joined a short time later by 300 more, known as yard and maintenance men.

OTHERS JOIN STRIKE

Then the remainder of the prisoners, who were exercising in the yard, learned of the strike and walked back to their cells where, with the others, they were locked in.

Warden Herbert (Hard Boiled) Smith disclosed the strike at Cherry Hill and said:

"There has been no disorder."

Smith said the movement started at Graterford was "for a law reducing sentences."

The prisoners are serving under the Ludlow law which provides for minimum and maximum sentences, the minimum to be one-half the maximum, with no time deducted for good behavior. Smith added:

"The prisoners will be locked up as a precautionary measure. The prisoners at this time are

But Darrow Refuses to Aid McNair

The Mayor announced this morning he had retained Darrow as defense attorney against charges brought by former City Assessor James P. Bailey.

Darrow, however, recalls only that he discussed the case indefinitely with McNair at a social gathering in Chicago Sunday, but had no serious intentions, according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The noted Chicago criminal lawyer said he is interested only in cases involving social injustice or defense of paupers, and pointed out the Mayor's case doesn't fit.

McNair, who was in Chicago Sunday speaking on the "Land Laws of Moses" before church groups, told reporters today:

"I went to Darrow with a group of single taxers in Chicago and asked him to take my case. He said he would be glad to defend me."

The Mayor and his secretary, Theodore L. Moritz, were openly accused by Bailey of attempting to influence him to change his testimony in the Senator Coyne vote fraud case. The accusation has received no official attention as yet.

'Magdalen' Ends Role for Marriage

OBERAMMERGAU, Germany, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Klara Mayr, Magdalen of the Passion Play, acted that role for the last time today. Tomorrow she marries Anton Lang, son of the former famous impersonator of Christ and new speaker of the prologue.

The bridegroom teaches German at Washington University, and the newlyweds plan to sail for there next week.

UNION SHIES AT OFFER BY ALUMINUM

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The Aluminum Company of America today laid before representatives of its union employes a proposed written agreement addressed to all the company's employes, but indications were that it would be rejected.

Boris Shishkin, American Federation of Labor executive, who has been spokesman for the union during the strike, called the proposal a "statement of policy rather than an agreement." He added:

"It is an agreement with themselves."

The company handed the union an agreement which company spokesmen said would cover all employes, whether or not they were members of the union, at today's joint conference in the Labor Department.

After presenting the proposal, the company representatives withdrew. They were to meet the union again later today to get an answer.

The union has demanded a written labor contract. The company insists that the union wants a "closed shop," although union officials deny that.

Company officials said the agreement proposed today would protect employes who did not want to join the union from being blanketed into it, and at the same time assured the union its members would be represented in collective bargaining.

The proposal was submitted at a conference in the Labor Department, with Fred Keighth, a conciliator, representing the department.

RINGLEADER CAUGHT, SAY POLICE

Purchase of New Cars Brings Arrest of Suspects

A 32-year-old Cleveland gang leader, whose career of crime began seven years ago, according to police, was nabed today in Cleveland as the "brains" of the daring $50,000 mail truck holdup in Butler last Friday.

Traced through a "hot tip" to state police and postal inspectors, the man and two of his henchmen were picked up after police were told all three had bought new automobiles since the robbery occurred.

According to dispatches from Cleveland, two of the men were later released when they could not be connected with the robbery.

Capt. Jasper Oftedahl, commanding the Butler barracks of the state police, denied this and said that all three were still being held this afternoon.

ONE MAN CLEARED

He said that Addison Mease, 24, also arrested in Cleveland, was not implicated in the crime. Mease is held in connection with the holdup at a bank in Three Springs, Huntingdon County, last Saturday.

The trio, according to International News Service, steadfastly denied any part in the holdup.

Their photographs will be taken and brought to Butler for identification first, before witnesses are taken to Cleveland, Captain Oftedahl said.

Suspicion which had centered on the men was heightened when each of them bought a new car since Maxwell Lackey was held up last Friday by three men disguised by dark glasses and armed with pistols, who grabbed three mail sacks containing payrolls of $50,000.

HELD IN CLEVELAND

Corporal Marcus White of the Butler state police, and two postal inspectors left Butler last night for a mysterious trip to Ohio.

Their destination was unknown, until today when the arrests were announced in Cleveland.

Postal inspectors have been searching for an inside "leak" through which the men might have obtained their information concerning the movement of the payrolls, being sent by registered mail.

The three men had left Cleveland a week ago, an informer is reported to have told Captain A. C. Mauk, of the Greensburg state police. Their movements had been watched and when each purchased a new car, the investigation of the men was tightened, it was reported.

Shirt of Convict Clue to Holdup

HARRISBURG, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Search for two shabbily dressed men who robbed the First National Bank at Three Springs, Huntingdon County, centered around Harrisburg today after a prisoner's shirt was found just outside the capital.

The robbers, who locked the cashier and teller in a vault and sped away with $4,168 yesterday, are believed to have been prisoners who escaped recently from the Huntingdon County Jail.

TIRED OF PRISON AS HE ENTERS

At 12:40 p. m. today the gates of Western Penitentiary swung open and then closed behind George H. Bartholomew.

Behind those gates he will remain for a period of from three to six years to pay the penalty for killing George Thomas Manis, female impersonator.

The husky physical director of Washington and Jefferson College is now only a number on the prison records—No. 4279.

Bartholomew made the trip from the Washington County Jail at Washington, Pa., to the penitentiary in an automobile, guarded by Sheriff Fred W. Brady and Deputy James Kane.

As the prison gates yawned, he said morosely:

INDEPENDENTS BOLT STEEDLE

Independent Republicans today followed the lead of the Regular Republican organization and repudiated the candidacy of Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, State Representative from the Twelfth District.

Joseph H. Bialas, acting chairman of the Independent Republican Committee, announced the committee's decision.

He indicated that Steedle's presence on the Republican ticket might jeopardize the chances of Senator David A. Reed and William A. Schnader, Republican standard bearers, at the November election.

REPUDIATED BY G. O. P.

Steedle, who is under conviction in the federal courts on ballot fraud charges, was repudiated as a candidate yesterday by the Regular Republican organization, headed by County Chairman William H. Coleman.

Steedle, considering Bialas' blast, said:

"My position is exactly the same as it was yesterday, has always been, and will be. I will be a candidate for the Legislature on the ballot in November."

Bialas, in his statement, said:

"As acting chairman of the Independent Republican Committee, I desire to announce that this committee cannot and will not support Dr. Joseph G. Steedle in his candidacy for the State Legislature in the Twelfth Legislative District.

"If Dr. Steedle is taking the position that this election might

Bonniwell, 61, Weds Woman Athlete, 31

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Miss Roberta C. Ranck, 31, prominent Philadelphia athlete, and Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, 61, of the Municipal Court of Philadelphia, were married today by the Rev. William J. Bonniwell, O. P., brother of the judge.

Judge Bonniwell's first wife died in 1929. He has seven children. He was twice the Democratic candidate for governor of Pennsylvania and ran for other state offices.

Pinchot 'Mystery Plan' Seeks U. S. Relief Cash

Plan to Put Burden On Cities, Counties Seems Doomed

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Federal Relief Administrator Harry L. Hopkins and Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, today surveyed a plan under which continued federal relief for the needy would be provided.

It was understood, however, that the "mystery plan" was not based upon a system of passing the relief burden to the larger counties and municipalities until the next regular session of the Legislature. This plan, first proposed yesterday, evoked such protest that it is believed to have been dropped.

After a preliminary conference with Hopkins, Pinchot said:

"We are working on a plan."

Hopkins said negotiations were proceeding rapidly with the expectation that a decision on the Pennsylvania situation would be reached soon.

The Governor declined to say anything more than that a plan was being considered. Leaving Hopkins' office, Pinchot asserted:

"We are working on a plan I'm going to do some telephoning now and will see Mr. Hopkins in a few minutes."

Asked if he intended to call a special session of the legislature, the Governor smiled and lapsed into a nursery rhyme:

"Br'er rabbit ain't say nawthin'."

County Taxpayers Face Doubling of Levy

Taxpayers of Allegheny County, outside of Pittsburgh, face doubling of their county taxes if the Poor Board is to undertake the burden of furnishing relief to the county's destitute, it was learned today.

Maj. J. Clyde Miller, chairman of the Poor Board, revealed today that county poor taxes—now set at 2½ mills—would be virtually FORBES FIELD, Aug. 28.—The Pittsburgh Pirates were trailing the Boston Braves in the first game of their doubleheader here this afternoon.

Just before the first game got under way the Pittsburgh management made an important announcement relative to the two games with the St. Louis Cardinals on Labor Day. For the first time in the history of baseball in Pittsburgh the two games will be played in the afternoon.

In giving out the information, Vice President Watters said they had so many requests from the fans relative to a doubleheader that they decided to forego the

Hefty Baby Studied By Famed Doctors

BALTIMORE, Aug. 28.—(INS.)—Twenty months old James Edward Tockerman, was under the study of children's specialists at Johns Hopkins University Hospital today, in an effort to determine reasons for his 40 pounds and teeth usually found in children of four years.

His parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Tockerman, formerly of Raleigh, N. C., brought the child from Athens, Greece, where Tockerman represents an American tobacco manufacturer.

NEW CONFLICT IN VIENNA

VIENNA, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Police emergency forces rushed into the working class district of Floridsorf today to disarm Heimwehr (national guard) forces and a hand-to-hand battle followed before the police won.

The Heimwehr men were in barracks in the former Socialist center which was taken over by the armed militiamen after the Socialist rebellion in February.

Maj. Emil Fey, minister of defense, is its nominal command of the Heimwehr but it was not immediately ascertainable whether the police action was taken with the consent or knowledge of Maj. Fey.

The Heimwehr detachments in Floridsdorf were denounced by other military units as "untrustworthy and traitors."

The police not only disarmed the guardsmen but made many arrests. The action was a shock to Vienna, already distraught by the rebellion of last winter and the recent Nazi putsch which culminated in the assassination of Chancellor Dollfuss.

Roosevelt Gives Johnson $9,000 Boost in Pay

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The salary of Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator, has been boosted by President Roosevelt from $6,000 to $15,000 a year.

The increase began last July 1, but was not disclosed by NRA until today.

At NRA it was said the action was taken in order to give Johnson a salary more nearly in line with his worth and to enable him to meet heavy living expenses.

When Johnson became NRA head he set his own salary at $6,000. Since then, however, he has said he could not live on that amount.

The increase was directed by President Roosevelt.

That was considerably before the recent controversy developed between Johnson and Donald R. Richberg, general counsel of NRA, and Secretary of Labor Perkins over the future of the recovery administration.

It was during this controversy that Johnson walked out of a White House conference several days ago and sent a letter to President Roosevelt offering his resignation. Mr. Roosevelt prevailed upon him to remain.

Van Meter 'Put on Spot' By Gangster Pals

ST. PAUL, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A gang of 10 men headed by George (Baby Face) Nelson was planning two big bank holdups, simultaneously, in Minnesota's iron range when dissension developed within the ranks and Homer Van Meter was "put on the spot" by one of his own pals, it was learned today from a reliable source.

For the past six weeks, Van Meter, who was slain last Thursday night by St. Paul police, has been "looking over" banks in Northern Minnesota, including Duluth, Hibbing, Virginia and Eveleth. It was reported he was designated by the gang as the "advance man."

The gang, the same report said, planned to strike simultaneously on two banks—about 40 to 50 miles apart—with the idea of getting a large sum of money and then fleeing to their hideout, reported somewhere near the Canadian boundary.

"Baby Face" Nelson, now known as America's Public Enemy No. 1, had been reported seen in Northern Minnesota towns several times recently. The chief of police at Virginia today admitted that a citizen had reported to him that he identified a man giving a Virginia bank the "once over" as the notorious desperado.

$24,000,000 COUNTY JOB PROGRAM MENACED IN COUNCIL

ANTI-TOLL BLOC JOINED BY DEMMLER

Vote Needed to Upset M'Nair Veto Now 'Somewhere in West'

Possible blockade of the county's $24,000,000 federal public works program loomed today in City Council.

Councilman Walter R. Demmler, who previously voted for the ordinance which would allow tolls on the Liberty Tubes, has announced he has changed his position and will support Mayor McNair's veto.

Demmler's change of front places him with William J. Soott and P. J. McArdle in opposition to tolls and means that unless Councilman Charles Anderson returns from the West, Councilmen who favor the Allegheny County Authority program will be unable to muster the necessary six votes to override the Mayor's veto.

Anderson, who is touring, may be difficult to locate and is not expected back before the latter part of September.

Demmler's decision has stirred up quite a commotion.

He said:

"I feel that I cannot support this ordinance."

Council yesterday held consideration of the veto over for a week pending conferences with County Commissioners.

All this in effect is merely marking time until it is possible to muster six votes to pass the consent ordinance authorizing the construction of the toll plaza at the south end of the Liberty Tubes in spite of the Mayor's veto.

At present the entire government loan to the authority is being held up. Members of the authority are showing signs of being irked by the delay.

LAWYER LISTED AS ACCOUNTANT

Mayor McNair has appointed Attorney William Kaufmann as budget accountant in his office.

Although the budget is now being prepared, Attorney Kaufmann has not been working on it, but it is reported, has been busy in the law department under Special Assistant Ward Bonsall preparing appeals on the meter tax cases.

The latest payroll from the Mayor's office shows Kaufmann down for 11 days as accountant. City Controller James P. Kerr is investigating to determine whether the new employe is performing the work shown on the payroll record.

Legion Orders 'Reds' To Quit South Dakota

BRITTON, S. D., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—An ultimatum to three alleged Communists to leave South Dakota within 24 hours was planed by a group of Legionnaires from five counties in this section today.

The Legionnaires met here last night to discuss a disturbance that occurred Saturday when a number of men were evicted from Britton, after distribution of what was termed Communistic literature.

'Black Widow' Spider Bites Sir Guy

Standing, who has been on location with the "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" company in the San Fernando Valley, was bitten nearly a week ago, but his recovery has been rapid. His leg, where the tiny insect struck, is still greatly swollen, however.

Gary Cooper, on the same location, discovered a rattlesnake outside his tent and moved to a lodge at Malibu Lake, three miles distant.

JURY DIVIDED IN RED TRIAL

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A police court jury failed to return a verdict early today in the case of Caroline Decker, whose arrest on vagrancy charges involved the names of film celebrities in California's campaign against redicals.

The jury was locked up to resume deliberations later in the day on her case as well as those of 16 other alleged Communists. Two were convicted, two acquitted and three others ordered released.

Authorities said they had found in Miss Decker's apartment letters mentioning the name of James Cagney as a financial contributor to Communistic efforts. He vigorously denied aiding Communists or other radicals in any way. So did three Mexican film stars whose names were found written on a slip of paper in Miss Decker's apartment. They were Lupe Velez, Ramon Navarro and Dolores Del Rio.

Miss Decker, secretary of a Communist agricultural union, and a number of others who were on trial with her, are under indictment for violation of California's criminal syndicalism law.

'TRAGEDY' TRIAL DELAY SOUGHT

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Attorneys for Bobby Edwards, young mining surveyor charged with slaying Freda McKechnie, church worker, yesterday asked the court to postpone his trial to November 12.

They pointed out Evan C. Jones, widely known in the hard coal fields as a criminal lawyer and associated with Edwards' defense, is in a hospital and will be unable to prepare the case properly for September 10, the trial date agreed upon several weeks ago.

Judge John S. Fine told Attorney John C. Phillips, of defense counsel, to present a petition in writing to the court Wednesday.

Torch Slayer of 7 Slashed by Prowler

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 28.—(INS.)—Owen Oberst, once sentenced to life imprisonment for the "torch" deaths of seven members of his family, including his father and mother, was near death in a hospital here today from stab wounds.

The youth told police the wounds were inflicted by a Negro prowler with whom he glappled in his home this morning.

COUNCIL'S O. K. OF BONSALL ASSURED

Garland to Withdraw Objection to M'Nair's New Solicitor

Attorney Ward Bonsall will be the new city solicitor.

A vote in finance committee of Council today will show the necessary five votes.

President of Council Robert Garland has dropped the opposition to Bonsall which blocked his confirmation in Council yesterday.

With five votes needed for confirmation, Garland voted no, while Councilman William J. Soott, John J. Kane, William A. Magee and Walter R. Demmler voted yes.

Garland later announced he was satisfied to vote for him. This change in attitude came, it was learned, only after he had talked with Bonsall, himself.

MOEITZ INVOLVED

Garland had insisted in Council that the confirmation be held up until Council should have an opportunity to question the prospective city solicitor on his policies, particularly in regard to the appointment of Theodore L. Moritz, the Mayor's secretary, as a public utility expert.

In announcing his change in attitude, Garland said:

"I have known Attorney Bonsall for years. I am satisfied to vote for him."

M'NAIR'S LETTERS

All the other letters which Mayor McNair has written to Council since July were read in Council yesterday.

The five councilmen voted to confirm John B. Kearney as police magistrate, but aside from that there was little else to give encouragement to the Mayor.

They received and filed his dismissals of three city assessors, James P. Bailey, O. B. Hannon and John Murphy.

REPORTS FILED

They did the same with his letter withdrawing the name of James F. Malone for the Traction Conference Board, along with a letter from Malone stating he would not accept any job under the present city government.

The appointment of the Rev. James R. Cox as city assessor was referred to committee, where it will probably remain forever, inasmuch as Father Cox has resigned.

The name of Harmar D. Denny, Jr., was referred to the Public Service and Surveys Committee.

Council's Finance Committee was to meet this afternoon, take up the business which has accumulated during the recess.

20, and Sol Wozar, 14, attracted a large crowd as they parded in full regalia and enjoyed themselves thoroughly—until George was arrested for carrying a revolver without a permit.

UPTON SINCLAIR RACE WATCHED IN CAPITAL

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
(Scripps-Howard News Service)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Primary elections are being held in three states today — California, Mississippi, and South Carolina—and the results may provide a partial answer to the question the politicians have been asking themselves of late, to wit:

Oddly enough, it is the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in California that rivets most political attention in Washington. This nomination has not been worth much for a good many years. But this year the Democratic registration exceeds the Republican in California for the first time in three decades, and in the Seventy-third Congress the Democrats have a majority of the state delegation, 11 to nine. So there is something at stake.

FIERY CRUSADER

Into this idyllic Democratic picture crashed Upton Sinclair, Socialist, radical, fiery crusader for unpopular causes. Despairing of ever accomplishing anything through the Socialist party, Sinclair plodded over into the Democratic party with the adverse of the New Deal and announced himself for Governor. If the frantic messages reaching Washington from old-line Democrats in California tell the story, Sinclair has a good chance of winning in a field of eight, which includes, among others, George Creel, chief of war-time propaganda in the Wilson administration.

Sinclair hasn't changed his Socialistic philosophy or ideals, according to his speeches. He has simply changed parties.

Old-line Democrats in California appealed to President Roosevelt in vain to take some hand in the situation, to say some word or write some letter calculated to diminish Sinclair's chances. Mr. Roosevelt refused.

MISSISSIPPI RACE

Mississippi's three-cornered senatorial race also offers considerable political interest.

Senator Hubert D. Stephens, conservative, who frequently voted against New Deal legislation, is being opposed for renomination by Representative Ross A. Collins, ardent New Dealer, and by ex-Gov. Theodore Bilbo, who boasts that he "taught Huey Long all his tricks."

In this situation, as in California, the administration has been keeping hands off.

In South Carolina, ex-Senator Cole Blease, who used to regale the galleries with tales of the iniquities of foreign diplomats in the capital, is attempting a political comeback, but for the governorship.

HEFTY CHORINE SUES 'TINY' FOE

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Miss Peggy Leonard, 20, blonde, and 245 pounds, was wrathful today and had filed suit in Superior Court for $10,000 damages from Miss Nita Ray, a mere 200-pounder, described in the bill as a "muscle woman and bouncer."

Peggy, member of a hefty chorus that does its stuff at a North Side cafe, alleged she was invited to the opening of the cafe where Miss Ray was employed.

Miss Ray, the bill recited, picked a fight, blacked Peggy's eye, and then remarked:

2,700 CONVICTS GO ON STRIKE

for commutation of sentence and are considered unreasonable, inasmuch as the officials of this institution have no jurisdiction over matters of this nature."

RUMORS DENIED

Officials at Cherry Hill said there was no truth to rumors that the convicts went on strike because Warden Smith refused their demands for an increase in pay, which is now 10 cents a day and is paid by the State Welfare Department.

The strike got under way when one convict at work in the shops dropped his tools and shouted:

"Everybody out."

Immediately the other prisoners shut off machines and filed back to their cell blocks.

In two blocks the prisoners loitered in the corridors but when guards asked them to enter their cells they complied. In a third block, however, prisoners remained in the corridor until guards appeared with clubs. Then they entered their cells.

1,500 GO FOODLESS

Hunger faced the 1,500 convicts in riot-troubled Graterford prison because of prisoners' threats to "cut the throats" of "trusty" kitchen workers.

The inmates of the "model" prison went to bed without supper last night due to a "kitchen strike" growing out of the threats, and officials said they will continue to go hungry unless a change of attitude makes it possible for kitchen workers to return to their chores without fear.

The threats against the kitchen workers were disclosed by Dr. Guy T. Holcombe, president of the board of trustees, which earlier in the day empowered Warden Smith to take "whatever means are effectual" to prevent repetition of Saturday's outbreak.

NO COOKS AVAILABLE

Since all non-convict labor was needed last night in manning the prison power house—normally run by prisoners—there were no guards left to prepare the evening meal. Dr. Holcombe said:

"Our sympathy is with these prisoners who work in the kitchen, but who refrain because of threats. In a sense we cannot blame them."

The tense situation is the outgrowth of Saturday's costly riot at the Graterford farm and the arraignment yesterday of 15 alleged leaders of the uprising.

A short time later two guards, wearing football helmets and carrying baseball bats, and an armed state policeman, escorted two convicts from a cell block to the "bull pen," the outdoor wire enclosure in which Saturday's rioters were herded.

EVA COO CRIES 'TORTURE' ON STAND

Murder Trial Jury Also Sees Expert Swing Mallet

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. Eva Coo, on trial for her life, today told on the witness stand that she was questioned under "torturing conditions" before she signed a statement in connection with the murder of Harry Wright.

She took the stand in a surprise move at the request of her counsel and after a conference of both defense and prosecution with the Judge, to tell circumstances leading up to the statement. Her counsel asked:

"Had you told the officers you would sign anything if they'd let you sleep?"

She answered:

"Yes, I said if they'd let me sleep I'd sign anything."

QUIZ ON STATEMENT

It was the general understanding when Eva took the stand that she would be questioned only about the statement. This was made on June 20, six days after the murder is supposed to have occurred. She had been in custody four days and had been questioned for hours at a stretch, Eva said.

Defense Counsel James J. Byard, Jr., decided to call Eva when District Attorney Donald Grant announced he was preparing to introduce the statement. Byard said:

"I'd like an opportunity to ask my client about the statement first."

Earlier in the day the supposed "mallet scene" was re-enacted before the crowded courtroom. Wright, the state contends, was hit by a mallet in Eva's hands and thrust under an automobile that Mrs. Martha Cliff, her friend, was "too nervous" to stop.

MALLET SWINGER

Defense Attorney Byard picked up the much fought over mallet, weighing 3½ pounds, and asked Dr. E. C. Winsor, of Schenevus, coroner's physician, to show just how that weapon would have to be wielded in order to produce two wounds on the head, one on the right temple and one on the left. Such wounds were on Wright's temple.

Dr. Winsor, taking the mallet gingerly, stepped down from the witness chair and stood before the judge's bench. Byard took the part of Harry Wright. "Now, don't hit me," said the counsellor as the doctor circled round him. Byard turned his back, but Dr. Winsor took up a position at the attorney's right, then at his left, and raised the weapon, bringing it within a fraction of an inch first of the right temple, then the left.

"Then two blows would have to be struck, not one?"

BANDITS CHARGE 'DOUBLE-CROSS'

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A Westmoreland County jury has factual proof before it that there is no "honor among thieves." It came yesterday as two alleged participants in a $3,000 holdup of the Manor National Bank on August 11 went on trial for robbery, with their two confessed colleagues as the state's principal witnesses.

George Klaus, of East Pittsburgh, and Maynard Baker, of Irwin, charged Francis Winters, of Sharon, with attempting to "double-cross" them after the holdup. Winters and Harold Doriot, of Pittsburgh, denied parts in the holdup.

Klaus and Baker charged Winters and Doriot with being the men who levelled guns at the bank's employes. Klaus said he gathered up the currency while Baker waited at the wheel of the escape car.

Afterwards, Baker continued, the four adjourned to a field near the William Penn highway for the "split." He said Winters told them the holdup netted only $800, whereupon each was given $200 as his share. State police said Winters' clothing yielded $1,700 after he was arrested.

McNair May Give Crown To Johnston for While

Mayor McNair is likely to appoint Public Works Director Leslie M. Johnston as Deputy Mayor before he sails for France Saturday.

While the Mayor would not admit that he will name a deputy, reports around City Hall are that he is sure to name Johnston.

Several of the other department heads are absent on long journeys, Health Director Ray P. Moyer being on the way to attend a convention in California and Welfare Director Southard Hay reported in New York.

Johnston was in Harrisburg yesterday but was expected back in plenty of time to get final instructions from McNair should the Mayor decide to swear in a deputy.

The state act which provides for a deputy mayor was passed in 1931. The deputy has the power of veto, according to attorneys.

20 Music Lovers Seized In Night Raid on Hill

That's what 20 defendants told Magistrate John B. Kearney in Center Avenue Police Court. The Magistrate was particularly interested to know whether they were drinking, because the raid had occurred after the legal closing hour of 2 a. m.

Everybody said "no."

Police testified that complaints of noise, music and whoopee at all hours had led to the raid.

So Magistrate Kearney fined Isidore Freedman, 29, of 802 Cedar avenue, $50 with the alternative of serving 30 days on a charge of keeping a disorderly house. He fined the 19 others, who include musicians, entertainers and visitors, $5 or 10 days on a charge of visiting a disorderly house.

Miss Anna B. Heldman, a member of the Police Research Commission, sat on the bench with Magistrate Kearney during the hearing. She explained her presence in the courtroom by saying she had just "dropped in."

International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The death in London of a gentle old woman believed to be the lineal descendant and heir of Constatine, first Christian emperor of Rome, who died 1,600 years ago, was reported today.

She was Princess Eugenie Paleologue, whose claim to the throne of Greece was seriously considered in the first days of that country's independence from the Turks.

In 1888 she visited Greece and was given royal honors.

Her husband, Col. Edmund Wickham, of the British Army, and her four sons are dead. Generously befriending many all her life, she became bankrupt three years ago. She never had been wealthy.

UPPER DARBY, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Police today were asked to search for Wallace Whitney, Jr., 13, who disappeared from home leaving a note in which he told his mother:

"Skippy is dead and I am heartbroken."

The lad was missed yesterday, and it was found he had taken some of his possessions with him in a small traveling bag. "Skippy," his dog, died last Saturday from poison which Mrs. Whitney placed in the cellar to kill rats. Since then, Wallace has grieved over the death of his pet.

Tar Faces Grilling In Girl's Murder

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A former sailor was to be questioned today in the hope he might have information concerning the slaying of 16-year-old Celia Cota in San Diego, Cal., August 17.

Officers, who identified the man as H. D. Adams, 28, who allegedly was using the name of William H. Adams when arrested in Alamogordo, N. M., August 17, said they had intercepted a letter addressed to San Diego which purportedly mentioned the girl's name. They said it read in part:

"Sure that girl was killed the other day by the name of Cecilia Cota is the cause of my arrest."

TITUSVILLE'S AUDIENCE-IN-THE-RAIN AT OIL'S JUBILEE

TITUSVILLE, Pa., Aug. 28.—Clashing opinions on the effectiveness of the "New Deal" in the giant oil industry were expressed here yesterday by the Federal oil administrator and a noted petroleum executive.

A crowd of some 10,000 persons paying tribute to Col. Edwin L. Drake, who "brought in" the first well of "black gold" 75 years ago, heard Secretary of the Interior and Petroleum Administrator Harold L. Ickes defend government control. He said:

"The nation, as the representative and protector of all the people and the defender of their rights and liberties, has a paramount interest in oil, which, if it is not to be derelict in its duty, must be maintained."

ANOTHER BABY, DEMPSEY HOPE

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28. — Jack and Hannah Williams Dempsey yesterday allowed Joan Hannah Dempsey to be seen by a few hand-picked friends. Cooed Hannah:

"Isn't she the loveliest baby you ever saw? Isn't she wonderful?"

In something as nearly a coo as an ex-heavyweight champion could manage, Daddy Jack carried on:

"She's so beautiful that we're going to have another as soon as possible. My mother had about 12.

"Yes, Joan's the name. I thought Hannah would be best. But my big baby—that's Hannah—wanted Joan for her little baby. We ruled out on Jacqueline. I didn't want people calling her 'Jack.'"

5 BABIES HAVE 'BIRTHDAY'

CALLANDER, Ont., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The Dionne quintuplets are three months old today, but it is just another day in the lives of the famous little sisters.

Instead of a birthday cake, the babies had their usual three ounces of milk every three hours, a bit of tomato juice and the oxygen they receive every day.

No celebration was held in the little farm home where 24-year-old Mrs. Oliva Dionne gave birth to the five—Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, Emilie and Marie—early the morning of May 28.

The first real celebration since the babies came will take place in a few weeks, when the hospital built especially for them will be opened 100 yards down the road from the Dionne home.

A legal fight over the estate already has been promised with Martha O. Aber, of Markton, near Punxsutawney claiming a widow's share, although friends of the late architect had believed him to be a bachelor.

BEATTY SHOT, NOT CLAWED

International News Service.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Aug. 28.—Clyde Beatty, famed animal trainer who was attacked by Sammy, one of the lions in his act, while the act was playing Bay City, learned today the lion had not clawed him—he had shot himself.

Sammy, who killed a lioness some time ago in a terrific battle, attacked Beatty when the trainer entered his cage. Beatty raised a chair to defend himself, but the lion swept it from his grasp.

The trainer seized a pedestal, held it up and reached for his gun. With a sweep of his paw, Sammy knocked the pedestal down, the gun was discharged and a bullet lodged in Beatty's leg, just above the knee.

Beatty went on with his performance, thinking he had merely been clawed. It wasn't until he developed a fever when he came here that doctors found the slug still embedded in his leg.

Weather Conditions

High pressure, centered this morning over Northern Minnesota, Duluth, 30.58 inches, covers most of the interior of the country, resulting in fair and cool weather. The tropical storm is centered near Galveston this morning, and is causing heavy rainfall over that portion of the Texas Coast. The rainfall at Galveston up to 8 a. m. was 5.64 inches. Showers and thunderstorms were quite general over most of the country east of the Mississippi River during yesterday and last night, and there were light showers over the Southern Rocky Mountain states, as a result of low pressure that stretches from Alberta to Arizona. The temperatures are much below normal this morning over the upper Mississippi Valley states. Light frost is reported in St. Paul.

6,000 CHICAGO TEACHERS PAID

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28. — Lines formed again today outside the City State Bank Building where $26,300,000 in back pay is being distributed to 18,000 harassed employes of Chicago's public schools.

School teachers and civil service employes were being paid at the approximate rate of 400 an hour at the 14 pay windows pressed into use.

Up to 10:30 o'clock when the windows were closed last night approximately 6,200 employes had received $9,058,000 representing their back salaries for the seven months' period from November 1 to May 31.

Merchants and tradesmen reported a noticeable stimulation of trade as the millions of RFC dollars found their way into the channels of business. Chicago's biggest pay day was made possible through an RFC loan for the full amount of back salaries granted to the Board of Education.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28 — (AP.) — All the comforts of home are available in the latest in endurance flying.

WEIRD PRAYERS MUTE LAMENT OF MOTHER

Doctors Give Child 50-50 Chance After Surgery in Cabin

PORT PAYNE, Ala., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Surgeons' instruments glinting in the flickering light of a kerosene lamp—a mother's lament lost in the weird chant of the Holiness cult's "unknown tongue"—a boy with a "50-50 chance for life."

Dr. W. T. Miller, one of two surgeons who operated on 8-year-old Wallace Dixie Sharp, Jr., straightened from his work and said:

"He has an even chance."

For days Wallace's parents had refused to permit an operation on his infected leg. They said:

"The Lord will heal him through faith."

Finally the father gave in. But the operation must be performed in the Sharp home, he said, as members of the cult might aid with prayers, songs and talking in the "unknown tongue."

Despite the lack of hospital facilities, the doctors scraped eight inches of bone in the boy's leg. When he awoke from the anaesthetic, part of the swelling was gone.

His condition was "better than I expected," said Dr. Miller, who had predicted amputation as the price of further delay.

Once during the operation Mrs. Sharp shrieked:

"They're murdering my son!"

GUARD MOTHER IN MERCY DEATH

International News Service.

CONCORD, N. H., Aug. 28.—While nurses watched at the bedside of Mrs. Lois M. Cotter, 27-year-old alleged "mercy slayer," County Solicitor Colby today prepared to question her concerning the death of her 10-year-old crippled and helpless daughter, Marjorie.

The child was found dead in the Cotter home, asphyxiated by illuminating gas. The mother was found unconscious and rushed to Pillsbury Hospital where doctors said she was on the road to recovery. The young mother left what police termed a suicide note, but its contents were withheld.

Lawrence E. Cotter, father of the dead child, is an electrician. Another child, Marion, 8, survives.

FORMER SLAVE, 105, DIES HERE

Death today claimed Mrs. Rhoda Williams whose age, according to her daughter, Mrs. Amanda Sheppard, of 1212 Pasture street, hovers vaguely around 105 to 106 years. The mother of 13 children, some of them adults at the time of the Civil War, Mrs. Williams came to Pittsburgh with her daughter in 192[illegible].

Mrs. Sheppard said:

"All of the other children are dead except one brother, whom I haven't seen for 23 years, and a sister. I don't know her name or where she is. My mother was a slave at the time of the Civil War.

"I heard her tell how she was a field hand, picking cotton and hoeing corn near Birmingham, Ala. I don't know for sure how old my mother was, but I am 58 years old and I was one of her younger children. She was awful childish the last few years. She thought baby dolls were babies."

BEAUTY SHOW 'SAINT' STIRS SOCIETY ROW

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Money raised for charitable purposes through a society ball, the main feature of which was a pageant, "Bathing Beauties of History," was declared today by St. Joseph's Hospital of Far Rockaway.

One of the historical figures portrayed as a bathing beauty was Joan of Arc, who was canonized by Pope Benedict XV in 1919. Miss Mary Peck of Woodmere, N. Y., was the Maid of Orleans and appeared in a bathing suit of metal cloth.

REFUSES FUNDS

Sister Mary Bertrand, superintendent of the hospital, which was one of the announced beneficiaries of the ball, explained that the Catholic Church did not approve of bathing beauty contests in general and could not accept any of the funds.

She declined to say whether the church considered that a saint had been treated with a lack of respect, but conceded "it probably had something to do with it."

Other institutions which were to receive funds from the ball, held last Friday night at the exclusive Atlantic Beach Club, are Nassau Hospital in Mineola, N. Y., the Inwood Fire Department Welfare fund and the Nassau County Police Relief fund.

OTHER 'BATHING BEAUTIES'

Other historical women portrayed as bathing beauties included Cleopatra, Messalina, Madame Pompadour, Queen Isabella of Spain, Pocahontas and Priscilla.

Mae West also was portrayed in a bathing suit.

The pageant was conceived by Kenneth M. Murchison, a widely known architect, who could not be reached for comment.

At the club it was said there had been no intention "to be offensive" and that it was regretted that a "misunderstanding" had arisen.

PIONEER DIES AT FREEPORT

The funeral of Henry W. Rowley, 80, pioneer resident of Freeport and a merchant of that town for more than half a century, was held this afternoon. Services were conducted by the Rev. T. H. Carson, pastor of the Freeport M. E. Church. Burial took place in the Freeport Cemetery.

Mr. Rowley died Saturday evening. He was born in Freeport, where he spent his entire life. He was an ardent baseball fan and never missed an opening game played by the Pirates until about five years ago when his advanced age caused him to give up that pastime. He just returned a few weeks ago from a fishing trip in Canada.

Mr. Rowley served as a news agent for Pittsburgh newspapers until July, 1932, when he transferred the agency after 50 years' service. He was familiarly known as "Papa" Rowley to the younger generation.

All business houses in Freeport were closed for an hour this afternoon during the funeral.

Mr. Rowley leaves three sons, Howard F., of Wheeling, W. Va.; Clyde R., of Oakmont, and Myron H., of Freeport, and two daughters, Mrs. Carrie Rowley and Mrs. M. C. Mickey, of Freeport.

WARSAW, Ind., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Some 3,000 persons "saw double" at the fourth annual twins' reunion in Warsaw City Park, watching the frolic of 175 pairs of twins and a set of triplets.

Twins ranging in age from 5 weeks to 79 years were present from many parts of Indiana and neighboring states.

The triplets were Charles, Vada and Jene Geleide, 6, of South Bend, Ind.

A basket dinner was followed by a parade of twins through the park. Ed Clink, of Silver Lake, Ind., who originated the twins' reunion four years ago, was re-elected president.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Dreams of love wrapped in a rich golden fortune are being dreamed by Albanian statesmen for their 34-year-old bachelor king, Zog, a dispatch said today from Tirana, Albania.

Some American or British heiress who could bring a fine dowry to the struggling little kingdom in exchange for a queenly crown would be cordially welcomed by the men guiding Albanian destinies, it was said.

Predictions are being made that the handsome sovereign will marry within a year. A European tour may be arranged for Zog to "give him and the right girl a chance to meet."

Albania is 70 per cent Moslem and the royal bride would be required to embrace the Moslem faith.

ZIMBALIST SOUR ON 2 VIOLINS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The authenticity of two violins bought by Efrem Zimbalist, the virtuoso and collector of rare violins, was the issue today in a hearing before Division One of the District Court of Appeals.

It was asserted that Zimbalist purchased the instruments in 1925 from the late George Smith, believing them to have been made by two famous Cremona violin makers, Stradivarius and Guarnerius. He paid $2,000 cash and promised to pay $6,000 more, but decided later the violins were only imitations.

Smith brought suit for the unpaid balance and lost in the lower court. He then took the present appeal, which is being prosecuted by the administrator of his estate.

BEEBE AND AIDE IMPERILED IN NEW DIVES

HAMILTON, Bermuda, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Valuable new data on deep sea life were reported today by Dr. William Beebe and Otis Barton, American scientists, as the result of their latest dives off this port.

Strange underwater creatures, thus far unidentified, were glimpsed through the quartz windows of the bathysphere, steel diving device invented by Barton, in two submersions yesterday. Tiny fish, angry at the invasion, hurled themselves against the ball, emitting flashes of light when they struck it. Descriptions of specimens were telephoned to assistants above.

Two accidents occurred yesterday. On the first descent a short circuit in a battery caused four flashlight bulbs to explode in Barton's face. He was blinded for a few minutes but remained below, unhurt.

Later a descent was made by Beebe and John Teevan, an assistant. They were being brought aboard ship by cable when a great wave rocked the little craft.

The ball slithered and rolled across the deck as the vessel pitched, giving Beebe and Teevan rough moments. They escaped injury and the Bathysphere was undamaged except for a small break in an instrument connected with its oxygen supply.

No attempt was made to equal the depth record of 3,028 feet, set by Beebe and Barton two weeks ago.

LINDY HELD ACE BIOLOGIST

International News Service.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Dr. Alexis Carrel, famed research worker, could not be reached today for verification of an interview published in the Paris Jour in which he called Charles A. Lindbergh, the famous flier, his best laboratory assistant in biological research. Dr. Carrel was quoted:

"The whole world knows and admires the first man who flew the Atlantic alone. You know his extreme modesty, and what I am telling you about him nobody suspects in America. He follows my course assiduously and has become my best assistant in biology. The name he will leave in that science will be as illustrious as that in aviation."

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(INS.)—A laboratory report in the magazine, Science, two years ago, signed "C. A. Lindbergh, division of experimental surgery, Rockefeller Institute," was the first inkling America had that its most famous aviator had taken up research in biochemistry.

It was learned that some time before he had become interested in the mechanics of an apparatus for separating blood corpuscles and spent much time perfecting the device. It was learned at the time that Col. Lindbergh had been associated in this work with Dr. Alexis Carrel.

High-Collared 'Menace' Film Mystery

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A motion picture actor has spurted to sudden and spectacular fame and his name is not even known to the studio for which he was working.

Several months ago the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio started going through its dusty film files. Several of the pictures, which had been in the files for years, were projected on a screen just for amusement. And they were so amusing the studio decided to release parts of them under the title, "Goofy Movies."

In most of the films a certain high-collared gentleman has consistently enacted "The Menace."

He has gained such a following among movie goers the studio is receiving hundreds of "fan" letters each week, asking his name.

But the studio so far has been unable to identify him.

5 Tons Honey In 'Sweetest' Accident

BOISE, Idaho, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Ada County police have recorded what they believe to rate as the world's "sweetest" accidents.

Dick Stevenson, apiarist, was driving to Boise when a tire on his truck blew out and his cargo—five tons of honey—was dumped onto the highway as the truck overturned.

FILM COMEDIAN ON CRUTCHES

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A Hollywood motion picture studio took on the appearance today of a convention of the lame and the halt.

Stan Laurel, the smallest half of the comedy team of Laurel and Hardy, hobbled to the studio on crutches. Hal Roach, the producer, with the aid of his chauffeur, managed to stumble the few steps from his automobile to his office, and Charlie Case, minus several pounds of avoirdupois, joined the moaning chorus with a long face.

Laurel has been laid up with an injured leg, suffered in a fall on the lot; Roach recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, and Chase has been suffering with stomach trouble.

TEXTILE STRIKE THREAT BRINGS PEACE STEPS

Associated Press.

To stave off the impending strike, Lloyd Garrison, chairman of the National Labor Relations Board, pleaded for a round-table conference.

The strike committee of the United Textile Workers accepted the invitation to a conference with manufacturers on Thursday, but reiterated that a general walkout in the industry could be averted only by "definite concessions."

Other strike threats grew more ominous. In New York, 10,000 truckmen called for a strike vote Friday. On the West Coast, 5,000 vegetable workers voted to walk out today.

Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, said needy strikers will be eligible for relief, unless the Labor Department or the National Labor Relations Board brands the strike unjustified.

Their strike ended by mediation, 5,000 New York painters returned to work after a five-week walkout.

In Chicago, 200 pickets in the Chicago Motor Coach Company strike marched to the Loop bearing signs and congregated at principal bus stops.

American Federation of Labor leaders charged the strike-bound Kohler Company in Wisconsin with NRA violations, and sought to have the company cited. The Labor Relations Board ordered a hearing for Thursday on the complaint.

MACNIDER SEES U. S. REVERSED

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Col. Hanford MacNider, former commander of the American Legion and former minister to Canada, last night described the "New Deal" as "America in reverse" and charged the Democrats repudiated their important planks and promises.

He spoke under auspices of the Republican Senatorial and Congressional Campaign Committee. The address was broadcast by the National Broadcasting Company.

MacNider said:

"We are now entering that sad, unhappy and worried aftermath which follows all hypnotic adventures. The New Deal is nothing more than America in reverse.

"As enthusiastic New Dealers start winding back the reel of our national progress into reverse, perhaps to divert our minds from the tremendous and all-time peaks of national indebtedness they have created for us, we Republicans can at least be allowed a glimpse of that virtueless period of debt reduction when with a balanced budget and a determination to pay our way and fulfill our promises, our credit was the best on earth."

NRA FOR 'SAFE' FIRECRACKERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—NRA sought today to give the American boy a less dangerous firecracker without depriving him of any of the noise.

It announced an agreement with manufacturers under which sale of fireworks containing magnesium or aluminum, which produces or assists the explosion, will be barred. NRA said:

"Youths of the land will be spared the many painful accidents that in past years have attended their juvenile patriotic demonstration.

"There will be plenty of pop and sound in the American firecracker, but the likelihood of serious consequences will be largely eliminated."

Mine Workers Join Firemen in Fete

Sponsored by the United Mine Workers Union and the East Bethlehem Township Fire Department, a Labor Day celebration is to be held at Fredericktown next Monday. Crowds from Vestaburg, Clarksville, Rice Landing and Crucible will join in the demonstration. Leaders of the miners' union and Joseph F. Guffey, Democratic nominee for the Senate, will be among the speakers.

Experts on Housing Meet In Cleveland

Striker Accused Of Hurling Brick

Joseph Pavlokovic, 27, of 5121 Dresden way, striking truck driver, was held for court by Magistrate Anthony Lucas today when it was testified that Pavlokovic threw a brick that injured a driver of a Swift & Co., packing truck.

Nude Beauties Ordered Out By Mayor

OKLAHOMA CITY, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Distracting "art" studies were taken off the walls of city hall offices today following an eye-brow-lifting inspection trip by O. M. Mosier, city manager.

He indicated to department heads that one modest calendar per room is enough.

Now the Garbo Stars on Sundial

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—When it's noon in Una Merkel's garden it's "Shearer o'clock." And when the shadows begin to lengthen, it's "half past Garbo."

Miss Merkel, screen actress, has a new sun dial. Instead of the usual numerals marking the hours, the actress placed pictures of her favorite stars, Norma Shearer, Greta Garbo, Marion Davies, Clark Gable, Joan Crawford, Jeannette MacDonald, Jean Harlow, Robert Montgomery, Lionel Barrymore and others.

FLETCHER FLAYS 'NEW DEAL' AS TRADE BAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Donald Richberg worked today on a report of the New Deal's benefits to farmers while the Republican camp took pot shots at his summary of the industrial picture.

Attacking the first Richberg report of "tremendous progress" under the Roosevelt administration, Chairman Henry P. Fletcher of the Republican National Committee said last night that business actually lost ground under the NRA and AAA.

Richberg, head of the President's executive council, reported to Mr. Roosevelt Sunday night that 4,120,000 workers were reemployed since Mr. Roosevelt took office and that industrial payrolls increased from $36,000,000 to $132,000,000.

COMPARED WITH '33

But, Fletcher said in a statement, Richberg compared present conditions with those of the spring and early summer of 1933, when the NRA and the AAA were not effective.

Comparing figures of today and of the time when the two agencies started work, he said, shows that "industrial production has declined in all classifications listed by the Department of Commerce except automobiles. This includes coal, electric power, lumber, petroleum and steel." He continued:

JOBLESS TOTAL GREATER

"According to the American Federation of Labor's statistical department, unemployment today is 200,000 greater than it was in October last year and the total number of unemployed industrial workers is in the neighborhood of 10,000,000."

He said rapid recovery slowed up when the "deadening effect of the so-called recovery measures began to take effect" last August. Strike figures, he asserted, were "conspicuously absent" from Richberg's report.

Richberg plans a series of reports to the President on various activities. His summary of the effect of the new deal on the farms is expected to be completed tomorrow.

TRADE ABROAD BETTER, REPORT TO ROOSEVELT

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A generally improved economic situation in Europe but not one still "critical" in Germany was reported to President Roosevelt today by Alfred J. Pearson, Drake University economist who has just returned from abroad.

Mr. Pearson, who is a former minister to Finland, interviewed Adolf Hitler during his trip. He described Hitler as "sincere." He said the German leader has a critical industrial situation which probably will reach a crisis next spring.

Mr. Roosevelt listened intently to Pearson's report before sitting down to luncheon with Gov. Lehman.

Pearson said Sweden was in the best condition of any European nation and was making a success of planned economy, adding:

"France is going along quietly and improving. I was anti-Communistic but I must say that Russia has made big strides forward."

The President offered no comment on the European report.

While keeping a close eye on the economic situation, President Roosevelt is showing no outward concern about world-wide progress toward prosperity.

In response to inquiries, Marvin H. McIntyre, one of the President's secretaries, said no invitation has been given by the President to Upton Sinclair, one of the California Democratic senatorial candidates, to visit the summer White House and that no appointment has been made.

The President took over his desk after a trip yesterday during which he reviewed the cadets at West Point Military Academy. He told Maj. Gen. William D. Connor, the superintendent, he was well pleased with the showing.

Farmer Accused Of Poisoning Apples

WORCESTER, Mass., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Francesco Giraldi, of Shrewsbury, was arrested here on a secret indictment charging attempted murder after allegations that he had put poison on apples which children were likely to take.

Police said children near his home had been picking his apples.

Pants Failure Averted By Roosevelt's Colonel

West Point Parade Saved by Porter's Suspenders

International News Service.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Col. Edmund M. Watson, President Roosevelt's military aide, was the sharpest man in the country today.

Col. Watson had a bad time with his pants yesterday.

The trouble lay in the fact that President Roosevelt decided suddenly to review the cadet corps at West Point. Watson is a West Point man and thus far during the administration of Mr. Roosevelt has had to attend innumerable Navy ceremonies.

When the President decided on Sunday shortly after he arrived here, that he would visit West Point, a hurry call went out to the military aide. Watson was not even in Washington. He had to stop at the capital en route here to pick up his dress uniform. He was in a terrible hurry.

When Col. Watson, a native of Alabama, arrived and began to dress for the parade trip, he found that he had no suspenders. This was a real catastrophe. But Watson is a man of ingenuity. When a porter came in to get some clothes for the cleaner, he asked:

"Porter, do you wear suspenders?"

The porter answered:

"Yas, suh! I has to wear them so mah pants won't fall down."

The colonel said:

"Well, then, your pants are going to fall down pretty quick. You give me those suspenders."

Col. Watson is about six feet and a half tall and weighs more than 200 pounds. The Negro decided the better part of valor was defeat. He said:

"Yas, suh."

And off came the suspenders.

Watson put the suspenders on and they served his purpose. When he returned from West Point, he presented the galluses to another porter. The darky who first gave them up is richer by $2, the colonel's life was saved so far as the trousers were concerned, and now everybody is happy.

NRA REDUCING CODE TOTAL

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—NRA hailed its far-reaching realignment of codes today as an important step toward greater efficiency and economy.

It divided American industry into 22 classes, the initial move toward cutting down the number of codes from 632 to about 250 and grouping them in 16 grand divisions. Mergers are relied on to make the drastic reduction in the number of codes.

Codes with similar or related interests were grouped together in an order published today. Allied businesses will thus receive identical treatment on common problems, officials said. The codes also are expected to be easier and cheaper to administer.

LABOR EXODUS IN DISTRICT SHOWN

During the last four years Pittsburghers have been forsaking the city for other parts, according to a survey of Allegheny County unemployment, just issued by the department of research and statistics of the state Emergency Relief Board.

The survey, made last winter, shows that Pittsburgh's population has decreased 3.2 per cent in the period between April, 1930, and February, 1934.

Another point in the report is that one-third of the city's employable population was entirely idle in February of this year, and one-seventh of the city's workers was existing on part time employment.

Pittsburgh ranks first in the percentage of unemployed in the county, with McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton following.

The percentage of unemployed Negro workers was much greater than that among the white, but foreign-born people were less affected by the depression years than either of the others.

Studies similar to that just issued will be made later into the occupational, industrial and age distribution of the workers, with minimum wages and the duration of unemployment.

Figures will be given for every county in the state.

LAWYERS URGED TO WIPE OUT BAR EVILS

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The American bar was urged today to discard methods tending to lower its prestige.

The plea came from Robert H. Jackson, assistant general counsel of the United States Treasury Department, speaking to a conference of the American Bar Association which opened its convention here today.

Jackson suggested no extensive use of disbarment proceedings or other processes of the legal code to remove from the ranks of the profession those guilty of besmirching its name. Rather he asked the bar itself, through its thousands of members, to make the choice between "leaders or mouthpieces." He said:

"It is hard to escape the conclusion that if the bar has lost its ancient prestige, it has not been lost by scoundrels and dunces who never had any part of it to lose, but by lawyers of substance, who lost it, not because they failed to observe the lawyers' code, but because the code itself had lost credit."

LAWYERS BLAMED

Activities of lawyers in criminal law have done much to lower the profession, he said, adding:

"One reason is that, while we are strongly opposed to crime in the abstract, we will never give organized support to any specific proposal to suppress it."

Every miscarriage of justice which releases a criminal is caused by a lawyer and permitted by a judge he said.

Choosing counterfeiting because it is a crime never committed by accident, in ignorance, heat of passion or extremity of poverty to illustrate his argument that the bar and bench are responsible for failure to execute laws, Jackson said that while in one year there were 746 pleas of guilty and 88 convictions on counterfeiting charges, 143 offenders were released on probation.

NEW DEAL CRITICIZED

One aspect of the New Deal, called a trend toward regulation of public utilities and construction by the government of competitive plants, drew criticism today from a section of the Bar Association.

The report of the section of public utility law, whose chairman is Lowell M. Greenlaw, of Chicago, general counsel for the Pullman Company, said the "most pronounced trend" in electric utility regulation is toward control by the federal government in opposition to control through individual state governments.

Listing steps toward federal control, the report said:

"Whatever may be the merit of any of these steps, it is obvious that together they fail to present any consistent plan for permanent regulation by the federal government."

THALIA MASSIE SISTER 'WED' IN MOCKERY

International News Service.

BAYPORT, L. I., Aug. 28.—It was just a joke of the young people—there was no real marriage at all.

This smiling observation by Mrs. Granville Fortescue, of Washington, today definitely dissipated rumors—some of which had even gone into print—that her daughter, Kenyon Fortescue, had been married last Saturday at Pawling, N. Y., to John Marshall, Jr., of New York and Washington, descendant of the famous Chief Justice Marshall.

Publishes reports that the couple had been married on the outdoor stage of the Rockefeller Theater at Pawling, where Miss Fortescue, a sister of Mrs. Thalia Massie, was active, were explained with an appreciative chuckle by Mrs. Fortescue. She said:

"Miss Fortescue and Mr. Marshall are very great friends. However, they are not even engaged.

"Last Saturday while they were at the theater with a group of young people, some one remarked that 'It is a lovely afternoon—just a perfect setting for a wedding.'

"That started the idea of a mock marriage, and it was enthusiastically carried out. However, there were several elements lacking for a real marriage. These included the absence of a wedding ring, a marriage certificate and a minister!"

'KINGFISH' SETS 'YES MEN' ON FOES' TRAIL

By ROBERT G. NIXON
International News Service.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 28.—The Huey Long dictatorship was posed today to strike its first hamstringing blow at the wealthy, politically powerful city of New Orleans.

To the stronghold of the "Kingfish" at his $1,000,000 skyscraper capitol in Baton Rouge went nine of his subservient legislators summoned to a council of war.

Their is the duty to "purify" New Orleans, to place its mayor, its police superintendent, its councilmen, and its justice officers on trial on charges of graft, corruption and vice, and to recommend that the Louisiana Legislature, which United States Senator Huey Long dominates, impeach those upon whoom the verdict of guilty is returned.

The city investigation today awaited but the command of the "Kingfish" to begin. His personnel—four senators, one a cousin of Long, and five members of the House, all "yes men" of the Long-directed state administration—was completed yesterday.

Today they met at Baton Rouge to complete plans for the probe.

It was expected to be launched immediately. Lieut. Gov. John Fournet said:

"The inquiry should begin at once."

Fournet's opinion was an echo of a similar one expressed by Senator Long several days ago. The Kingfish added:

"And the first thing the committee should do is to look into the bank accounts, safety deposit boxes and personal fortunes of the public officials and other racketeers."

While Huey was giving these directions to his legislative inquisitors the federal government apparently had beat him to the punch in an investigation along similar lines—but one that may bode no good for the Long administration.

Before a federal grand jury that for more than a year has pursued a painstaking investigation into income tax payments of prominent Louisianans, many of whose personal fortunes reputedly benefited from the enormous expenditures of the Long regime yesterday appeared A. P. Tugwell, chairman of the Louisiana Highway Commission.

With Tugwell went records of the Highway Commission for the years 1929 to 1932—a period that saw the state splurge upwards of $100,000,000 in a lavish road building and public improvement program, sponsored by Long, then Governor.

Louisiana's present Governor, Oscar K. (OK Huey) Allen, then was head of the Highway Commission and Tugwell was its auditor.

When Tugwell emerged he was escorted out of the building through a back entrance by Special Assistant United States Attorney William H. Norman, and the grand jury adjourned until Thursday, ostensibly to permit a study of the truckload of highway records the body had subpenaed.

Louisiana Women Band To Smash Kingfish Long

'Death Battalion' Sells Heirlooms to Finance Fight

By ROBERT G. NIXON.
International News Service.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 28.—Louisiana womanhood is out to get Huey Long.

An aroused and determined group of 1,000 women, the majority members of the old line aristocracy, has sworn not to rest until the Kingfish is shorn of his dictatorship.

Many have stripped their fine old New Orleans mansions of almost priceless antiques and sold them to obtain funds with which to further the fight against Huey. Others have made heavy demands on their personal fortunes.

OVERTON IMPEACHMENT AIM

A dynamic woman in her middle years, Mrs. Hammond holds the chairmanship of the Women's Committee of Louisiana. For two years she has been one of Senator Long's most tireless and implacable enemies.

While Huey's riddance is the women's immediate aim, it is not their only one. They seek to flush the state of a political system which they assert is corrupt to the core. Impeachment of Senator John Overton, whose election by the Long machine they charge was achieved through flagrant stuffing of ballot boxes, is another part of their double-barreled fight to smash the Kingfish.

The impending battle for political supremacy between the forces of the Kingfish and the New Orleans old regular Democrats, headed by Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, at the September 11 Congressional primary is the most crucial chapter of the state's recent history, Mrs. Hammond told International News Service, saying:

"This demagogue must be decisively defeated. If he continues in power it simply means further enslavement of the state.

"Long has deprived Louisiana of a representative form of government. The ballot box is no longer a medium of expression of the voter's wishes. He has the Legislature, the Governor, the courts, the army and the police under his thumb."

But the tragedy of the situation, Mrs. Hammond declared, is that voters must choose between "two such politicians as Long and Walmsley," adding:

"Placing the stamp of approval on the Walmsley machine by defeating Long's candidates is simply accepting the lesser of two evils.

"Louisiana women deplore the fact that to rid the state of one despot we must accept, for the time being at least, the domination of a machine that until nine months ago was hand in glove with Long.

CALLS SENATORS COWARDS

"Senator Connolly called Louisianans cowards at the Overton inquiry. Now it looks like the show is on the other foot. I'd like to ask if the Senate is composed of cowards? If not why doesn't some Senator with courage rise up on the Senate floor and say, 'The time has come to investigate Senator Long?'"

Mrs. Hammond said that the Women's Committee of Louisiana was organized spontaneously by a group of 20 women who learned of "unbelievable corruption and fraud in our electoral system at the Overton inquiry."

She said the organization has now grown to 2,000.

Senator Long charges that Mrs. Hammond's animosity springs from his discharge of her husband, Arthur Hammond, as an attorney for the New Orleans Dock Board.

SAFETY DRIVE LAUNCHED

"Everybody's Safety Drive," a campaign to reduce street and highway accidents, school, home, and industrial hazards, was announced by the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council, yesterday. President William B. Rodgers, of the Safety Council, has named Carl B. Auel, of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, general chairman.

Sixty-five sub-committees are being organized to direct the campaign locally throughout the 13 counties. Concentrated efforts will be made to decrease the number of injuries and fatalities among school children during the three months beginning Saturday. Ten thousand community safety posters are being distributed as part of the educational plan.

Co-operating with the Safety Council are the Better Traffic Committee of Pittsburgh, Automobile clubs, Civic, Service, and Women's Clubs, Schools, Traffic divisions of the state government at Harrisburg, and other interested organizations throughout 13 counties in Western Pennsylvania.

Musicians Begin Business Sessions

Business sessions were begun today in the annual convention of the National Association of Colored Musicians, which opened in the Ebenezer Baptist Church, 2001 Wylie avenue and the Schenley High School Sunday. More than 150 delegates are registered for the meeting.

A children's recital was given in the school yesterday afternoon under the direction of Lillian LeMon, head of the Cosmopolitan School of Music and Fine Arts, Indianapolis. A program of Pittsburgh artists, featuring the Cardwell School of Music, was given last night, under direction of Mary Cardwell Dawson. Jewell Knott Blow, secretary of the Pittsburgh branch of the organization, was chairman.

CHICAGO'S FAIR TO CLOSE ON OCTOBER 31

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—With the announcement that Chicago's new World's Fair, A Century of Progress Exposition, closes its gates forever on October 31, and the advent of real September weather, attendance figures at the exposition are steadily soaring to make new records for all American fairs. Approximately 8,500,000 persons have paid admissions this year, which brings the total for the two years showing to date to nearly 31,000,000.

The management of the Fair has accomplished the purpose desired by President Roosevelt when he requested that the fair operate a second year so that those who could not come last year would be given an opportunity to see it in 1934. This done and with two months of operation left, all activity is being directed to the staging of spectacular special events and shows which will close the exposition in a blaze of glory.

With all indications pointing to the probability that the attendance in September and October will outstrip the combined totals of the first three months of the Fair, exhibitors, concessionaires and the exposition itself are extending every effort to amuse and entertain the huge throngs that daily fill the magic streets of the fair, to an extent even greater than before.

DAWES CONFIRMS CLOSING

In making the announcement that the Fair will have accomplished its aim by closing date and therefore would not reopen, President Rufus C. Dawes said:

"A Century of Progress in its present form will not be in existence next year. If the Fair or any part of it is to be maintained it would have to be by outside sources. The Fair is under contract to the Chicago park board to demolish all buildings the board names, and the board also has the right to name any buildings which it wishes to retain and maintain.

"If you want to see Chicago's great Century of Progress Exposition you must come this summer or fall. It will not be here next year. Come and we shall do our best to make your visit pleasant, interesting and profitable."

BUILDINGS TO FALL

With the closing wreckers will come in and the enchanted city whose streets transported visitors into the mysterious realms of scientific research, art, music, industry, light, color, entertainment, education and commerce will come down. Officials, however, carefully pointed out that demolition will not begin until after the closing on October 31. All exhibits and concessions will remain intact until that time.

The fantastic buildings will be leveled. The Street of Villages with its 15 perfect reproductions of as many foreign lands will be no more. The largest and most beautiful fountain will no longer throw its scintillating spray skyward. The gay cafes will not echo the laughter of happy people. The famed Avenue of Flags will be stripped and the greatest and most beautiful of all major expositions will be history.

ATTENDANCE GAINS

It had been currently rumored that the Fair would remain as a permanent Chicago attraction; that each year henceforth it would reopen on the lake front. Now that people have realized that this is their last opportunity to see it, attendance totals have increased by leaps and bounds.

The great free attractions are constantly choked with people. The twin symphony orchestras, the huge lagoon theater with its water carnivals and circus, the cage of fury, the roads of the world and the multitude of other free shows are playing to capacity crowds.

MUNCY HOME COSTS CUT

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 28.—Secretary of Welfare Alice F. Liveright has written County Commissioners of the state that the cost of caring for inmates at the Muncy Industrial Home for Women is as low as possible.

The letter was written in advance of the commissioners' state convention to be held in Pottsville this week, at which discussion of the costs of operating the state's penal institution for women is scheduled.

Pointing out that the policy at Muncy is more than just to provide for custody of inmates, Mrs. Liveright wrote that per capita costs have been lowered from $2.30 in 1929 to $1.71 during the fiscal period ending May 31, 1934.

Bates College Head Honored by France

The honor is in recognition of the excellence of the French department at Bates and of the reception the college gave Ambassador Paul Claudel in 1930 when he was granted an honorary degree of doctor of laws.

TWO BREATH-TAKING ENDURANCE RUNS LAST WEEK ON SAME TRACK—A DRAMATIC COMPARISON OF SAFETY! READ BOTH LETTERS!
Ab Jenkins praises Firestone tires in toughest endurance run he ever made.
AB JENKINS
Lake Bonneville, Utah
Aug. 18th, 1934
Mr. Harvey S. Firestone, Chairman,
Firestone Tire & Rubber Company,
Akron, Ohio
Dear Mr. Firestone:
Under A.A.A. supervision I have just completed a 5,000 mile endurance run on the hot salt desert at Lake Bonneville, Utah. My car, weighing over 5,000 pounds, traveled the 5,000 miles at an average speed of 127.2 miles per hour, breaking 77 World, International and American Speed Records--all without tire trouble of any kind. Firestone Tires gave an almost unbelievable performance in this run, particularly when you realize that the temperatures were as high as 120 degrees and that the in the course had been filled with crushed rock that was hard as flint and had knife sharp edges.
This endurance run was the severest test to which I have ever subjected any automobile and especially tires. Last year I made a similar run with a car of less power and less speed using tires of another make whose national advertising featured blowout protection. Yet, I had a blowout and made a number of tire changes.
This year I also used Firestone Spark Plugs and a Firestone Extra Power Battery made with your new All-Rubber Separator. Not a Spark Plug failed and the Battery required no service of any kind.
If every car owner knew what my Firestone Tires went through they would appreciate what Gum-Dipping means in strength and heat protection that make Firestone Tires safe from blowouts.
This is the toughest run I have ever made in my twenty-three years of breaking speed records and after a short stay here I am coming East. Hoping to have the pleasure of seeing you then, and with best regards, I remain
Sincerely yours,
Ab Jenkins
Here's PROOF OF SAFETY
THE Proof of leadership is performance! Many claim it, but Firestone proves it. Never before have tires withstood such severe, continuous, grinding torture, breaking 77 World, International and American Speed Records for 3,000 consecutive miles at 127.2 miles per hour. Not a Gum-Dipped cord loosened, not a tread separated, not one blowout.
Hour after hour, on through the scorching heat of the day and inky blackness of the night, with temperatures as high as 120 degrees—breaking record after record for speed, strength, safety and blowout protection—all in a stupendous demonstration of safety performance for the car owners of America.
This remarkable achievement was made possible by Gum-Dipping, the Firestone patented process which saturates and coats every fiber within the cords with liquid rubber—counteracting friction and heat and preventing the tire from heating up and blowing out.
For your holiday trip have the Firestone Service Dealer or Service Store equip your car with Firestone Tires and Spark Plugs, install a Firestone Battery and reline your brakes with Firestone Aquapruf Brake Lining. Protect your life and the lives of your family with the safest tire in the world. Buy them this week before prices go higher.
Wilbur Shaw, using widely advertised competitive tires, had eleven tire failures, preventing him from establishing records worthy of the car he was driving.
WILBUR SHAW
Lake Bonneville, Utah
Aug. 15th, 1934
Mr. Harvey S. Firestone, Chairman,
Firestone Tire & Rubber Company,
Akron, Ohio
Dear Mr. Firestone:
I have just finished a 2,000 mile test run on the salt beds at Lake Bonneville, Utah, driving a stock car of a leading automobile manufacturer. This car was equipped with a nationally known brand of tires which a large manufacturer has recently brought out as the newest development in tire construction and for which their 1934 advertising has made many extravagant testing and performance claims.
With these tires on this run I had eleven tire failures and made two precautionary tire changes. When a right front tire blew out, my car left the track and I was unable to get it under control for a quarter of a mile, leaving a trail of rubber and fabric on the hot salt beds.
After an experience of this kind, I appreciate more than ever what a vital part Firestone Gum-Dipped Tires have played in my success during the fourteen years I have used them on my racing and personal cars. Without them I know that I could never have made the many speed records that I have established.
I understand that you expect to be in California soon and if convenient, I would like to see you.
Very truly yours,
Wilbur Shaw

'TROOPS' RUSH TO HALT 'FOE'S' N. J. INVASION

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—All American troops immediately available were rushed to the front somewhere in North Jersey today to delay the advance of enemy troops as Gen. Douglas MacArthur ordered the first investigation of the nation's first and speediest action to meet the invasion of a powerful "Black" attack.

The theoretical troop movements marked the second day of the mythical "Black" invasion of New Jersey in the Army's soldier-less, bloodless war game maneuvers which will be fought on paper by officers and headquarters staffs.

The first units to be sent to the front were the 1st and 16th Brigades of infantry, with supporting artillery (all on paper). Their orders were to harry the "Black" troops and hamper their advance.

Reports from the imaginary front were that the "Blacks" have pushed inland far enough to establish beach heads for the protection of their landings. The War Department stated that the "Black Army" apparently did not contemplate launching a drive through the state until it had landed enough troops and supplies to insure a successful push through the hurriedly mobilizing American opposition.

Imaginary refugees pouring into North Jersey cities, and into Philadelphia and Wilmington, told stories of the war gone that verified the Army air observations that a large enemy fleet has assembled off the coasts of Delaware and New Jersey and troops are being landed day and night with little or no opposition.

GIRLS ADMIT KIDNAP FAKE

OGDEN, Utah, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Three of four girls who reported last week they had been bound and gagged by three men, were said today by Rial C. Moore, chief of police, to have admitted the story was a falsehood.

Because of the prominence of the girls' families, police were at first inclined to give some thought to the theory of an attempted kidnaping. They told police the men had accosted them at a picnic.

The chief said the girls who had admitted the report was false were Joan Scowcroft, 12; Margo Spargo, 13, and Eldeen Mulcahy, 13, all members of prominent Utah families. The name of the other girl, Joan Lehman, Salt Lake City, was not mentioned in the chief's announcement.

WIFE ACCUSED IN DEATH

NORWICH, Conn., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Cornoner Edward G. McKay has held Louis Goldsmith and Mrs. Helen Castle Ebell, both of Brookline, Mass., criminally responsible for the death of Mrs. Bell's divorced husband, Hans, a well known Boston music teacher.

In a finding made public yesterday after more than a week of investigation, the Coroner said:

"I am satisfied and find that the death of Hans Ebell was caused by the criminal act of Louis Goldsmith and Helen Ebell, in causing said Hans Ebell to be thrown from a motor vehicle."

Ebell died of injuries received at the Milo Light Camp, a summer resort for young people, where his 9-year-old daughter, Alice, was staying in custody of her father.

WAYS OF CRIME KILL TWO

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The ways of crime led two men to their deaths today.

They perished of gasoline fumes in the cellar of a restaurant in Long Island City. Police say the cellar was soaked with the gasoline and that, apparently, the pair planned to set fire to it.

Their bodies were found by Mrs. Mary Patirek who with her husband, Leonard, owns the restaurant. The men were young and poorly dressed.

Big Warship Fleet Urged for France

PARIS, Aug. 28. — (AP.) — A powerful battleship fleet as alone capable of decisive action was sought today by Francis Pietri, minister of the navy, who is vigorously pushing a program modernizing the French fleet.

The French swing toward battleship strength parallels Premier Mussolini's announcement that Italy is planning two new capital ships and continued construction by Germany of her pocket battleships.

William A. White Undergoes Operation

ROCHESTER, Minn., Aug. 27.—(AP.)—William Allen White, Emporia, Kan., publisher and author, was permitted to sit up today after undergoing a minor operation here Saturday.

Sipping orange juice through a straw, the Kansan, in response to an inquiry, said he was enjoying a normal recovery and will be out of the hospital within a few days.

Nature Study Exhibit Preparation for School

Institute Showing Specimens Gathered By Children

With only a few more days until school bells ring, Pittsburgh children can find no better way of spending a morning or afternoon than by visiting the nature study exhibition compiled by members of the Junior Naturalists clubs of Carnegie Museum, which opened yesterday in the classroom of the section of education in the museum.

Here, until Friday at 5 p. m., are displayed the prized collections of nearly 50 boys and girls made in nearby wooded districts during July and August under the field leadership of Dr. Warren R. Witz, instructor in botany at the University of Pittsburgh.

The natural history specimens of butterflies, snakes, leaves and flowers and other things were collected, prepared and mounted by club members ranging in age from 6 to 16 years.

Three "finds" of exceptional interest brightened the two months' field work, Dr. Witz said. They are:

The sight and capture of a Giant Swallowtail Butterfly (Papilio Cresphontes), a native of Florida, known to be troublesome and destructive to orange growers there.

A bat, stuck to sticktites of a Burdock plant, unable to free itself.

The girls in the group, numbering 14 or 15, were surprisingly able to overcome their natural aversion for picking up bugs, worms and garter snakes before the study period was over, Dr. Witz said.

SOVIET CHARGES BRUTALITY

MOSCOW, Aug. 28. — (AP.) — Moscow newspapers charged today that Russian prisoners in Manchukuo were brutally treated in an attempt to force confessions.

Soviet dispatches from Khabarovsk said many Russian employes of the Chinese Eastern Railway who had been arrested were beaten and forced to sign statements that they committed sabotage along the railroads at the direction of the Far-Eastern Red army.

The dispatches said Japanese gendarmes had joined in making the arrests, hitherto made by policemen of Manchukuo. Concern was felt here at the reports Japan had taken a direct hand in the incidents.

Japs Vote Millions For War Equipment

TOKIO, Aug. 27.—(INS.)—The new Japanese budget contains an appropriation of 80,000,000 yen, (approximately $40,000,000) for aviation and 55,000,000 yen for modernization of war equipment, it was learned today.

There will also be an appropriation of 120,000,000 yen for Manchurian expenses, and 16,000,000 yen for the development of new military schemes.

Bodies of Vanished Boys Found at Sea

OCEAN CITY, N. J., Aug. 28.—(INS.)—A two-day search of the ocean today had ended with recovery of the bodies of brothers Royal Hallock, 9, and his brother, Arthur, 6.

The two Yonkers, N. Y., boys, sought by boats and airplanes, were found by lifeguards. The bodies were afloat half a mile apart. The boys disappeared from the beach Saturday.

M'Cann Employes To Hold Boat Ride

The second annual boat ride of the Employes' Association of McCann & Co. will be held tomorrow evening on the steamer Washington. George Milto and Anthony Schrenk, as chairmen, are being aided by Francis P. Kirk, Mildred Sherback, Anthony Aiello and Harry Reese.

TRENCH BATTLE HELD OBSOLETE

ROME, Aug. 28.—(A.P.)—Italian military authorities, calculating the results of the recent Army maneuvers, declared today that trench warfare was obsolete.

This conclusion, they said, results from their observations of the new rapidity in troop movements due partly to the greatly increased use of tanks.

They declared that first onslaught of tanks and fast moving troops would break through a line of trenches and force fighting out into the open.

JAPAN TO QUIT NAVAL PACT

International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Formal decision to notify the signatories of its abrogation of the Washington naval treaty was reached by Japan today, according to an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokio.

The decision was reached at a conference between Premier Okada and his navy and foreign affairs ministers.

The premier and his colleagues also decided upon the instructions to be given Admiral Yamamoto regarding forthcoming naval discussions. It was understood Japan would suggest drastic all-round disarmament, with a warning this nation would build to what the considers necessary defensive levels if adequate steps in this regard are not taken.

NAVY APPROVES 24 SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Apparently taking a cue from President Roosevelt, the Navy General Board has approved a 24-ship construction program for the 1938 fiscal year.

It would include: A 14,500-ton aircraft carrier, two light cruisers, three destroyer leaders, 11 destroyers and six submarines.

Calling for five more vessels than were included originally in the 1916 operating plan, the program would leave only 36 more destroyers and 18 submarines to be built to lift the Navy to the strength permitted by the London Naval Treaty.

On his recent cruise aboard the cruiser Houston to Pacific waters, Roosevelt told the crew the Navy would be brought to treaty power in three or four years. Under the Vinson Act authorizing treaty strength construction, the Navy contemplated laying down in 1920 and completing in 1942 the final recognized ships.

RADIATOR DENT TRAPS DRIVER

William Moody III, Negro of 130 East Jefferson street, was to be turned over to the Coroner today in connection with the death of Dominico Ierardino, 38, a Mexican, of 32 Bridge street, Sharpsburg, who fell or was thrown from an automobile in Shore avenue north, Ohio, early Sunday.

The victim was identified late yesterday through fingerprints taken when he was arrested on a disturbing charge in 1931. Detectives Frank Cowley and Edward Dunlap said.

Moody, lured through his home together and a dent in the radiator of his automobile, was arrested at his home a few hours later. Moody said the man fell out of the machine as they rounded a curve, according to Scanlon and Cowley, but admitted driving away when three men approached. One of the men hurled a brick, denting the radiator.

Sleepers Test London Noise Ban! Okay!

International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 28. — Londoners awoke from a record sleep today after the first night of "the great silence." By order of the minister of transport no horns sounded and no noisy exhausts roused the night to explosion.

The experiment was voted a success by authorities. Motorists and pedestrians were not so sure.

The city seemed strangely subdued as drivers "felt" their way past crossings by switching headlights on and off instead of sounding horns.

Traffic was slowed down 10 per cent and most pedestrians appeared fearful to risk crossing despite the mobilization of 3,000 extra police. The experiment will be continued for a week.

Freedom of 'King' From Jail Sought

MADRID, Spain, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Luis Barrera, attorney for "King Boris I," today moved to get the pretender to the Bulgarian throne out of jail.

Barrera petitioned the courts for Boris' early trial on charges of violating the vagabond law or for dismissal of the charges.

NUDE MURDER CLUE TRACED

SAN MATEO, Cal., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Unable so far to identify the nude body of a woman found in the hills west of here Monday, police returned today to their field and apparently one clue to identification, the woman's dental work.

Authorities were equally as mystified concerning the cause of death of the woman, who apparently was killed two months ago.

Belief that the woman might have been Nelly Barnes, known also as Nelly Hollister, fan dancer, was dispelled last night when Miss Barnes returned to the home of friends in Berkeley.

Here's good news for "Naturally Skinny" folks who can't seem to add an ounce no matter what they eat. A new way has been found to add flattering pounds of firmness, solid flesh and fill out those ugly, scrawny hollows even on men and women who have been underweight for years. 2 to 5 lbs. in 1 week guaranteed—12 to 15 lbs. in a few weeks! No physician.

This new discovery called Kelp-a-Malt, now available in tasty tablets, offers you almost all the vitally essential food minerals in highly concentrated form. These minerals, so necessary to the digestion of fats and starches—the weight former elements in your daily diet—include a rich supply of precious FOOD IODINE.

Kelp-a-Malt's FOOD IODINE soothes the internal glands which control assimilation, the process of converting digested food into firm, solid flesh. If Kelp-a-Malt tablets contain more FOOD IODINE than 1000 lbs. of spinach, 1000 lbs. of beef, 100 lbs. of lettuce.

Try Kelp-a-Malt for a while—look and notice the difference—how much better you sleep, how your stomach improves, how ordinary stomach distress vanishes. What's the chance and chemo finds 60 of our usual factories every month appear. Kelp-a-Malt is prescribed and used by physicians. Fine for children, too! Remember the name Kelp-a-Malt, the original kelp and malt tablets. Nothing like them, so do not accept substitutes. Try Kelp-a-Malt. If you don't gain at least 5 lbs. in 3 weeks, the trial is free. The tablets size (about 3 to 5 times the size of ordinary tablets) but little.

GULF TORNADO ABATING IN TEXAS

FREEPORT, Tex., Aug. 28.—(AP)—A tropical gale which lashed this section of the Texas Gulf coast for 24 hours with high winds and torrential rains abated today. No deaths were reported. The storm apparently headed inland.

From midnight until 3 a. m., the barometer stood at 29.62 and the wind velocity ranged from 65 to 75 miles. Coast Guardsmen estimated. At 4 a. m., the barometer had climbed to 29.72.

RESIDENTS FLEE

The wind, which blew out of the North yesterday shifted to the north-northeast and blew the water, keeping the tide to a minimum. For that reason highway 16, inland to Angleton and Houston, was open throughout the storm. In previous storms the road almost invariably has been inundated.

Warned by past storms, Freeport citizens evacuated the town by special train, special buses and by private cars. Not more than 50 of the 3,500 population remained here through the night, but today others began to return.

STICK TO TELEPHONES

Both Freeport telephone operators left on the special train yesterday but Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hemmer, of Houston, kept the switchboard open throughout the night. Hemmer is a toll engineer for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company at Houston, and Mrs. Hemmer formerly operated a switchboard.

The Hemmers, with their four children, ranging from one year to the age of 8, were aboard their 28-foot cabin cruiser when the storm struck. Their power failed and the boat started drifting down the channel toward the open Gulf.

Coast guardsmen managed to connect with the boat and towed it back to a dock where the Hemmers were landed. Throughout the night, while Mr. and Mrs. Hemmer, clad only in bathing suits, operated the telephone switchboard, the four children slept in an adjoining room.

Two Killed as Train Upsets in Washout

GREENVILLE, S. C., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Two trainmen were instantly killed and another seriously injured when seven cars of a 22-car Southern freight overturned into a washout two miles south of Piedmont early today.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

Rayburn - Bankhead Combination May Upset Byrns

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Certain private negotiations now are under way which may make the election of Mr. Byrns to the speakership less certain than anytime. Including Mr. Byrns, has been predicting.

Paul Mallon

All that can be said about it now is that the two other contestants (Messrs. Rayburn and Bankhead) are not stepping on each other in the backstage scramble.

Indeed, there are reasons for believing Messrs. Rayburn and Bankhead will ultimately pool their resources so that one will become speaker and the other floor leader of the House. That purpose will naturally be denied now, and forever hereafter, up to the hour of the vote. However, it is such a natural potential alliance that it can hardly be avoided.

The only difficult thing about it is to find some suitable promotion for Byrns, who commands the respect of all. A major federal appointment might help to solve that angle.

DOUBTS

There are several other inner factors in the situation. The Rainey-Byrns alliance was successful last time because it controlled the one-termers who rode into the House on the Roosevelt election wave. There are 25 to 40 of them, mostly from states which now have been de-districted. They have no more chance of coming back to Congress next term than you have of being elected President. Their departure will hurt Byrns more than his two opponents.

On the other hand, Byrns has a good chance of lining up a northern or eastern Democrat for floor leader on his slate. Then his ally can raise a cry about the South trying to hog the posts of honor.

It is a peculiar thing that the House has sometimes chosen its leaders, not for what they are, but for where they come from. At any rate, the fight this time will be closer than you suspect.

RAILROADS

Wall street got a hot tip last week that the government is going to do something for the railroads. It was sufficiently strong to send rail prices up, but no one seemed to have any definite idea of exactly what the administration had in mind.

The inside on that is the administration is planning to take up energetically the old Eastman report for regulation of highway and waterway rate competition. This report was sent to the last session of Congress and immediately forgotten.

You will unquestionably see President Roosevelt breathe new life into it before the first of the year. That means legislation along that line may be expected within a year.

SOVIET DEBT

The outlook for the Russian debt settlement is not as dismal as it is being painted.

Every insider knows the ultimate settlement will have to be a hard bargain struck between the two countries. In such bargaining, the first few offers are mere feelers. In the last offer, the Russians really got down to business. They contend they went half-way. While the State Department is insisting they will have to come further than that, the bargainers are actually getting near a settlement.

Both sides want it. It is only a question of time.

HITLER

All the news from Germany fails to say what Mr. Thyssen thinks. He is the backstage industrial dictator who pulls the strings which make Hitler go. There have been rumors that he has decided Hitler is more of a liability now than an asset. If so, that would mean Der Fuehrer's days are numbered. But there is no real basis for knowing whether the rumors have any basis.

FAR EAST

The current Russian-Japanese crisis probably will not be the last one. There have been dozens of them before. There should be a few more before the fighting begins.

Far Eastern officials and unofficials here cannot get very excited about the present situation. The way they have it figured out is this:

There are a lot of large tanks of diplomatic gasoline in the Far East. Both the Japanese and Russians are playing with matches. At any time, an unascertainable leak may develop and send them both sky high. Then again, they may play on this way for years without an explosion. They themselves, certainly do not want one.

The same trite, but accurate, metaphor may be applied to Europe.

(Copyright, 1934, by Paul Mallon)

HAVING FIGURED THAT PINCHOT WILL TAKE PROGRESSIVE VOTES FROM DAVE REED AND NEW DEAL VOTES FROM DEMOCRATIC GUFFEY, HE FIGURES THAT GUFFEY WILL SPLIT THE NEW DEAL VOTES OF BOTH PINCHOT AND REED, WHILE REED WILL GET CONSERVATIVES FROM BOTH GUFFEY AND PINCHOT, ALL OF WHICH GOES TO INDICATE THAT THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN PENNSYLVANIA IS TRAVELING IN CIRCLES AND EVERYONE IS HOPELESSLY LOST IN NAMING THE WINNER, AND PENNSYLVANIA REMAINS IN THE DOUBTFUL COLUMN.

WALSH SEEKING $538 REFUND

An ordinance to pay former Supt. of Police Peter P. Walsh $538 for money which he says he expended in 1931 out of his own pocket for police service has been introduced in City Council.

According to Walsh's statement, he used money from the police badge fund to meet some unusual expenses and then reimbursed the fund out of his own pocket.

He said that among the payments was one of $400 to former City Detective Walter C. Monaghan for special investigations and outside help in the Manchester and Perry Bank holdups.

Other payments for special investigations or for the return of prisoners to Pittsburgh were listed to Officer C. J. Sweeney, Mrs. Nell McDonnell and Mrs. Ida Rickenbrode, policewomen; Officer John Mazza and former Inspector Harry J. Mellon.

Wife Beater Shot In Escape Attempt

LANSDOWNE, Pa., Aug. 28.—(INS)—Joseph Valentine, 31, of Stonehurst Hills, was critically wounded early today when he attempted to make a break for liberty after being sentenced to 10 days in jail for assault and battery on his wife, Lillian, 30.

Air Race Pilot Hit by Street Car

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28.—(AP)—One contestant was out in the national air races today when Isadore Graf, 29, of Lemont, Ill., was struck by a street car in suburban Lakewood as he sought direction to the airport.

Graf was using his special racing ship on a trailer from his home in Illinois. When he got out of his automobile to look at a sign post, the street car struck him.

FOLLIES BEAUTY BEATS DEATH IN RACE

International News Service

MARQUETTE, Mich., Aug. 28.—Dorothy Duey, former 'Follies' beauty, had won a strange race to plane, train and automobile today with death.

She marked the side of her husband, Louis Grarevort Kaufman, Jr., 28, son of a multi-millionaire, social register family in Manhattan, scarcely 12 hours before he died of pneumonia and erased their estrangement in a deathbed reconciliation.

DEATH BRINGS PEACE

The resulting sorrow which followed young Kaufman's death reunited her with his wealthy father, the former president of the Chatham-Phenix National Bank of New York. The Kaufman family had so disapproved of Louis' marriage to the musical comedy star that they permitted his name to be erased from the social register, friends said.

The estrangement which sent him to Marquette four months ago from Manhattan, and left behind not only his wife but also an 18-month-old daughter, was never fully explained, but a reconciliation with his parents was effected. Three days ago he entered St. Luke's Hospital here.

CROSS-COUNTRY DASH

In a tearful dash across the country from New York, Miss Dilley used a plane part way, a train from Chicago, and a car at Marquette after she learned her husband was critically ill and not expected to live. At the bedside when she arrived were the senior Kaufmanns, and his sister, Joan Biddle (Mrs. George Dexel Biddle) of Philadelphia.

The junior Kaufman is also survived by three other sisters, Juliet, 21; Marie Louise, 18, and Jane, 13, as well as two brothers, Graverot, Y., 35, and Young, 30. Funeral plans could not be learned today as the family was in seclusion at their estate "Granot Loma" 25 miles north of here.

Benswanger Here Plays Chimes in Chicago

Tapping out "America" on a specially constructed keyboard connected to the keys of a Western Union telegraph typewriter in the Chamber of Commerce Building here, Benswanger twice played the patriotic air on the distant 23-bell carillon.

The first playing, at 10:15 was a feature of the Science Theater scientific demonstration staged by the telegraph company. Again at 1 a. m. today Benswanger sounded the many tongued voice of the carillon, broadcasting the chimes from coast to coast as a "sign-off" program for the Columbia Broadcasting Company.

The odd musical feat is accomplished with an instrument known as a "Telemusiron," which mechanically interprets the electrical impulses transmitted by the telegraphic typewriter.

The invention was perfected by Western Union company engineers.

Dashing Firemen Find 'Smoke' Only Dust

DENVER, Col., Aug. 28.—Persons passing St. Dominic's School saw what they thought were clouds of smoke pouring from the steeple and turned in fire alarms.

Firemen arrived and dashed up ladders. But found no fire. The supposed smoke was dust, stirred up by the janitor's broom.

He yelled an explanation just in time to keep from getting soaked.

Forest Fires Claim Fifth Life in West

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The toll among men fighting western forest fires was increased to five today with the death of John Everitt, supervisor of the Mt. Shasta national forest in California.

Scouting a fire which started from an electrical storm Sunday, he was trapped when the flames leaped a fire line.

Flames Destroy Crops of Farmer

NEW KENSINGTON, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Several months of summer toil in his oats and wheat fields are wasted for Frank Widmer. While workmen were threshing the wheat yesterday, dust exploded and caused a fire which destroyed the barn and its contents, resulting in loss estimated by Widmer at $7,000.

Author of Book On Socialism Dies

A native of Pennsylvania, Tellsworth had lived in Minnesota since 1879, serving for 20 years as general claim agent for the Minneapolis Street Railway.

YOUTH RENEWS FIGHT AGAINST 'GAS DOOM'

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 28.—(AP)—A chance that a jury will consider favorably his plea for mercy appeared today to be the only hope of Walter Reppin, Newark, N. J., youth, of escaping death in Colorado's lethal gas chamber, as he went on trial for murder a second time.

Admitting his guilt, Reppin's attorneys hoped to convince the jury he is mentally deficient and, because of his age, 19, should be spared the death penalty. They hoped at least to obtain him a life sentence or a commitment to the state insane asylum.

UNIQUE CASE

It is a case unique in Colorado legal history. Never before has the State Supreme Court granted a defendant a new trial after a recorded plea of guilty to a murder charge.

Reppin, accused of the killing of Vincent Regan, Colorado Springs taxi driver and college student in a holdup last fall, pleaded guilty when first tried and after trial was sentenced to be the first victim of the new gas chamber which supplanted the gallows.

GUILT PLEA STANDS

Three days before he was scheduled to die last January two Denver attorneys, Philip Hornbein and David Rosner, volunteered to appeal his case to the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court ordered a new trial on the grounds that evidence had been presented the jury of "irrelevant offenses of the defendant."

District Judge Arthur Cornforth, who presided at the retrial, which opened today, ruled that Reppin's original plea of guilty must stand and that the only duty the jury will perform will be to decide what penalty shall be inflicted.

SOMETHING NEW IN A SCHOOL GIRL'S FROCK

In a mixed gray and navy blue wool with a white guimpe, or in a brown and beige mixture with a cream colored one, it makes a perfect frock and an extremely serviceable outfit. Make several guimpes so one will always be fresh.

Famous European Composer-Conductor Duquesne's New Professor of Music

Proposes to Spend Next 30 Years Making Pittsburgh and the Whole of America Bruckner-Conscious

Dr. Felix Maria Gatz, famous European musician, composer, conductor and author, will join the faculty of Duquesne University this fall, it was announced today by the Very Rev. J. J. Callahan, president. He will be professor of music and general aesthetics and will teach the history of music and music aesthetics.

Born in Germany in 1892, Dr. Gatz studied music under Arthur Nikisch, a Hungarian by birth, and regarded the greatest European conductor of his time. He studied philosophy under Georg Simmel, professor at the University of Berlin, and Hugo Munsterberg, celebrated philosopher of Harvard University, who in 1910 was a guest professor in Berlin.

As an aesthetician, Dr. Gatz was active in various academies in Germany and Austria and lectured as a professor of musical aesthetics at the State Academy of Music in Vienna, where Johannes Brahms and Anton Bruckner had once been.

Since 1918, Dr. Gatz has conducted concerts with the most renowned Austrian, German and Hungarian orchestras, and for 10 years he headed the world famous Philharmonic Orchestra in Berlin. While there Prof. Gatz, in conjunction with Nikisch, established a Bruckner Society and a Bruckner Choir to stimulate interest in the symphonies, masses and the Te Deum of Anton Bruckner, whom Gatz and others believe ranks with Beethoven, Brahms, Wagner, Mozart and Haydn among the immortal composers.

Besides teaching at Duquesne University and writing a book on general aesthetics, Dr. Gatz will introduce the works of Bruckner to Pittsburgh and America. He said:

"I feel that during the last 10 years, the Bruckner Society has so firmly entrenched a love for the beloved Austrian composer in the hearts of most European music lovers, that my presence there was no longer needed. I should like to spend the next 30 years of my life in America propagating Bruckner's nine immortal symphonies, his three wonderful masses for choir, soli and orchestra and his overwhelming Te Deum. When I am 80 years old I should like to go to South America and carry Bruckner there."

Although in Pittsburgh only two days, Dr. Gatz is already impressed with "the town of rivers" which reminds him of Heidelberg, he says.

'ARMY' SPLIT ON LEADER

International News Service.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—Unable to agree upon a successor to Gen. Edward J. Higgins, supreme commander, who is to retire due to bad health, the high council of the Salvation Army adjourned today until tomorrow.

Although the council met in secret, it was learned there was dissension in the ranks and it was predicted a difficult time would result from effort of the council, composed of 47 delegates from all parts of the world. Thirty votes are necessary to elect.

There was no indication of the strength shown by the various leading candidates, who include Commander Evangeline Booth, head of the army in the United States.

Steals Truck Ride, Boy Injured in Fall

Alexander Boniface, 13, of 130 West Seventh avenue, Homestead, was in Homestead Hospital today with injuries suffered when he fell from the rear of a coal truck on which, police say, he was stealing a ride late yesterday in West Eighth avenue, West Homestead. Smith Jones, of New Homestead, the driver, told police he did not know the boy was riding on his truck.

SHIP TO HUNT LOST PRIEST

CHURCHILL, Man., Aug. 28.—(AP)—Final preparations were being made today for the sailing of the Pius XI, the Roman Catholic supply ship which may bring the Rev. H. N. Bazyn out of the distant wilderness where he has been stranded for four years.

Food and other supplies were being loaded onto the ship which will make a score of calls before returning to this port. But the big interest in the venture surrounds the finding of Father Bazyn.

Four years ago Father Bazyn started from Pond Inlet, on the far northeast coast of Baffin Land, and made his way on foot toward Igolook, 400 miles to the southwest, where he has been ministering to the Eskimos. Since then he has lived off the land and has not seen a white man.

Igloolik is 1,140 miles northeast of here, and only small and staunch ships may attempt the passage. The Rev. Father Emanuel Duplain, in charge of the relief ship, said there was a prospect he would be caught in the ice for the winter. Mariners wished him good luck, but doubted if he could succeed in his venture so late in the season.

Dr. Beattie Favors School Drama Use

Dr. A. W. Beattie, superintendent of schools in Ben Avon, home from a vacation in Europe, today said the possibilities of the use of drama in public schools is unlimited. He was impressed by the keen interest in dramatic art in England, particularly in Cambridge University, where he spent several weeks.

PICCARD BOYS TO MISS FLIGHT

International News Service.

DETROIT, Aug. 28.—John, Paul and Donald Piccard have arrived here from a northern Michigan camp to see their parents, Dr. and Mrs. Jean Piccard, take off for a flight to the stratosphere.

John, 14, the eldest, gave a breathless interview. He said:

"Gee, I hope it won't be more'n a day or two because we've got to go down to Wilmington, Del., to school. And we want to see the takeoff."

The probability is, attaches of the Ford Airport pointed out, that the big stratosphere balloon will not be ready for an ascent before early next month—but the young Piccards were not told that.

PHILATELISTS OPEN MEET

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 28.—(AP)—The nation's stamp fanciers gathered today for the forty-ninth annual convention of the American Philatelic Society and fanned their eyes on an exhibition of 14 frames of rare stamps, assembled by private collectors at the society's invitation and valued at $500,000.

City police and private detectives mounted a night and day guard over the exhibit.

Representatives of the United States Postoffice Department placed on sale a souvenir Mt. Rainier stamp issue of 240,000 sheets.

After Clinton B. Ellenberger, third assistant postmaster general, dropped ceremoniously of the first six-stamp imperforate sheets, the rest were dispersed by nine government clerks at specially constructed booths in the exhibition rooms of the steel pier. About 30,000 advance orders had been received before the sale began.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Samuel Insull's legal forces are leaving no stones unturned to save the deposed utilities magnate from conviction.

Even before his trial, the groundwork for an appeal from possible conviction was being laid.

This was started yesterday when exceptions were filed to the county action in refusing to quash the indictment and to grant a separate trial.

CO-ED SLAYING TRIAL SET

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Harold Taylor, indicted for the slaying of Miss Pa. New, Howard College co-ed, will face trial for the murder in Circuit Court here September 17, less than a month after the girl accompanied him on an automobile ride from which she did not return alive.

Taylor, told of the first degree murder indictment in his cell in County Jail, said:

"I am innocent."

Taylor's indictment came with unexpected rapidity. The grand jury, called into special session for the sole purpose of considering the evidence gathered by authorities in the girl's slaying, heard 13 witnesses, drew up the indictment and reported its findings in six hours.

Witnesses included most of the officers who took leading parts in the investigation, A. B. Cain, the slain girl's sweetheart; Mrs. Lon New, who lost her only child when Faye died of two knife wounds in the throat in a ditch, and Coroner Gip M. Evans, who found in his inquest that Faye died in a fight for her honor.

The indictment, under which Taylor is held without bond, left unsolved several angles of the mystery which authorities have sought in vain to solve since the girl's body was found by a volunteer searcher Wednesday. One of these is the disposition made of the death instrument.

Slayer of Mother Denied New Trial

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Superior Judge Schmidt has denied a new trial to Louis R. Payne, 21, convicted of the murder of his mother and brother.

Judge Schmidt also denied a motion for the dismissal of his order setting September 11 as the date for a rehearing of Payne's sanity plea.

LEARN FROM Dr. Florence E. Meier, able young lady scientist of the Smithsonian Institution, that you live miraculously protected from "eight killer rays."

The sun's "killer rays," all of them of the "ultra-violet" class, above the violet as it appears in our spectrum, bombard the earth incessantly, and would wipe human beings off the earth were it not for a thin layer of ozone, completely surrounding the earth, like an army belt, high up in our atmosphere. You might as well add to your nightly prayer:

"And bless that layer of ozone."

It keeps out or deadens the worst of the rays, as dark glasses keep the sun from hurting your eyes.

THE MOST DEADLY of the eight "killers" comes through in quantities just sufficient to render great service, without destroying us. It keeps down the growth of the "green algae," tiny, one-celled plants that grow in streams. If that killer ray did not hold them back the algae would clog all the streams of the world, as the "water hyacinth" clogs streams in Florida.

Unrestricted, the algae would have caused the earth to be flooded, and human life here might have been impossible, or limited to boats and high mountain tops.

On the other hand, it is fortunate for the earth, as we know it, that the algae were allowed to develop in moderation.

THESE RAYS are interestingly small, each varrying in length between 2,000 and 3,000 "angstrom units."

An angstrom unit, as you know, is one ten millionth of a millimeter, and a millimeter is one thousandth part of a meter, so an angstrom is a short "unit."

NEXT FRIDAY begins the month with an "R," and fish dealers are repainting their signs: "Oysters R In Season."

In New York city alone, ten thousand professional oyster openers gather for the season's work, must each be "an eight or ten barrel man," able to open six thousand oysters in eight hours.

One "opener," recently dead, had opened 30,000,000 oysters. The oyster is at its best between three and five years of age. Sometimes it is twelve inches long. Some one has said that the first man who ate a raw oyster was brave. Oysters are good for you, raw or cooked; plenty of vitamins in 'em.

INDEPENDENTS JOIN WAR ON STEEDLE

prove some sort of a vindication for his conviction on the Federal Court upon ballot fraud charges, then he should first rather secure his vindication in the same court, instead of at the polls.

"His continued presence on the Republican ticket shows a lack of sympathy and understanding of the principles which must guide the Republican party in the future.

"In Senator David A. Reed and William A. Schnader, the Republican party has two men heading its ticket for the United States Senate and Governor of Pennsylvania who merit and will receive the support of the thinking people of all of this state.

GUFFEY ASSAILED

"The Guffey-Lawrence type of Democratic politics which has produced chaos in the city administration must not be permitted to extend to the United States Senate or the state capital.

"Nothing should be allowed to exist in the ranks of the Republican party which might in the slightest way jeopardize a party victory this fall. Dr. Steedle's presence on the party ticket might do that to some extent, judging from expressions of party leaders in his district, and for that reason surely he must either withdraw or be denied the support of all really loyal Republicans."

(Republican County Chairman Coleman's letter notifying Dr. Steedle of the Republican party's refusal to support him will be found in Mark Shields' column on this page.)

POLITICS :: By Mark Shields

Repercussions Expected To Follow Repudiation

The repudiation by Republican County Chairman William H. Coleman of Representative Joseph G. Steedle as a candidate for re-election to the Legislature from the Twelfth District is certain to have dynamiting repercussions in organization politics in Allegheny County.

Mr. Steedle

Mr. Coleman took his advanced and unprecedented position in the face of the favor of Senator James J. Coyne toward Steedle. The situation takes on added interest because it was Coyne who was principally responsible for the re-election of Coleman as county chairman when there was a drumfire among independents—who lacked either the courage or the intelligence to go to the mat on a fight—against his continuance as head of the party.

The outcome of the Coleman repudiation of Steedle is certain to be a state of war between Coleman and Coyne. The Senator has had in Steedle an unquestioning floor leader in the House, who has managed in that branch of the Legislature the things which the Senator handled in the Senate. He is not of a nature to accept a rebuff such as that administered by Coleman without reprisal.

This reprisal well may take the form of retaliation against other candidates whose friends have been responsible for Coleman's decision that "I cannot, in good conscience, ask the public give you support," the words he used in telling Steedle that the Republican county committee would not aid him.

Coleman himself recognized this danger when he said that his statement of last week, that he would not urge cutting of the ticket, was actuated more by fear of what would happen to other candidates than what would happen to Steedle. Already there are threats from friends of Steedle that in the Twelfth District the veteran Republican and three Demderats will be elected. That means that Steedle's friends would back three Democrats rather than his Republican running mates.

Spectacle Unknown In County Politics

The spectacle of a Republican county chairman repudiating a Republican candidate for state office is unknown in the history of Allegheny County.

Parenthetically, the first man in public life to repdiate Steedle was a McKeesporter, as is Mr. Coleman. This occurred last week when the Republican county officials met with Mr. Coleman to plan the campaign strategy. At that time County Commissioner William D. Mansfield averred that Steedle should not receive Republican support because of his conviction in Federal Court.

The Steedle episode leaves Coleman in somewhat of an ambiguous position. He is supposed to represent the regulars, the Coyne wing of which now probably will desert him. Attorney General William A. Schnader has seen fit to select William B. McFall as chairman of an independent committee to manage his campaign, and says this committee must act as the "front" for his fight.

Under the circumstances, the action of Mr. Coleman yesterday takes on an added courage, and is an evidence of his disinclination to be connected with anything which savors of the dubious in politics.

In a letter to Steedle closely paralleling his statement of yesterday Coleman, already aware that Steedle again had refused to withdraw, said:

Coleman's Letter To Steedle

"I am perturbed over your decision not to withdraw from the Republican ticket as a candidate for Representative in the General Assembly. Since conferring with you on Thursday last, I have given thoughtful consideration to your position and the reasons you advanced as to why you should not withdraw. I am compelled to say that I cannot agree with your conclusion.

"It is difficult for one to fairly judge his own case. Many will agree that during the period you are charged with the commission of a criminal offense and pending trial of the charges you were justified in presenting your name to the Republican voters of your district. This on the well-established legal principle, that one accused of crime is presumed to be innocent until he has been proven guilty.

"But after a jury has passed on the charges and rendered a verdict of guilty and sentence has been imposed on the verdict an entirely different situation arises and the burden then rests on the accused to satisfy the public that he was wrongfully convicted.

"As the situation presents itself you stand convicted of a criminal offense that involves the purity of the ballot, and unless, and until, that conviction is set aside you are not justified in seeking re-election and should withdraw. If you insist under these circumstances in having your name remain on the ballot, your action can result only in injury to your party and all of its candidates.

"Your situation presents a grave question which must be squarely met and decisively answered. I fully realize the danger to other candidates in the cutting of the ticket, but, mindful of this danger, I cannot in good conscience ask the voters to give you support.

"With no feeling of personal antagonism but in the performance of a public duty I must unequivocally declare my opposition to your continuing as a candidate."

RAY SENTENCED IN VOTE FRAUD

A sentence of four months in the county jail and a $1 fine were imposed upon Wallace Ray, of 1135 Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, employe of the State Inheritance Tax Bureau, by Federal Judge R. M. Gibson today.

Ray was convicted last May 24 along with Dr. Joseph G. Steedle, McKees Rocks legislator, and three others on charges of vote frauds in the 1932 congressional elections.

Ray was released on a $3,500 bond pending an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals.

He was the last of the defendants to be sentenced, the others having been sentenced on August 7. Steedle and Justice of the Peace James J. Westwood, of Stowe Township, were given sentences of two years.

Thomas Saunders, chief of police of Stowe Township, and Justice of the Peace Paul N. Franks, of Scott Township, each was sentenced to four months and $1 fine. Seven others were acquitted.

MAPPING JOBS FOR 20,000

Within the next few weeks between 20,000 and 30,000 workers will be employed under the new government job-giving program which goes into effect Saturday, Philip H. Lantz, county relief works division administrator, said today. Lantz yesterday met with Controller Thomas L. Evans, of Harrisburg, who came to Pittsburgh to inspect the accounting system being set up here in preparation for the new work.

When the new program begins work will be taken up where it was left off a week ago by the stopping of RWD projects, Lantz said. Workers laid off at that time will be given preference, he added.

County taxes are now 18½ mills including the Poor Board's levy.

INCREASE LOOMS

Miller said the poor millage would be upped 1 mill for each $700,000 raised, on the basis of 100 per cent collections.

Total relief expenditures for the county—including Pittsburgh—now range about $1,400,000 monthly. The county's share is about $4 for each $5 spent in Pittsburgh. This would necessitate the 10-mill increase in poor tax.

Relief bonds, to spread the cost over a long period, may not be legally possible, Miller said. Such a bond issue must be approved by the County Commissioners.

George P. Mills, director of the Allegheny County Emergency Relief Association, declared that $270,000 is being spent each week for food and milk alone in this county, and that the entire relief bill each month is well over $1,400,000. This, he pointed out, does not include thousands of dollars spent every 30 days by the private relief organizations.

Gov. Pinchot refused to comment on the stand apparently taken by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. He declared he intended to confer with Relief Administrator Hopkins in Washington.

FUNDS TO BE RAISED

And if the stand taken by the federal government is carried out, it means that the money needed for the emergency relief here will have to be raised by City Council and the Poor Board.

Local political units would need only to furnish the money until the regular session of the Legislature in January. This would make the total about $7,000,000 and carry the emergency over until the first of February.

The City of Pittsburgh would be able to carry its share of the burden, but it would just about end its borrowing power. Council has available, without a vote of the citizens, borrowing power amounting to only $4,765,553. In addition there is an unexpended public welfare relief bond issue of $1,700,000, part of a $2,500,000 issue that has slowly been expended for relief items not covered by the state and national government.

BORROWING POWER

The city's total borrowing power with a vote of the people is $26,121,491. This amount also takes advantage of a ruling by the Law Department that the city may take credit for two-thirds of its delinquent taxes in calculating its borrowing margin.

Mae Spots Gift Swap And 'Does She Burn Up'

Jeweler Claims Error

MAE WEST . . . SHE KNOWS HER DIAMONDS

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Mae West, whose latest production, "It Ain't No Sin," bore the brunt of the censorship storm and wound up remodeled and retitled, "Belle of the Nineties," has passed around $15,000 in presents to those who helped make and remake it, it was disclosed at her studio today.

One of the gifts, a $1,000 diamond ring, was instrumental in proving that the actress knows her jewels. The ring was too small for the recipient, and he left it at a jeweler's to have it made larger.

Miss West saw him wearing it at the studio and became infuriated. The original blue-white sparkler had been replaced by a yellow diamond. In 15 minutes she was demanding how it happened and the jeweler insisted it was a mistake.

He himself was the victim of a "frameup."

MUSICIAN HELD IN EXTORTION

International News Service.

DENVER, Aug. 28.—Denver social and cultural circles were stunned today with news of the arrest of Freeman H. Talbot, former musical director of radio station KOA and an acknowledged leader in the musical and business life of the city, for investigation in connection with a plot to extort $4,000 from John T. Fitzell.

Talbot and Fitzell, a prominent business man, were close friends.

Postal Inspector Roy Nelson, after questioning Talbot nearly three hours, said:

"We have more evidence than we need."

Fitzell received a letter demanding the money and saying "a well known Denver business man" would call for it.

Talbot is said to have told police

Let's crack this subject of car buying WIDE OPEN

..again we urge you "DON'T BUY ANY CAR TOO HURRIEDLY"

You experienced car buyers know how well it pays to look around, drive several makes of cars and compare before you sign an order.

Yet even you, if you aren't watchful, may find yourself lured by "super-salesmanship" into a buy that you may regret. You may find that, by looking a little further, you could have bought a good deal more for the same money.

That's why Hudson and Terraplane dealers say to you: "Don't buy any car too hurriedly." We want you to be sure you're right, because then you're sure to be satisfied. And that's why the thousands of buyers of this year's Hudsons and Terraplanes are the most enthusiastic group of owners in Hudson's entire history. Can we prove that? Ask any one of them! They looked before they bought.

We will gladly give you facts about Hudson and Terraplane. Performance? We can show you the longest list of official AAA records held by any cars. Then you drive and judge for yourself. Ruggedness? Economy? Long life? You can see sworn affidavits of owners, and talk to as many as you like. Get facts like these, then get them about other cars—if you can.

Come in and let us help you get the facts you need before you decide.

My 1934 Terraplane has proven most satisfactory, both from an economical as well as from a serviceable standpoint. Its pep and durability are amazing. For hill climbing it has no superior. My utmost regards for the Terraplane.—W. W. THAWLEY, Stonehurst, Pa.

I tried several makes of cars and the one that was most appealing in every respect was the Hudson. Also, Hudson gives a lot more car for your money.—MRS. MAY HAINES, Buffalo, N. Y.

WE LOOKED AT THE OTHERS BEFORE WE BOUGHT

After a good many years of straddling suitcases and bundles, I feel like cheering every time I use that great big rear luggage compartment in my Terraplane. Even if it hadn't beaten all the other cars I looked at in every other way, that would have sold me.—R. A. LITTLE, Pittsburgh, Pa.

I do a great many miles in my car and do them fast, and never yet has my Terraplane failed to respond when called upon. Further, your interest in my satisfaction has been unusual.—QUINN SHAUGHNESSY, Washington, D. C.

MORGENTHAU :-: 'Drake's Folly' Presented :-: ON AIR

Country's Finances Topic

Into every corner of the nation, coast-to-coast NBC and CBS networks tonight will carry the official report of the United States' financial status, presented by Secretary of the Treasury Henry W. Morgenthau, Jr.

Marking Secretary Morgenthau's first public address since taking office as a member of the Roosevelt cabinet last November, the broadcast is scheduled for 15 minutes at 9 p. m.

Within that brief time the man who succeeded the late William H. Woodin is expected to picture our financial condition and review important monetary developments of the past few months.

His address, entitled "The Monetary Situation," will be carried here by both WCAE and WJAS.

* * *

Complementing the NBC pickup yesterday of Secretary of the Interior Ickes' address commemorating the world's first successful oil drilling at Titusville 75 years ago will be a dramatization of the famed event, staged by an oil company as one of its weekly offerings, tonight at 9:30.

Col. Drake, the celebrated oil pioneer, who turned a deaf ear to jeers to accomplish his goal, will be portrayed by Julian Noa, prominent stage star, with Arthur Allen and Parker Fennelly supporting.

Entitled "Drake's Folly," the sketch is to be wafted locally by WCAE, which tonight forgoes usual local billings in view of intense local interest.

HOW DO YOU DO!

NBC today gives Columbia another freak target to shoot at when it takes the microphone to the edge of the Columbia River so we all can sit and listen to fishes flap on their way to the cannery—a salmon cannery, for, boys and girls, the flappers are salmon!

The broadcast has to do with just how your salmon is prepared for your table, from catching to canning . . . WCAE at 5.

The Grik Humbassadur-r-r and his Acropolis No. 7 move into the 10 o'clock spot on WJAS tonight—an hour later than usual. . . .

Ernest J. Bohn, president, National Association of Housing Officials, and Sir Raymond Unwin, British housing expert, speak during You and Your Government, KDKA at 7:30. . . .

DAVID AND GOLIATH

That was just an ordinary toy piano, with its keys all polished up to look like the real thing, that Bill Benswanger, Pirates' president and musician, tapped in the Chamber of Commerce Building last night to play the mighty Century of Progress carillon.

The setup necessitated for the long-distance concert, a Western Union enterprise, is the same as that of a teletypewriter, except that the midget piano's two octaves of keys replace those of the regular machine. . .

WCAE Features Tonight

Dr. O. E. Jennings, prominent educator, speaks at 5:30 today about "Nature in Late August" in the educational series of the Carnegie Museum from WCAE.

Hollywood To Prove Purity

By AIRCASTER

Motion picture executives have decided to include radio broadcasting in their somewhat strenuous efforts to win back whatever popular favor has been lost through the severe criticism by the churchmen and the League of Decency. The air waves are to be utilized for the purpose of affording all who will listen a sort of glimpse behind the screen, so that the audience may be assured that a real housecleaning is under way. Hollywood has been on the air in numerous sponsored programs, by way of guests and previews, but it is now about to take to the klieg'ries for the first time in self-defense.

It is the plan of the Motion Picture Producers and Directors' Association to stage four broadcasts as a test. The first of these is slated for tomorrow night, the second for Friday afternoon, the third for the following Wednesday evening and the last, on the next Friday afternoon. All four will be audible by way of NBC-blue.

During the sessions listeners will have their fill of entertainment in the form of previews, with members of the actual casts. They will be told by authorized speakers all about what the movies are doing to present constructive plays, and they will be allowed to judge from the previews just what is meant by constructive entertainment, although it is quite clear that the movie men mean cleaner diversion.

For the first of these broadcasts two of the most popular of the cinema stars will be presented in the persons of Irene Dunne and Lionel Barrymore. Between their little dramatic offerings a spot will be devoted to editorialization — the first by Joseph I. Breen, assistant to Will Hays, the movie czar and director of the Production Code Administration.

If sufficient reaction is achieved through the four shows, they will be extended to all webs.

The good ship "Melody" nosed into a Long Island harbor Saturday. The man at the helm docked the boat expertly while another seagoing chum hurried down to the wharf and climbed aboard. The "Melody" put about and started out to sea, and if you had a pair of glasses on the gents aboard, you would have recognized them as James Melton and Lawrence Tibbett. Tenors and baritones, as is well known, become more chummy than if they both sang in the same pitch.

As the "Melody," Melton's cruiser, moved through the harbor, Melton tried to shout to a boat nearby. But noise of the motors drowned the tenor's yells. When several similar attempts at being understood failed, Tibbett climbed to the bridge deck and, summoning his best baritone, yelled:

"He's only a tenor. He wants you to pass behind the 'Melody'?"

"I get you," shouted the other boatman. "But why don't you teach that guy to holler like you do?"

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

This column is being written by PAUL YAWITZ during MR. WINCHELL'S vacation.

The Way of All Flesh!

(Things You'rs, let alone Winchell, Never K. Y. N. About the Body.)

That the action of the hands in sheath often indicates the daily occupation of the person dying—the tailor will sew; the secy will typewrite, etc.

And the auctioneer strikes his hammer and says, "Going, going, gone!"

That women who have recovered from apparent death by drowning describe the sensations as distinctly pleasurable.

That depriving a criminal of sleep is a frequent mode of execution in China . . . Death occurs in 18 to 20 days.

Maybe that's why they don't let columnists go to sleep.

That candy does not destroy the teeth—the Negroes of Jamaica, who are known for their consumption of great quantities of sugar, are also noted for their pearly molars.

That the Chinese attribute many passions to the liver which we attribute to the heart.

That's civilization for you—always experimenting to get a bigger and better disease!

That anyone whose skin becomes blue, or who feels frozen, languid or drowsy after a cold bath, may take it for granted that it does not agree with him.

I can also find plenty excuses for not taking a warm bath.

That Socrates said: "Beware of such food as persuades a man to eat it though he be not hungry."

And that's why spinach was born.

That European authorities attribute American eye-troubles to our habit of drinking ice-water; the constant imbibing of frigid fluids is supposed to shrink the eyeball and paralyze the optic nerve.

That the symptoms of apoplexy, extreme intoxication and poisoning by opium are identical on the surface—and the only way the average person can differentiate is by smelling the breath.

That insurance records reveal more people die of overeating in one year than of starvation in 20 years.

Ted Black's Band In Sky Club

Ted Black and his orchestra are being featured at the Sky Club, cabaret at the Bettis Airport. The organization, which has been heard in radio programs, includes Ethel Caldwell, songstress, and Randal and Sherwood, dancers.

Adaptation

Claudette Colbert's hostess gown of raspberry crepe, in tunic silhouette, with scarab motif at throat and wrists, is a modern adaptation of the fashions of "Cleopatra," photoplay in which Miss Colbert plays the leading role. This is an International News Service photograph.

Boy to Get Invite

By HARRISON CARROLL

Miss Rogers

For months the 14-year-old boy has clutched the picture of Ginger Rogers when he went to the doctor to get treatments for his crippled leg. Poor kid, he looked at it while they were working over him and it helped to take his mind off the pain.

The other day he wrote Ginger all about it, along with a momentous request. The doctors have released him from the hospital and his parents have promised him a trip to Hollywood for a vacation. The one thing he wants to do is to see Ginger.

Well, in a few days the mailman is going to drop a letter at Tim's house. And that youngster is going to feel as important as the President. For Ginger has extended him a cordial invitation to lunch with her in Hollywood and see how movies are made at the R-K-O studio.

Very amusing about the actor who has been getting into a series of fights. Many wise-cracks have been coined about his exploits, but Sidney Skolsky, diminutive columnist, put it best.

"The next one that hits him wins him," he flipped.

How bravely these Hollywood youngsters talk. Sixteen-year-old Anne Shirley, who was Dawn O'Day and who gets her big break as the heroine of R-K-O's "Anne of Green Gables," tells the world she'll never marry until she has completed a $75,000 trust fund for her mother. She has just made the first payment.

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28.—Hello! Of course, very few—if any—saw the little episode that formed a triangle, trio that exchanged glares, sweet, alluring smiles. But to get on with the story — Franchot Tone, Joan Crawford's steady, took her to a party, and Francis Lederer whom Joan had admired since his stage appearance here, went through a hand-clasping routine that would have made the master of the art, Ivan Lebedeff, green with envy.

Miss Crawford

Not only would Lebedeff have been able to learn a few tricks, but Franchot Tone cast glances—and mean ones—in Lederer's direction that would—and did—mean things.

At any rate, it was Lederer who burned Franchot Tone—and to a romantic crisp!

Harold Chalmowitz has an idea that comes under the economy heading.

"Assistant movie directors must be the most economical people in the world. I hear they live on nodding!"

For nearly ten years Doris Lloyd has been trying to visit her native England. Every time she packs her bag, studio calls come in—and she has to go to work. It's getting to a point now where she's thinking of not packing her bag, just jumping a train and heading for those steamships.

The other day I credited Charley Williams as the writer of a new song, "Gigolette"—and I should have also given a bow to his co-author, Marcy Klauber. Alexander Pollard is probably the best managed actor in Hollywood. During the past three years he has enacted 250 butler roles.

Benny Baker, Lou Holtz's ex-stooge, who has been doing pretty well for himself in Hal Roach fun films, is up for a big role in RKO's Pinkin ditty, "The Kick Off."—If a likeness can be effected between the two studios.

The other night Bobby Maurice, a local master of ceremonies, was doing an impersonation of Jack Osterman when Jack walked into the place.

Strangely enough, Jack objected to the imitation of himself and the argument went snappily.

The George O'Brien horse-opera troupe was on location in Zion National Park. A native cow-girl wandered on the set to watch the filming. During lunch time, she displayed her ability with a six-shooter—and that shot her right into the movies. That afternoon she was working as the leading lady's "stand-in."

Sloppy Joe's, one of Hollywood's gayer beer joints, has been hiring out-of-work actors on big nights to put on rib routines and fake arguments a la San Francisco's night-seeing Chinatown gags.

To make patrons buy food, a tough-looking chap will insist that you join him in a sandwich. In order to keep peace in the place the "sucker" nearly offers to buy the hard-boiled guy a cheese-on-ham.

If you're in "on the know," it's a lot of fun to watch the same routines repeated on new customers.

Roger Pryor whose performance with fellow (semi-great) West, is now rushed to tape, made such an impression with Universal, whereby he is candidate for that film's the top office — meaning Carl Laemmle Jr. tore up his old agreement and presented him with a new and lengthy one.

* * *

A certain studio pleaded with a well-known actress to make up with her busy friend—just so they could get him off a bad drunk routine that was holding up production. She refused—and they're still waiting for him to show up. Maurice Rapf, Harry's scenery boy, went to Europe for a vacation, got his head shaved, and then proceeded to GROW a beard and a moustache. His mamma refused to meet him at the boat. The Clarence Browns are airplane-ing it to New York and then to Europe.

Mr. Pryor

Elliot Gibbons, an ex-movie critic ("I didn't know they ever quit"), has now turned to script writing for Universal. Just wait until some film reviewer pans his work!

Glimpses of Coming Season -:- By George Seibel

Eva LeGallienne is back in New York with a new version of Rostand's "L'Aiglon," made by Clemence Dane. Instead of going back to her Civic Repertory Theater, she will appear in an uptown playhouse under the management of Selwyn and Franklin.

Mr. Seibel

She ought to give an impressive performance of Sarah Bernhardt's old role. Maude Adams played it in America, but it was not her meat. Eva LeGallienne has the temperament and the force needed.

At the same time also Max Reinhardt arrived from Europe. He is on his way to Los Angeles to direct an open-air performance of "Midsummer Night's Dream." He will remain in New York long enough to direct "The Romance of a People," the great spectacle of Jewish history written by Franz Werfel, the author of "Goat Song."

The New York season will soon be in full swing. Three Shubert attractions are in rehearsal. In one of them, "The Elephant Shepherd," Chic Sale comes back from "Treasure Island" to the legit.

About 75 new plays have been tried out on the summer Rialto, and a fair proportion have survived the ordeal and will be seen on Broadway before Santa Claus comes again.

TRUTH ABOUT DRESSLER

The woman who wrote Marie Dressler's radio speeches, and says Marie never changed a word, is now going to write her life. She says Marie told her to "tell them the truth." The truth appears to be that Marie did not even know how to boil an egg.

If she could not cook, and could not write her own speeches, many of the devout worshipers of the comedienne will not know why they adored her. The biography may shed light on that. The actress told the writer she had "plenty of faults—nobody's perfect."

TWO NEW DRAMATISTS

Two dramatists new to the present generation, but old to its grandparents, are having a tryout in one of the summer theaters of New Hampshire.

The play was called "The Merry Monarch," dealing with an amusing love adventure of Charles the Second.

The authors were Washington Irving, who furnished the story on which "Rip Van Winkle" is based, and John Howard Payne, the author of "Home, Sweet Home."

Irving was always ambitious to write for the stage. Payne, who was an actor, wrote a tragedy, "Brutus, or The Fall of Tarquin," which was one of Edmund Kean's great roles.

Gilbert Hurt Twice In One Film

John Gilbert is having his troubles working in "The Captain Hates the Sea," under Lewis Milestone's direction. Gilbert sprained his left ankle during an exciting shot at sea one day and a week later he crushed his right foot in another bit of rough and tumble. Incidentally the S. S. Ruth Alexander, on which sea shots were taken for this picture, sailed 3,000 miles during the picture making without going anywhere. It sailed here, there and anywhere in the Catalina Channel and never got more than 40 miles from port.

Lopez Band Booked For Greensburg

Vincent Lopez and his orchestra will come to the New Coliseum ballroom, Greensburg, on Friday, August 31, for a one-night dance engagement. The orchestra, now on a tour, is composed of 15 artists including Fred Lowry, whistler, and Frances Hunt, Johnny Morris, Lou Bring, Stanley Wurth and Nick Perconni, vocalists. Dancing on Friday night, will be from 9 until 1 o'clock, eastern standard time.

* * *

"THEN there's the tale" relates Ed Lowry, "of the man who wanted to buy one of those old-fashioned full-length suits of underwear. The salesman, however, insisted on selling him shorts.

"'Everybody's wearing these shorts today,' persisted the salesman, 'and they cost much less than the full-length suits.'

"The customer nodded.

"'I know all about that,' he replied, 'but I still want the full length suit instead of the shorts. With me it's not the initial cost . . . it's the upkeep!'"

* * *

"DEAR Mark," reports Curtis Smith, "I happen to know of a group of stage women who decided to form a bridge club. The first two meetings weren't exactly successful. So, at the third meeting, the president arose.

"'Ladies,' she said, 'it has been moved and seconded that we shall no longer talk while our games are going on. What shall we do with the motion?'

"One faded ingenue spoke right up.

"'I have a suggestion,' she said eagerly. 'Let's discuss it while we play!'"

* * *

* * *

"WITH all these Tarzan pictures running loose," sighs Alvin Hamburg, "and with the younger generation trying to ape that fictitious character in act, dress, and speech—it is evident that John Phillip Sousa was looking into the future when he wrote his famous march:

"'This Tarzan Tripe Forever!'"

"TALK all you want about your contributors' dumb girl friends," writes W. L. Bykin, "but I reserve my vote for my baby.

"I wanted to take her to see Henry the Eighth the other night. But she refused to go because she said she had missed the other seven chapters" . . .

"PROSPERITY has definitely returned," hoorays Jesse M. Harriss.

"I just met a bum who refuses to pick up anything but quarter cigars!"

"ADD this," urges Milt Williams, "to your list of revised mottos:

Vidor May Direct English Film

King Vidor, producer and director of "Our Daily Bread," has gone to England. In London he will confer with Alexander Korda, production head of London Films, on the likelihood of directing one of that company's forthcoming screen plays. Vidor will then pay a short visit to friends in Paris, after which he expects to go to Moscow for an inspection tour of film production in Russia. He will return to America in time for the national release of "Our Daily Bread," about September 28.

Miss Bruce to Stay In Pictures

Stepper in Stage Bill

Jean Zappa is a dancer in the Jones & Lynton song and dance skit that will be part of the stage bill that will reopen the Pitt Friday, with Jay Millis as master of ceremonies.

The matter of removing, who, as a permanent institution in the theater, passed out of the picture with a white suit, will be restored to the Pitt when it reopens for the new season Friday. Jay Millis, who was featured in a vocal theater at the height of the m. c. ceremonies in the continental houses, has been engaged to introduce all of the acts in the first stage bill of the new season in George Shafer's theater. In addition he will appear in his own act, "No Work and All Play," assisted by Mildred Tuttle. The Pitt's initial bill for 1934-35 will include eight acts of vaudeville and a photoplay. "Born to Be Bad," with a cast headed by Loretta Young and Cary Grant. Joe Penner and his orchestra will be in the pit again.

Beginning next Monday the last of the summer season subscription plays will be staged in the Arnold Schaal Theater at six nightly performances. The offering will be "The Dark Tower," a mystery melodrama by Alexander Woollcott and George S. Kaufman. It was a New York production of last season. When it has run its course vocally the Playhouse group will have completed quite quiet as an warm weather stunt.

Friday evening August 31, a Russian photoplay, "Mother," with Vsevolod Pudovkin will be screened at the Penn Knollwood Settlement auditorium under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Cultural Club. "Mother" was written by Maxim Gorki.

Three openings on the Broadway stage this week include "Life Begins at 8:40," Rudolf Lenon play that reached New York by way of Boston last night; "Salvia," Mexican comedy that will make its bow tonight and "Kill That Story," comedy on which the curtain will go up tonight.

Elmer Kenyon, dean of York Drama School who likes to skip to Europe in the summer time, and who recently returned from either his eleventh or eighteenth trip across the Atlantic, was a little shocked to find only four legitimate theaters in operation when he landed in New York. He says there were 30 plays running in London when he was there. It also occasions a remark it will be given by Paul Kenyon's favorite Thomas (not necessarily of the American Theater Society), who also was almost in the minority.

Donald Brian went straight last night, when he appeared in a speaking role at the opening performance of a week's tryout of a new play in Stockbridge, Mass. "Fly Away Home" is called and it was written by Dorothy Bennett and Irving White. Vera Allen and Richard Hale are in the cast.

When the Abbey Theater Irish Players arrive from Dublin in October they will bring several new plays to alternate with the old standbys of the repertoire. The latter will include "The Playboy of the Western World," "Juno and the Paycock," "The White-Headed Boy," "The Far-Off Hills" and "The New Gossoon." One of the new plays will be Lennox Robinson's "Drama at Inish," now running in America as "Is Life Worth Living?" The tour will open in Wellesley, Mass., October 8.

17 ROARING RAIDERS ARREST 2 IN EAST END

HIS MAJESTY ARRIVING VIA TWA, A BANANA HALF GONE

'Little King' Makes McNair His Jester

The Little King, the most democratic guy you ever met, was in Pittsburgh today with an overpowering yen to ring doorbells.

The Little King, as perhaps you suspected, is a little guy, with an alderman's bay window and a lot of curiosity. He stepped off a TWA plane at the county airport, a banana in one hand, a bottle of cream in the other . . . well, that's the kind of a king he is.

He paraded around Allegheny County sprinting at all the blondes and smiling at the brunets and actually called the railroads.

Then he went to Mayor McNair's office. The little King never speaks, but he made known that he wanted to swear in His Honor as one of his best jesters. And the Mayor consented, as photographers recorded the scene.

The Little King whispered to one of his stooges that he wanted a mess of doorbells to ring, but His Honor came through with only a key to the city.

So the Little King went to a burlesque house and interrupted rehearsals long enough to be chucked under the chin . . . well, that's the kind of king he is.

You have a right to know more about him.

He is only a comic-strip character, but if you follow him you'll be pleasantly surprised to meet a king who is very human—a king who likes to cut the grass in his own zig-zag fashion, who likes to rate fire engines, who spills egg over his royal raiment and, if nobody's looking, cunks his doughnuts.

He is The Little King who was drawn for the New Yorker magazine for three years by Otto Soglow.

And The Little King who came to town in a TWA plane, crown, red raiment and all, actually was Soglow—a little guy who has never been nearer a throne than East Orange, N. J.

Soglow is leaving today for Chicago and the west coast on a trip which is to introduce to America the one king who can do nothing but wrong. And as he departed he expressed nothing but regret because he had not been able to ring a Mellon doorbell—any Mellon doorbell; he indicated that, as one ruler to another, he had long wanted to ring a Mellon doorbell.

The Little King does not come into existence officially until Sunday a week in the Sun-Telegraph—and he succeeds The Ambassador—but if you will wait until then His Majesty is almost certain to ride a bicycle without holding onto the handlebars—or some such thing.

He's quite a guy.

FLORIG'S NET CATCHES MAN, BOY, 16

'Squad' of 3 Pick Up Two on Lottery Charge; 31 Fined

A boy and a man arrested by Lieut. Albert Florig's roaring riot squad of 17 motorcycle policemen, who swooped down on East End yesterday, were to be arraigned in Police Court today.

When the policemen met for roll call in the City-County Building, Lieut. Florig, acting under sealed orders from Acting Supt. Jacob F. Dorner, told them they were going to South Park. Instead of heading for the announced destination, Florig raced out to the East End with the new squad roaring behind. After searching several places they arrested a boy and a man as numbers writers, police reported. They were dcketed as James Moore, 16, of 7122 Apple avenue, and Nicholas Amen, 47, of 327 Denniston avenue.

31 GET FINES

Another "squad"—Lieut. Peter Lehney and two radio patrolmen, who cruised the East End—appeared at the police station a short time later with two prisoners. They gave their names as Leonard Malley, 21, of 1243 Grotto street, and Sam Karp, 47, of 107 South St. Clair street. They were charged with operating a lottery, police said.

Arrested in a raid on a dance hall at Glen Willard Sunday night when nearly 200 other dancers fled through windows, 31 young men were fined $8.80 on a charge of violating the blue laws by Justice of the Peace L. V. Gibbs, Bewickley, last night.

ANNOUNCE APPEAL PLAN

They were taken into custody after Constable Howard C. Doughty and state police descended on the place in answer to complaints of residents in the vicinity.

Alividio Carmentlia, McKees Rocks, denied being the operator of the dance, but was fined $25 or 30 days in jail. He announced he would appeal as did some of those let off with a $4 fine and costs—totaling $8.80.

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Owney Madden has been built up along Broadway as the most fabulous figure of the underworld since the passing of Arnold Rothstein. A big shot of the mob! The tight-lipped, dressy racketeer with a well-notched gat who spends his leisure raising pigeons.

In speakeasy days he was now and then a ring-side visitor at many of the clubs he was supposed to have angeled. Also he sat at an occasional first night. Debutantes thrilled at having him pointed out and several were able to jockey themselves into introductions.

Madden's career has been beglamoured by a pull that was obvious. When he was wanted by the pardon board, supposed to eye his parole from Sing Sing, he had to be hunted. Usually he was off holidaying and when he would finally consent to appear, the press and photographers were brushed off by his guardians.

The legal loopholes he has enjoyed smack of sheer opera bouffe. Hilarious off agin' on agin'. Yet so innocent-eyed has he appeared when called upon the carpet that almost everybody apologized for annoying him. Owney with his far-away smile inspires a delicious contagion of sympathy. And ladies like to mother him.

* * *

Deluxe liners have been shorn of much of their swank by the passengers themselves. Indeed, the majority of the travelers who used to occupy royal suites with maids, valets and even personal physicians are now crossing in one cabin boats. And without the usual mountainous pile of luggage. Not many use trunks at all, just hand luggage. It's getting smart to look tacky on ocean voyages.

* * *

Near Long Beach last evening I stopped at one of those "Man Buried Alive" exhibits ballyhooed along the road. For 15 cents one stepped into a pup tent and gazed through a makeshift funnel at the wan face below. "Talk to him!" said the exhibitionist. So falteringly and in a high squeak I inquired: "Are you all right?" He replied "O. K." and conversation ended. He had been underground for 21 days and hoped to make it 90.

Ed Howe, fleeing the Kansas drought by motoring to the Pacific finds he still has a job at 81 although he quit at 80. A national weekly decided he was too young to retire and pursued him until he finally, with a sigh, signed up. However, one thing he insisted upon and that was his right to select a title. It was granted and this is it: "About Nothing by Nobody." H. L. Mencken has called Howe's writings the highest example of simple, concise and expressive English.

* * *

Ed Howe, writing from Atchison, William Allen White, from Emporia, and Robert Quillen, from the even smaller community of Fountain Inn, S. C., are generous proof that a thoroughgoing writer does not have to get out of his bailivick to catch the eye of the metropolitan editor. The worthy trumpetings are always heard.

* * *

The most confusing mix-up of screen personalities — and it makes each bite nails and let down their hair — is between Warren William and Warner Baxter. Among a dozen people who do not know them personally, eight will almost invariable call one by the name of the other. Similarity of names and looks does it. The only possible remedy is for one to change his name and their dislike is too mutual, I suppose, for either to make the step. A similar confusion, although not from the standpoint of nomenclature, has existed between Fannie Hurst and Edna Ferber. Many careful readers will, after a short lapse, credit the story of one to the other. Likely because each has written extravagantly of Jewish family life.

MAYOR M'NAIR "THE LITTLE KING"

'FAITH DOCTOR' BEATEN, ROBBED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A Masontown man who told police he is a "faith doctor" claims to have been robbed of $12,000 by two men who attacked him in the yard of his home.

Ford said two men struck him with clubs and took the money from a cash belt on his waist.

Ford also told the police, they said, that the money represented his life's savings, and he had planned to bank it at Uniontown today.

Love of Food By French Lauded

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah.—(INS.)—The French alone have mastered the art of proper eating and know how to enjoy food, according to Nick Theodore, for 30 years one of the most famous chefs in the West. "But Americans," he continued, "they like to eat, too, but really don't enjoy it. They are always in too much of a hurry."

Magistrate Holds Man in Liquor Case

Charged with violation of the state liquor laws, Ike Bonn, 53, of 17 Mercer street, was turned over to state authorities today by Magistrate John B. Kearney in Central Police Station. Police testified they found moonshine when they raided Bonn's home last night.

Turkeys Rid Crops Of Grasshoppers

PANGUITCH, Utah.—(INS.)—Grasshoppers, which recently invaded this area to the great detriment of crops, now have an enemy to contend with. A herd of 4,000 turkeys have been brought to the field where the grasshoppers are thickest and turned loose to eradicate the pests.

His Alarm Clock Wakes Entire District

BOSTON, Aug. 28.— An automobile horn has been arousing a Dorchester district every morning

At last the source has been discovered—in the bedroom of a man, hard of hearing, who uses the horn for an alarm clock.

Flying Dentist Commutes By Air

SEATTLE, Wash.—(INS.)—Dr. Ray Shaw, 36, of Nelson B. C., is now the flying dentist of the North. Recently he learned to fly here in one and a half days, in order to be able to commute between his office at Nelson and Trail, B. C. He declared he will buy his own plane soon.

State Relief Board Shifts Work Deputy

HARRISBURG, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—The State Emergency Relief Board today announced the transfer of George Mudehart, deputy work director in Lackawanna County to Lawrence County. No reason was given for the change.

$500,000 GOES TO BANK

Judge James H. Gray today signed an order turning over to the Washington Union Trust Company, of Washington, Pa., assets amounting to approximately $500,000 consisting of mortgages on Allegheny County real estate.

Deputy Attorney General David Glick, representing State Banking Secretary William D. Gordon, presented the order to Judge Gray.

The Washington Union Trust Company was formed by reorganizing the Washington Trust Company, which closed its doors in May, 1931. The old bank had maintained a mortgage pool of about $5,000,000 for the benefit of trust estates and the $500,000 turned over to the successor bank today was part of that pool.

Today in Common Pleas Court Judge James H. Gray signed an order permitting the bank to borrow $198,834 from the RFC. The loan is to be repaid within three years with 4 per cent interest.

The petition for the loan was presented by Deputy Attorney General David Glick, representing the secretary of banking, receiver.

Driver Abandons Car and Moonshine

An automobile containing five gallons of moonshine wrapped in a burlap sack was confiscated today at Reed and Kirkpatrick streets by police. The driver of the car, described by police as a Negro, abandoned the car and ran when he saw the police approaching. The license, according to the motor division, was issued to Alex Frazer, Negro, of 1516 Forsyth street.

Kearney in Central Police Station for keeping a disorderly house. Police testified that they raided the poolroom August 26 and arrested seven visitors. Prezios was not arrested until yesterday.

KING ASTAGE . . HE WENT TO BE CHUCKED UNDER THE CHIN

Mrs. O'Leary's Cow Rubbed Magic Lamp

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Eighteen thousand Chicago school teachers collected $1,500 each yesterday and started out to see the city.

Four thousand other city employes got the same amount, which made $26,000,000 in all.

That's a king's ransom. And you can throw in the queen and the crown prince.

The girls are going to buy pretty dresses, fancy shoes and funny hats. That's the biggest story in Chicago since the big fire.

Police Seek Woman, Man for Holdup

Center avenue police today were searching for a man and a woman who seized George Galowitz in his restaurant at 1316 Clark street and robbed him of $45 last night, as he was preparing sandwiches for them, police said. After robbing him they fled into the street.

Two Negroes attacked Sam Suttile, of 32 Marion street, at Fifth avenue and Wyandotte street and were rifling his pockets when a pedestrian approached. The pair, frightened, fled without loot.

HIS MAJESTY GIVING IN TO A SUPPRESSED DESIRE

Grain Dust Blast Causes $7,000 Blaze

NEW KENSINGTON, Aug. 28.—Fire caused by spontaneous combustion of wheat dust, which destroyed a large barn here yesterday, was estimated today to have done $7,000 damage. The blaze destroyed a large barn on a farm occupied by Frank Widnar, burned 300 bushels of wheat ready for threshing and large quantities of hay and oats.

Live stock was led to safety by firemen and members of a threshing machine crew, who were threshing the wheat when the explosion occurred.

Tongue Twisted in Crash, Boy Ends Stammering

Donald Thomas came across the mountains to Pittsburgh, bent on straightening out that hesitancy of speech which had been his since an auto wreck three years ago.

The injury had apparently twisted his tongue, snapped something that co-ordinated his mind and his vocal chords.

Perhaps it was the scream of the brakes, the cries of injured friends, the battering crash of car against car. Whatever it was, it marked the unhappy beginning of stammering for young Donald, then about 9.

It was seven weeks ago that he came to Pittsburgh, to a speech clinic where he hoped for a cure. Thursday he will return to Stroudsburg, in the Pocunos, the cure accomplished.

For the twisted tongue is straightened and the once stammering words pour easily from his eager mouth.

62 IN 100 AUTOS DEFECTIVE

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Aug. 28.—(INS.)—Automobiles are being inspected at the rate of 75,000 a week, the division of safety of the Department of Revenue reported today in announcing that 470,985 cars already have been tested in the second compulsory inspection of the year.

An average of 62 out of every 100 machines tested to date have been found to be defective in some way. Bad headlights are the most frequent "black marks" on report cards.

Bay State Credit Best in Nation

BOSTON. — (INS.)—"There is no credit in the country as good as that of Massachusetts," says Gov. Joseph B. Ely. He has the highest praise for State Treasurer Charles F. Hurley, who is believed to have established an all-time low interest rate when he borrowed $3,552,000 at 9-100 of 1 per cent.

Too Brainy to Get Her Man, Girl Complains

Too BRAINY to get her man. Or any other, for that matter. No matter when or how she meets young men, in time they leave her. And their reason always is, she is too CLEVER . . . And the unfortunate part is, P. T. admits she doesn't care so much for SMART people herself . . . And so she wants to be able to show people that she may be highbrow, but that she is human, and likes to have pleasure and happiness as anyone else might . . .

She insists she is not the stand-offish type at all. Neither, she says, is she so learned . . .

Miss Brunot

And yet her penmanship indicates she is what she insists she is not . . . It indicates plenty of gray matter, and also an overabundance of individuality . . . The trouble is, P. T., you aren't just the everyday type. You're a DEEP one, and you don't know it. . . . Why not change your friends . . . Meet people a few years older than yourself . . . men more versed in the world . . . that is the sort you should CHUM with. . . . There are many such, or else how would the earth move on . . .

BEST YEARS AHEAD

Twenty-five isn't such a great age. . . . If you use your brains, your very best years stretch ahead.

Don't keep on battering against the door of fate . . . you can't alter it much, anyway. . . . There will always be a gulf between you and the ones not your mental equal . . . Why not? There should be. BRAINS are the world's biggest PREMIUMS . . . the lesser folk fear them. And there can be no comradeship, no love, where fear exists . . .

Yet just because you have something up there in your head is no argument against the largeness of your heart. The idea that the smart woman must go it alone has gotten side-tracked in the last few years. Love pirates have got to use something more than their cosmetics these days, or they'll do no pirating. Most of the great vamps of history had considerable under their hats. Brains in the long run win out over beauty. It is the survival of fittest.

Why prate so much about physical pulchritude. Half the men you know didn't marry it.

There are plenty of gentlemen friends for you, P. T. But you must look HIGHER UP, that's all.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 19, and have been going with an attractive fellow of 25 for about a month. We fell for each other the very first time we met. This is where the trouble lies, Miss Brunot. He had been going with another girl before we met, off and on, for about three years. She then fell for another fellow, chiseled on this one and then finally gave him the air.

He said he was madly in love with her until she proved herself so disloyal after all the promises she had made him. And he decided to forget her.

He has told me I can help him forget. I am crazy about him and miss him, oh, so much when he is not with me. Do you think a girl knows when she is in love, Miss Brunot? Does it take time to develop this emotion?

LIFE HALF WRECKED

I have given up cigaret smoking for him. He told me recently this girl would like him to forgive her and take her back, at least so he has heard. And he says when he sees her an overwhelming emotion seizes him. Yet he insists he will not take her back again. It seems as if half his life has been wrecked. He says, even so, in a year or so when he has enough money saved up, he will ask me to marry him.

I am so afraid the other girl will get him back. Just when I think he has forgotten her, she pops up. Shall I give him up, telling him not to come back until he is sure of himself? Or shall I keep on letting him come to my house and helping him to forget? He is always buying me something I like, and taking me places. ADRIENNE.

Yours, Adrienne, is a story not so rare as you may think. Often there is the other woman, or the other man. And if such happens to be your misfortune, you will have to wait and watch, if you want your happiness.

I would not advise letting him go, and not giving him the help he wants. That would be a sure way for him to get back to the other girl. It takes time to heal a love wound, which the fellow has suffered. Personally I think you a much better girl for him than the other. If she has chiseled, and given him the air once, she is likely to do so again.

MAY FIND OUT

But you cannot tell him this. He will have to find it out for himself . . . Even should he see her again, remember all is not lost for you . . . For he may find his love for her is partly a dream . . . and that after all, he is more fond of you . . .

Someone has said, in every love affair, there is the triangle. And yet only two sides can gain their point . . . Remember that Adrienne . . . You have only known this young man a month.

I wouldn't be too sure that your feeling is real love . . . It may be the sentimental setting you are enjoying . . . It takes but a few minutes to awaken an infatuation. But it takes much longer to develop an abiding love . . . and affection . . . Remember your boy friend says only HALF of his life is wrecked. He has another HALF. That may be for you . . . I think a girl who has any wisdom whatsoever knows when she is in love . . . that is providing she really IS in love. Until that time, we are liable to imagine passing fancy is the real emotion . . .

MODERN MARRIAGE VIEWS SELDOM PRACTICAL, SAYS FAY KING

I'M IN LOVE WITH ANOTHER GIRL NOW!
DON'T YOU DARE! TO TRY TO TAKE HIM FROM ME!
BUT YOU'RE NOT MARRIED TO HIM!
I'VE LEFT MY HUSBAND FOR YOU!
GREAT SCOTT, YOU CAN'T DO THAT GO BACK TO HIM!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

Modern viewpoints of love and marriage are all right for discussion, but they seldom work out in fact.

The young couple who promise to release each other when one falls in love again may do so, but the one left only hides the same old pain and heartache under brave smiles.

Modern wives who flirt so furiously with other men have found these men less interested when the husbands have been discarded.

Many meek, old-fashioned wives who did not fight back, were more easily left than determined sweeties who will battle all rivals for the men they do not hold legally.

And those who divorce so quickly seem only to multiply their unhappy marriage with more of the same. Better one unhappy marriage than three!

FUR TRIMMED COATS FOR MILD WEATHER

By PRUNELLA WOOD

THERE WILL be plenty of bright days coming along soon when a medium weight coat of definite winter styling will be just what the weather doctor ordered. The woman who does not intend to spend a whole slice of her budget on such an inbetween coat—despite the fact that for six months these same mild days will be possible—gets a break this year. The new models are tempered to the shorn lamb (American broadtail, they call it) and the most pernickety person could not say they look commonplace and undistinguished.

* * *

THE PROPER length for these coats is about 11 inches from the floor, just long enough to cover the approved length in casual daytime frocks, which is 12 inches from the floor. Much depends on the ultimate chic of the coats if this point is kept in mind. They are complete in themselves and a rim of contrasting material below them will bring on a Tillie-off-the-barge expression. Having them too long is just as mistaken in another way.

The new models don't go in for patches of fur here and there. A rather dramatic collar, rippled as to revers, upstanding at the back, is deemed sufficient for some. When a flat fur is used it may appear on collar and cuffs, but in such a restrained manner that the total effect is more subtle than dashing. When a model has a double dose of showy swank, the second hit is usually in a muff, which is really a shopping bag with a fur front and two snug little pockets just big enough to hold the fingers.

* * *

DARK GREEN, browns that are more on the beige than the chocolate side, gray and plenty of black seem to be the larger color scheme. Fitch, always beautiful but not usually so well styled, is a wow on many a coat priced well under the $75 of your budget.

A soft black crepe wool which has a rough look is used for the very feminine coat, left above. The fur is black Persian, in a neat little tippet collar and squared cuffs. It is the perfect coat for mild cold weather, knockabout or dress-up. Center, a light brown coat of crinkled material with a rippling Elizabethan collar of sable dyed kolinsky. Note the very slim cuff and the buckled sash closing.

A bushy, glossy black fur, very effective and becoming, styles the black coat above, in a collar which may be worn closed or in cape effect. The ellipse-shaped pillow muff conceals a capacious zipper bag.

Contract Bridge

By Josephine Culbertson

The Choice of a Lead

There is an old proverb which states that "in the kingdom of the blind, the one-eyed is king."

Mrs. Culbertson

Applying the philosophy here expressed to the question of the choice of a lead at Contract Bridge, I should say that when a hand contains nothing but bad leads, the one least likely to be disadvantageous should be chosen. There is, for instance, a widely held and actually sound theory that a lead of a low card from a King against a suit declaration is bad. It is. There is also the sound theory that the opening lead of an ace is bad. It is. Honors serve their greatest usefulness in the mimic warfare of Bridge by capturing other honors held by the enemy, and when the hand containing an honor plays first to any trick, the primary value of that honor is sacrificed, at least temporarily. But when the leader holds no suit which offers a favorable lead, he should not throw up his hands in despair because he must make a lead which he has been told to avoid. Maybe one of the "bad" leads will show a direct gain.

In the recent Masters' Individual Championship Tournament held at Crockford's Club, New York, there was one hand dealt which presented to the East player a problem in bidding and to the South player a problem in leading. The hand was:

East—Dealer.
North-South vulnerable

	♠ J 10 4 ♡ 10 9 4 ◇ K J 9 6 4 2 ♣ J
♠ Q 9 8 6 2 ♡ — ◇ Q 10 3 ♣ A 9 8 6 4	North West East South	♠ K 7 ♡ K Q J 8 7 5 3 ◇ 5 ♣ Q 10 2
	♠ A 5 3 ♡ A 6 2 ◇ A 8 7 ♣ K 7 5 3

So far as the bidding was concerned, four of the seven East players, including such well-known stars as Howard Schenken, Sydney Rusinow and Edward Hymes, Jr., opened the bidding with three hearts. One, George Reith, opened with the bid of four hearts, and two were content to open with the bid of one heart. One of those who undertook a three heart contract was doubled and fulfilled it with an over-trick, and the contract of four hearts was doubled and made.

The question of the lead was extremely difficult. One player, Samuel Fry, Jr., found the play that defeated three hearts. He elected to make a low lead from the club King, reasoning that the club lead was not necessarily dangerous because the opening Pre-emptive bid was no indication of honor strength in the other suits. This lead proved to be the "killing opening." East permitted the trick to run to his Queen, and then laid down the heart King. South won, and now, feeling that whatever damage could occur from his leading away from the King had already occurred, followed with another club. Much to his satisfaction, North ruffed and returned a spade. South won with the Ace, and now, not being certain that his partner had another trump, laid down the Ace of diamonds. This was at least a guarantee that no overtricks would be made. Having taken this trick, he led another club, and North utilized his last trump to defeat the contract.

Tomorrow's Hand

South, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

	♠ A 6 5 ♡ A Q ◇ Q 10 7 5 2 ♣ A K 3
♠ K 10 ♡ K 3 ◇ A K 6 ♣ J 10 9 8 4 2	North West East South	♠ Q 9 8 ♡ 9 7 5 4 ◇ J 9 8 4 ♣ 7 5
	♠ J 7 4 3 2 ♡ J 10 8 6 2 ◇ 3 ♣ Q 6

This hand will be discussed in tomorrow's article.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Seeks News of Husband

As Lillian told me that I had had a full hour's sleep, I sprang out of bed and, taking her by the shoulders, shook her playfully.

"You fraud!" I told her. "You used the same tactics upon me that Paddy used upon the pig he wanted to go to Dublin. You knew father wouldn't want me for an hour, but you told me that he would, and that it wouldn't be any use in my taking a nap, as I would be interrupted. You counted upon——"

"The perversity of your very human nature," she retorted airily, slipping out of my clutch. "Of course I did. I judged you by myself. Nothing so quickly sends me to sleep as the idea that I must keep awake, and—vice versa. 'Lollo!' Also, 'So-be-it!' and any other phrases you may have uncorked."

She finished with a grandiloquent gesture as absurd as her words, and I made my way, laughing, to my dressing table, where I faced my tumbled self in the mirror.

LILLIAN'S COMPLAINT

"I'm a sight," I said, as I began to remove hairpins from my disarranged coiffure.

"Yes, you are," she agreed dryly, then added, "for sore eyes," in so different a tone that I looked at her in the mirror, and saw that her eyes were fixed upon me with affection and—I could not misunderstand it — undisguised admiration.

"You are the best-looking thing, old girl," she said heartily. "It shuah does these old eyes good to lamp you. No wonder you hold your husband so well! The fairies were certainly good to you when they handed round the christening gifts, and you've taken good care of every little thing. You've never let down; never let yourself slump in either mind or body, the way so many women do. Dicky's a wise bird not to stray from the home nest."

I let my hair veil my face for a second, under the pretense of combing it out. My cheeks were aflame. I knew, with the foolish blushes that any mention of Dicky's love for me brings to them. But there was another reason for the flush—a miserable doubt of the truth of her words.

"I wonder—" I said, when I could control my voice and my facial expression. I watched her warily as I spoke, and saw her head lift as with a challenge.

"What do you wonder?" she asked crisply, as her eyes met mine squarely in the mirror. "Whether Dicky's a wise bird, or whether it's true that he doesn't stray."

"Both," I answered shortly, and she came over to me and put her hands upon my shoulders.

"You don't mean," she said sternly, "that you're letting Ede's asinine behavior affect you?"

NOT INTERESTED

"I don't mean to," I said miserably, "and of course I know, really, that Dicky isn't interested in her romantically."

"I'll broadcast to the ambient atmosphere that he isn't," she interjected emphatically.

"But, Lillian," a long repressed plaint rose to my lips, "she acts all the time as if she owned him."

"I grant you that," Lillian said coolly, "and that's just where she's going to hang herself some day in a nice little noose of her own looping. The Dicky-bird has stood a lot of nonsense from her, partly because he's the most chivalrous lad in the world, and she's had a hard roe to hoe all her life; to say nothing of having the bad luck—also bad taste and judgment—to set her heart on a man thoroughly in love with his wife.

"Another reason he has been patient is because she has done wonders with the business and advertising end of that fool magazine he so chivalrously took over. And now that it has fallen on evil days, he can't get out from under and leave her flat with it. You see that, don't you?"

"Oh, yes; I see everything," I said wearily. Then with a sudden revulsion of feeling, I let my hair fall to my shoulders and turned to Lillian with a contrite little cry.

"Oh, I ought to be shot for talking this way, when I don't know yet how Dicky's arm is! Has there been any word from the hospital this morning? I didn't dare call when I came back, it was so early."

Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—My husband and I will be married 15 years very soon. We have made many friends in that time and I feel that we should entertain on a small scale. But while our friends live near us, our families are in the country. I have to think of my purse, but I wondered if we could make it an afternoon and evening affair, too (separate).

2—Could you please word an invitation — delightfully informal—that it will be just a happy, memorable milestone in our lif... READER.

1—I don't think that you could have a better plan than you have in mind for the celebration of your wedding anniversary.

Dear Mary:

Bob and I are planning a small informal party to celebrate our fifteenth wedding anniversary—and we must have you and Jack with us to make our anniversary a really perfect one. It is to be on Saturday, the first of September, at our home, and won't you two dear friends come in some time between four and seven? Do write "yes," for we are looking forward with such happy anticipation to welcoming you.

Dearest love to you both from Bob and me.

Cordially,

To Victor Goes the Prize

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper at a bridge party given for a bride-to-be for the winner of the prize to give her prize to the bride-to-be? F.

If the winner of the prize especially wishes to make this generous gesture, it is proper for her to do so. But it isn't at all necessary or called-for, since the prize, logically speaking, belongs to the person who has won it.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

Girls who are tormented with hair that becomes oily a few days after the shampoo will find the lemon or vinegar rinse a joy. The formula is the juice of three lemons or two tablespoons of vinegar to a quart of water. Have it in the washbowl, keep pouring it over the head with a cup.

This rinse removes any particles of soap that may be clinging to the hair, leaves shafts silky and glossy. Careless shampooing is responsible for many glorious crests that look as if they had been basted.

When the blonde lady takes on evidence of the years, her golden locks go drab. That condition isn't as bad as she thinks it is. It often happens that the darker shade makes wrinkles and pallor less noticeable.

There are golden-drab eyes for hair of that character. They don't bring on the artificial honey tint that tells the world that the femme is an addict of the peroxide bottle. They merely brighten tresses, give them a little more color and life. Before using any dye or bleach, there should be a test made on a sample cut from the head.

How to Keep Well

By EDR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

If You Are Subject to Poison Ivy

Skin disturbances from poison ivy may be minimized at any time of the year. Of course it is more prevalent during the six to eight months when contact with the plant is more common. Whenever it appears it is indeed an annoying affliction.

Dr. Copeland

Most persons are rarely affected by poison ivy, while others are very sensitive to it. A few seem mutually to suffer the infection merely by approaching the vicinity of the vine or other plants of the Rhus family. It may result from handling objects which have come in contact with the plant, such as tools, clothing or insects.

The unfortunate victim complains of severe burning and itching of the skin, usually of the face and hands. Sometimes the skin of the entire body may be involved. Also many blisters form that they may distort the appearance of the individual.

Persons who are sensitive to poison ivy should become familiar with its appearance. It is a climbing plant, a species of sumac, with leaves in groups of three, the stems of the middle leaf being longer than the other. Try to avoid contact with this plant. If you happen to be in a wooded section wear gloves and keep away from underbrush.

Special precautions against poison ivy should be taken for children and infants. When it afflicts the young child it is more severe, differing from the mild form of inflammation commonly seen in adults.

If you accidentally touch the plant refrain from touching other parts of the body. Bathe the exposed part with soap and water, alcohol, gasoline, ether, benzine or any substance that will dissolve oil.

If you are susceptible to the poison of ivy and think you may have been exposed to its effects, take a warm bath and scrub your body with an alkaline soap. Then sponge off with alcohol. If alcohol is not available, gasoline may be used.

Bear in mind that it is important to wash in the direction away from the unaffected parts. Wash from the elbows downward toward the hands and thus avoid the spread of the inflammation.

Care should be exercised in the treatment of the blisters caused by poison ivy. They should be punctured with a sterile needle and the skin thoroughly washed with soap and water. Calamine lotion or zinc oxide lotion applied to the blisters will cool and soothe the inflammation.

Recently a vaccine has been developed for protection against this annoying skin irritation. Results have not been entirely satisfactory and it is hoped that a more successful form of prevention will soon be available. Until then bear in mind that guarding against poison ivy is simpler than the cure of its evil effects.

-:- Hints for the Household -:-

Gardening hints: Always cut flowers with a sharp knife slanting, never with scissors. The scissors nip the ends of roses especially, and prevent water from going up the stalks. Use a trowel instead of a gardener's dipper. The dipper hardens the dirt all round root of plant but the trowel only very slightly. Water the hole before planting, not after, as the water washes the dirt from the roots.

To give mirrors and windows a brilliant gloss and at the same time discourage flies from settling on them, clean with a rag dipped in paraffin and then polish with a leather.

Cheese dishes will be more digestible if a pinch of bicarbonate of soda is added during the cooking.

A good hint for keeping flies away from the windows as well as to give the glass a brilliant polish is to soak a clean duster in paraffin oil, hang out to dry, then clean the windows well with it and polish with a soft cloth.

Painted and varnished wood may be cleaned by washing with a solution of borax and cold water, in the proportion of two tablespoons of the former to four pints of the latter. Dissolve the borax in a little boiling water before adding it to the cold water.

Borax may be used instead of bicarbonate of soda in cooking vegetables such as green peas and beans. It improves the flavor, preserves the color and renders them tender.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

It doesn't matter if autumn comes, black net will still be smart. A delicious frock of fine black net has a ruffle outlining the low decolletage in back and it extends over the shoulders to give a delicate touch to the deep V of the front neckline. The ruffle motif is repeated at the head of a spiral flounce that ends in a train.

Holding its own in competition with all other colors, is black for daytime, dinner and evening wear. A charming dinner frock is of black broadcloth with a deep squared decolletage filled in front with black lace. The necklace slants from the back to the shoulder. The long skirt is slashed in front.

Always a classic is the sheath-like evening frock with camisole top and narrow straps. This is done in heavy red crepe and has a square decolletage, daringly low in front, and deeper still in back. Enormous, brilliant ruby-colored stone clips are at the bodice at the beginning of the narrow shoulder straps.

Look in the mirror and see how you look in one of the new autumn hats. A delightful model is of black soleil and is a flat sailor with a bow and border of brick red velvet and a tiny veil.

Late vacationists get a chance to display smart bathing suits to an admiring throng. A lovely suit is of white silk jersey with inserts of smocking and a long, billowy cape of the white silk jersey.

Pancakes must have served as the model for some of the very flat berets. Quite as flat as a pancake is a beret, a large affair made of black faille ribbon with segments-of-pie appliques in black velvet.

Informal entertaining for small groups supplants the larger social functions during the summer and early fall, and especially during August are there a great many affairs of that kind given for house guests who must return home to pack sons and daughters off to school in September usually.

The William M. Hendersons have been entertaining as guests at their lovely Fox Chapel estate the Loyal Crawfords, of Chicago, formerly of Pittsburgh, and their daughter, Edith. They arrived Friday. Their hosts gave a dinner party for them the following evening.

And yesterday Mrs. David Frawley, of Oakmont, entertained them at a luncheon, and last night the Floyd Lockharts gave another dinner party in their home in Park Mansions. The Crawfords are leaving today to motor to Chicago.

Our out-of-town socialites are entertaining a good bit, too, these days. The Elmore A. Willetses, who are at Locust Valley, L. I., gave a dinner at the Stage Coach Inn, Locust Valley, Sunday evening.

R. K. Mellon Visits Mother

To Watch Hill by plane went Richard King Mellon during the week-end to visit his mother, Mrs. Richard Beatty Mellon, at her summer estate, "Sunshine." The E. P. Mellons, of Southampton, are spending some time with Mrs. Mellon.

MISS SUSAN O'NEIL

Very active among the Cape Cod summer colony at Hyannis, Mass., are the Edward K. Davises, who are at their Marston Mills estate, Wyano. Mrs. William R. Scott, who is at Osterville, is also prominent in social affairs there, as well as Mrs. Frederic Schaefer, at Wianno Head and Mrs. Frederick G. Blackburn, Hyannisport. The Davises won several prizes at the seventh annual flower show of the Cape Cod Horticultural Society at Osterville last week.

* * *

The Joseph W. Cappeaus and their daughters, Betty and Nancy, who are visiting with the Joseph P. Cappeaus at Southampton, L. I., are participating in a number of social diversions among the Southampton set.

Mrs. Maitland Alexander and Mrs. William A. Gordon, of Sewickley, were recent arrivals at the Hotel St. Regis in New York.

Home from Cobourg on September 6 will come Mrs. T. M. Jones III and her family.

'Seeing Eye' Name for Group

The Junior Woman's Club of Carnegie has added four committees to its personnel this year and has changed the name of the committee for the blind to the Seeing Eye committee, which would indicate that the work for the blind is to take this particular form of assistance. A hospitality committee, a cheer-up committee, spring dance and auditing committees are the new four, each one of which describes its work through its name.

While the Carnegie year books have always been far from uninteresting, there's a new and quite different tone to those which have just been distributed. One instance of this is in the way the Thanksgiving program is headed —"Why Should America Be Thankful?" Under it are the subtopics, "Freedom of the Press," "Social System" and "Education." A get-together meeting on September 18 will inaugurate the season, Miss Marion Speed accepting the gavel then from Miss Isabel Lea. There will be greetings from the senior club and from junior past presidents and senior advisers.

As a foundation for its publicity, the members have asked Mrs. Charles M. Bregg, club editor of the Sun-Telegraph to discuss "What About Publicity" and to answer questions at their first program meeting.

A Christmas sketch, an "evening at the opera," "Our Neighborhood (which is inclusive of Economy, Avella and Fort Duquesne), an operetta, an illustrated "Journey Through the Northwest," founder's day with a sealed program and "Pulitzer's Choice" are other things promised before the year ends in May.

Special events include a hospitality tea, a November dance, a colonial tea, a bridge tea, a choral bridge party, the spring dance and the mothers' tea.

Colloquium Meetings Listed

Mrs. CHARLES M. BREGG

Taking Thomas Paine's quotation, "There are times that try men's souls" as a sort of text, the Colloquium Club has planned a splendid program for the season opening October 8. On that day Mrs. F. W. Henriot will discuss "Political Trends as Expressed in World Leaders." As is customary the president's day meeting (October 22) will be held at the Pennsylvania College for Women where the new president, Dr. Nita L. Bixler, is a member of the faculty. It's to be an open meeting in charge of the program committee, Mrs. Robert G. Armstrong, Mrs. John M. Irwin, Mrs. A. A. Read and Mrs. J. L. Ritchey.

"Hitler," a review of "The Oppermans," "The Nazi Totalitarian State" and "Italy's Government Through Syndicates" are November's subjects, while in December the members will proceed to discuss "Mussolini," "Land Reclamation in Pontine Marshes," "Japanese-American Relations" and "Russo-Japanese Relations."

Another open meeting is listed for January, then programs on "Ireland - Retrospect and Prospect," a review of "Shake Hands With the Devil," "Best Sellers," "Story of Nitinsky," a survey of activities of the League of Women Voters and "A New Constitution for Pennsylvania" are to be heard early in the year.

Later papers, all by the club's own members, include "Adventure —Conquest of Mt. Everest," "Pic-ard and Stratosphere," "The Negro Since Booker T. Washington," and readings from Negro poetry, "Problem of Disarmament," "Hucksters of Death," "Modern Rackets" and "Social Legislation," from all of which you may believe Colloquium members will have a lively, and, as always, an interesting season. The closing meeting in May will be on American music with particular reference to Stephen Collins Foster.

Junior Women Will Honor Leaders

The Junior Woman's Club of Oakmont will observe its annual president's day on Saturday afternoon, September 8, in the Alcoma Country Club.

The committee in charge has planned a bridge tea in honor of the club's past presidents and the incoming president, Miss Margaret Riddile. The club is celebrating its tenth anniversary this year.

Miss Agnes Perry To Be Married

IN PARIS

WITH JANE EADS

PARIS, Aug. 28.—All those who recall how fond the Prince of Wales and Lady Furness, twin sister of Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt and daughter of the late Harry Hays Morgan, of New York, were of each other last year are registering amusement over a saucy tidbit.

The very Frenchy Countess De Villeneuve, spying Lady Furness the other night at a dinner party in Deauville wearing a veil over her head, commented in a stage whisper:

"Has Lady Furness decided to take the veil, now that she no longer sees the prince?"

Lady Furness is not the only American woman who misses the prince's sunny companionship this season. Miss Beth Leary, one of Biarritz's most popular hostesses, is suffering from a princeless complex while his highness a few doors away has been showering his attention on another American, Mrs. Wally Simpson, who rather ironically happens to be one of Lady Furness' "best friends."

At Deauville, by the way, they are saying that the Ali Khan, son of the omnipotent Agha Khan, has become the "consolation prize" for Lady Furness. They are seen constantly together.

As for the Prince of Wales, after his much publicized sojourn at Biarritz he is about to change scenery by a cruise in his yacht to Cannes—with the specific understanding however that he is not to be featured on the "social program" as he was there three years ago.

MRS. JOHN N. WILLYS

At that time the Cannes committee of ceremonies indiscreetly advertised that the prince would be present at several "especially arranged functions," which irritated him so he fled into hiding almost immediately.

John N. Willys, who is honeymooning with his bride, the former Mrs. Florence Dolan, whom he married almost immediately after his divorce from his first wife, the former Isabel Van Wie, is still loyal to his original family. He and his bride are going to Biarritz to visit Mrs. Jose De Landa.

LADY FURNESS

MRS. MAX OSER

. . . one of the best-dressed . . .

Willy's daughter by his first marriage.

Brevities:

Michael Gottlieb, bridge expert, is playing hearts with Mrs. Allen Lehman, of New York, at Biarritz.

Jerome Hill, son of the late J. J. Hill, railroad pioneer, and other American socialites are getting an economical sun tan on the roof of a public bathhouse under one of the Seine bridges.

The best-dressed women along the Riviera: Mrs. Max Oser, the former Mathilde McCormick, of Chicago, granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, in a white crepon dress with red and green spotted trimming; Mrs. Frederick Dwight, of New York, in a dull hand tucked white crepe with stitched silver belt; Mrs. W. E. Gwynne, of New York and Summit, N. J., in a pink flowered black chiffon.

Literary Club Is Formed by Delphians

Having completed its six years' course, the Bellevue Chapter of the Delphians has reorganized into a literary club under the name of the Spectator Study Club. Members will meet on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month and will devote this season to the study of Russia.

The program committe, Mrs. Clair Kinter, Mrs. Fred K. Freehafer, Mrs. Hargrave Coleberry and Miss Jean Lawrence, has outlined a comprehensive analysis of Russia. At the opening meeting on October 9 the new president, Mrs. Charles Saints, will assume her duties.

Edgewood Girl, DormontMan Married

The marriage of Miss Jeannette Elizabeth Ervine, daughter of Mrs. Jennie Tinker, of Hutchison avenue, Edgewood, to Harry Gross Barton, of Dormont, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Barton, of Blue Ridge Summit, Pa., was solemnized on Saturday afternoon in the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church by the Rev. Dr. E. C. McCown.

The bride wore a white crepe suite and a white hat with a shoulder corsage of gardenias.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Barton left on an eastern motor trip. After October 1 they will be at home in the Colonial apartments, Buchanon place, Mt. Lebanon.

Miss Gloekler Engaged to Wed

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Catherine Bernice Gloekler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert F. Gloekler, of Friendship avenue, to Edward L. Hoffmann, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hoffmann, of South Atlantic avenue.

Priscilla Erb Becomes Bride

Mrs. William F. Erb, of Fallowfield avenue, Beechview, announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Priscilla Ann Erb, to Frederic King, of Dormont. The ceremony took place Saturday morning in the First Presbyterian Church, Sixth avenue, with the Rev. R. H. McIlwaine officiating.

Frances Marion Griffey To Wed on Sunday

A bride of Sunday will be Miss Frances Marion Griffey, sister of Mrs. Read Yoder Stanton, when she will marry Walter Austin Stanton, son of Walter Stanton, of Atwood street, in the Oakland Methodist Episcopal Church, Forbes and Bouquet streets, at 3 o'clock.

The wedding will be the last one in that church since it will be merged with Christ Methodist Episcopal Church that same evening. The organ, to be dismantled the following day, is being left intact especially for Miss Griffey's wedding.

Mrs. Stanton is to be her sister's matron of honor, and Miss Edna Daniels, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss Elenor Altman will be bridesmaids. Miss Glea Naomi Beistel, stepsister of the bridegroom, will play the organ music for the ceremony. Laurie Setala will be best man and ushers will be Read Yoder Stanton, brother of the bridegroom, and his cousin, Raymond Daniels. Minor Everett Griffey, of Akron, will give his sister in marriage.

The reception will be held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Read Yoder Stanton, Fairway drive, Brentwood. After a brief wedding trip Mr. Stanton and his bride will be at home in Oakland avenue.

Members of the February 1931 class of Schenley High School and of the 1930 June class of Carrick High will be present. The bridegroom-elect is attending Carnegie Tech.

Sizes 14 to 20 (with SOME 12's).

Two-piece suits, dress and jacket effects in the new shades, with new detail! One-piecers in the new Silvertone fabrics that are so flattering and wearable. Tailored street things in dark shades . . . dressy numbers in good quality with a touch of metal . . . or whorls of braid . . . or velvet . . . or satin! Quite pert . . . very new . . . and gives you an alert air (strangely enough).

You'll find they're longer waisted than usual . . . and that they wear "dress" details (unlike many sweaters) . . . like bows, or buttons . . . or cunning tabs and gadgets at the neck. In ribbed knit . . . fancy knit . . . and a combination. With long sleeves, of course, and in sizes 34 to 40. All dark shades . . . bright shades . . . and combinations! TAXI DANCE GIRL CASE RENEWS CLEANUP CRY

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Renewed agitation for a cleanup of the taxi dance halls which dot the bright light belt across town after the manager of one of them, the Paradise Dance Hall at Times Square, had been entangled on a statutory charge.

Joseph Ross pleaded not guilty and was held for trial in $2,500 bail on a charge made by Patrolman William Spaulding, who visited the room representing himself as a businessman "from Tennessee."

The basis of the charge is an alleged practice by which men are permitted to "buy out" the taxi dancers to pay by a specified amount an hour. The girl then is permitted to leave the place with the patron.

GIRL IN CASE

Spaulding testified he offered to "buy out" Virginia Slavenski. He said Ross demanded $25 saying the girl would get part of it, and finally consented to release her for $15. The girl is held as a material witness.

A charge that such conditions are "probably extant in other dance halls throughout the city" was made in a letter to Police Commissioner John F. O'Ryan by Herman Robbe, foreman of the grand jury which indicted Ross. He wrote:

"This body feels that the Police Department should not stop with this isolated case, but should continue the general investigation of all dance halls so that vice of this kind may be stamped out."

TAXI DANCE HALLS

There are half a dozen taxi dance halls in the Times Square section and others throughout the city. Each place employs from 10 to 50 girls who dance with men patrons at so much a dance or by the hour. Many places have booths and secluded tables at which the dancers "sit out" under the latter arrangement. Virtually none of them sells liquor.

The patrons buy an admission ticket, usually for 25 cents, from a cashier and from them on the girl sells tickets directly to the man she entertains. The dancers receive a percentage of the tickets they sell.

The dance halls last came into notoriety when Edward P. Mulrooney, as police commissioner, made an investigation which led to an order for the girls to alter their mode of dress.

Anna Sten Slaps Slaves of Fashion

Star Asssails Excessive Femininity

ANNA STEN . . . . WOMEN CARRY "FUSSINESS AND FEMININITY TOO FAR," SHE THINKS

"Fussiness and excessive femininity are carried too far during a woman's working hours particularly, whether she spend them presiding over a household, in an office or on a stage."

Miss Sten, however, thinks a little feminine charm goes a long way during the daytime. She pointed out:

"A woman is a night flower. Her beauty and her fragrance is like the night jasmine that we have in the Ukraine. It is hidden from daylight.

"For her leisure and recreation, dress, mood and occasion alter everything. Her charm and her allure come up with the moon. She may wear clinging, soft gowns for a feline mood and an intimate occasion. She may wear brighth, electric colors to dazzle.

"The modern woman doesn't have to challenge decency in revealing herself. She doesn't have to deny herself comfort. I think the problem of dressing should be a simple one of grace and neatness and above everything, comfort.

"A woman is better able to work when she doesn't attract attention to herself as a woman. Femininity—sex, if you wish—isn't an asset to a woman working for a living. It's a distraction."

BEGGAR RACKET IN N. Y. NETS $3,000,000

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Beggars pluck $3,000,000 a year from Father Knickerbocker's pockets. They shuffle, they beg, they demand. They cringe and stumble wretched stories.

For charity, the parasite flips a dime. Charity? The beggars' bureau says no. It's a racket, they allege—shrewd, embracing and effective.

Since January, the bureau has been compiling a strange "who's who among beggars." It is a chronicle of thwarted lives, of cripples, dope and alcohol, of attempts to rehabilitate some of those to whom life has been futile and late.

2200 BEGGARS "RATED"

Twenty-two hundred beggars have come to the bureau from the magistrate's courts, whence they were goaded by policemen's nightsticks. The bureau questions, then recommends—jail, suspended sentence, another chance. Nine times out of ten the judge agrees.

One-third of the beggars were found to be chronic alcoholics; one in 20 a drug addict; three-fifths were 30 to 60 years old; most of them were citizens, men alone. One had been arrested 87 times.

Walter D. Wile, of the welfare council, said:

These professionals, he estimated, reap an alms harvest of $6 each a day, a total of almost $2,000,000 annually. The other $1,000,000 is split among thousands of transient "amateurs."

MERCENARY BOSS HINTED

Some officials hold beggars are organized, that the crippled and blind are bossed by a mercenary master, that their "take" goes into a common coffer. Wile said:

"We think so, but we can't prove it."

An old man whose trembling hands held together the rags that covered his body tattered into the bureau one day. Doctors found $12,000 in currency sewed into his dirt-laden clothes.

Then there were seven crones who huddled together in a cluttered basement room. They were slaves, it was said, of a burly master who had banked $20,000 from their begging.

So successful has the bureau been that five new branches are being added to the four in operation. More than 100 cities, including Bombay, India, have sought information.

Pudding Just Steeped In Ye Merrie Tradition

By PRUDENCE PENNY

Recently we had a recipe for baked stuffed ham, English style, and today we have a delicious English pudding recipe brought from England, according to Mrs. Clifford K. Ingraham, who says that he always has to a friend of hers somewhere. Mrs. K. Ingraham says:

Isn't that fine and won't it be fun to make and eat this pudding which is steeped in the traditional aroma of "Merrie Olde England"?

Send in your favorite recipe to Prudence Penny. Send it as many as you like, but remember, of course, that no recipe can be returned. Too many are received daily to return any of them. ANOTHER BOMB ROCKS HAVANA

Police described the bombing as the most destructive in Havana's long series of such disorders.

Mario Diaz Cruz, Jr., 17, was injured by falling glass.

Diaz Cruz intimated the bomb, which police said weighed more than 75 pounds, was placed there by political enemies.

It was the second serious bombing within 24 hours. One exploded early yesterday at the home of Jose Antonio Marcos, a newspaper publisher, seriously wounding Senora Marcos and injuring him slightly.

CALVERT FUND PROTEST FILED

Exceptions are on file today in Common Pleas Court to the first and final account of the guardians of Attorney George H. Calvert.

Judge James H. Gray early in the month made an order providing for the discharge of the guardians with the filing of the account, or after the hearing, if exceptions were filed.

The last of a half dozen exceptions were filed yesterday by Attorneys Broido & Rosenbaum, representing Joseph J. Graciano. He objects to the account filed by the Potter Title and Trust Company, Joseph L. Trefaller and Virginia A. Calvert, guardians. The exceptions will now go before the court for argument.

DOUG, JR., STARS IN NEW PLAY

BOURNEMOUTH, England, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Again playing as husband and wife, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Gertrude Lawrence last night opened their new play "Here Lies Truth" at the big municipally-owned pavilion here.

Young Fairbanks, whose heart is set on making a name for himself on the London stage, may have better luck this time than in his last attempt, critics believe.

The younger Fairbanks' last appearance on the English stage was at Manchester in May, when he appeared with Miss Lawrence in Phillip Cleaver's "The Winding Journey." The play, however, gave the American film star little opportunity to display his acting talent.

Although Fairbanks' engagement to Miss Lawrence has been rumored since he was divorced by Joan Crawford, he and the English star have steadfastly denied the reports.

MARY AND DOUG HAVE 2 DATES

International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 28.—Hope of friends that Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, filmdom's royal couple, would become reconciled and that Miss Pickford would dismiss a pending divorce suit, mounted today.

They had two "dates" yesterday, for luncheon and for dinner.

Miss Pickford visited a beauty parlor, met Douglas a few blocks from the United Artists' studio, and they drove in his car toward the beach.

TALKS 6 HOURS ON 'TRIANGLE'

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—It took Attorney William Van Rensselaer Smith six hours to tell what happened in 15 minutes one night three weesk ago, in a "raid" on his 34-room Beverly Hills residence.

Smith gave a deposition yesterday in a triangular legal affair. Albert Rogell, movie director, is suing Marian Douglas, actress, for divorce and Smith for $150,000 damages, charging the lawyer stole Miss Douglas' love. Smith is suing Rogell and his two lawyers for $500,000 damages, charging blackmail and libel.

Smith elaborated in great detail his story that Rogell and the two lawyers, accompanied by several private detectives, broke into his home and found Miss Douglas there. He said she had come to seek his legal advice in Rogell's divorce suit.

Little Charm Goes Long Way, Blonde Luminary Says

SLAPPED NITA, WIFE ADMITS

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—A policewoman testified in trial of Nita Cavalier's $51,200 damage suit against socially prominent Mrs. George Benton Wilson that Mrs. Wilson also received a scar of battle in their "street scene" here last June.

Miss Cavalier, actress and writer, has testified Mrs. Wilson accosted her and slapped her so hard as to leave a scar, and under circumstances that left her nervous system impaired. She said Mrs. Wilson acted under the mistaken impression she was on her way to keep a rendezvous with Wilson, a yachtsman.

Mrs. Wilson took the stand yesterday and said an anonymous telephone call sent her downtown to the subway terminal station where she encountered Miss Cavalier.

She said a strange voice told her on the telephone:

"Nita Cavalier is going to meet your husband."

As for the slap, Mrs. Wilson said:

"I just slapped her lightly and in self-defense."

M'CLELLAND FUNERAL SET

Funeral services for Norman E. McClelland, assistant cashier of the First National Bank, who drowned last Saturday in Long Lake, Huntsville, Ontario, are to be held tomorrow at 3 p. m. in Samson's funeral home. Burial will be in Allegheny Memorial Cemetery.

Suffering from exhaustion and exposure, J. W. Elgie, 325 Jefferson drive, Mt. Lebanon, who was with McClelland when he drowned, was reported much improved today.

McClelland and Elgie were fishing in a canoe when the craft capsized. Elgie, who could not swim, clung to the side of the canoe for three hours until an airplane pilot rescued him. McClelland drowned while swimming toward shore.

FIGHTING SPIRIT OF FRENCH AND HOYT HELPS PIRATES

James J. Long's Sports Comment

PIE TRAYNOR'S CHANCE of getting his club out of the second division before the season ends hinges on the remaining games of the present series with Boston. If the Pirates don't pull up on the Braves now, they can hardly hope to close the gap later on the road when the McKechnies will have the advantage of playing at home in 24 of their final 30 games. Failure to beat out the Hubbites for fourth place would cost Pittsburgh a record now held jointly with New York—that of having finished in the second division fewer times than any other club in the National League since the circuit was reduced to eight cities in 1900. The Pirates, like the Giants, have finished in the lower tier only six times in 34 years. The Bucs landed fifth three times, sixth seventh and eighth once.

O'Doul as Seal Skipper

BILL TERRY WILL not stand in the way of the San Francisco Club's reported plan to acquire Lefty O'Doul from the Giants and make him manager of the Seals next year. The New York pilot denies that he has a deal on with the Coast League club for O'Doul, but says that if San Francisco wants Lefty, and the latter wishes to go, there will be no trouble about arranging it.

O'Doul himself admits he has been given to understand he can have the Coast managerial job if he can get away from the majors, but says he doesn't want to go yet, believing he has two more major league seasons left in his system.

* * *

Balks at Player's Price

THE STORY FROM San Francisco said that the Seals expected to get O'Doul in part payment for Joe Di Maggio, sensational 19-year-old outfielder. Terry admits he would be glad to get the youngster, but balks at the price tag of $75,000. That's the sum the Seal owners demand for Di Maggio since the Cubs encouraged them with an offer of $50,000.

Joe Di Maggio

Terry asserts experience with Coast League players has proved that 75 grand, or even 50, would be an outrageous price for a 19-year-old kid. It is the opinion of the Giant manager that $25,000 is the outside price any club should pay for a minor leaguer. That's his limit, anyhow, he serves notice.

Only One Gopher Lost

TO GET A line on the size of the job the Pitt gridders will be up against when they meet Minnesota here on October 20, just consider that the Gophers have lost but one man from the lineup that was strong enough to give the Panthers their only defeat last year. Roy Oen, captain and center, was the lone regular lost. And even for that post there's a letter man available in Dale Rennebohn.

Coach Bernie Bierman has no fewer than 17 letter men at his command. With another year of experience added to the power the Gophers showed in beating Pitt in 1933, the Panthers surely are in for a rough old afternoon.

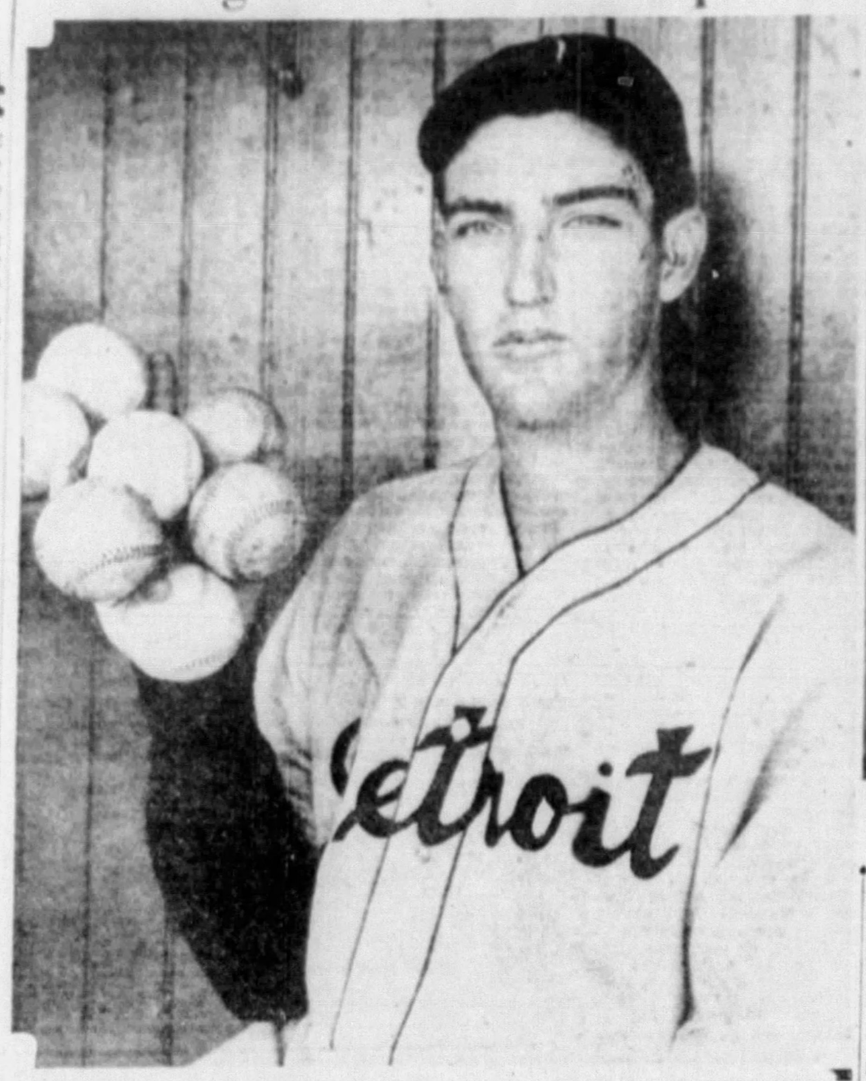
Bulk Alone Not Enough

JACK TORRANCE, GIANT all around athlete, who is said to intend becoming a professional fighter after the 1936 Olympic Games, may find himself disappointed in the expectation that he can reach the championship peak on size alone. Torrance stands 6 feet 5 inches and weighs close to 300 pounds, and evidently somebody has been whispering to him that his great bulk and fair boxing ability will enable him to win the heavyweight title.

Jack Torrance

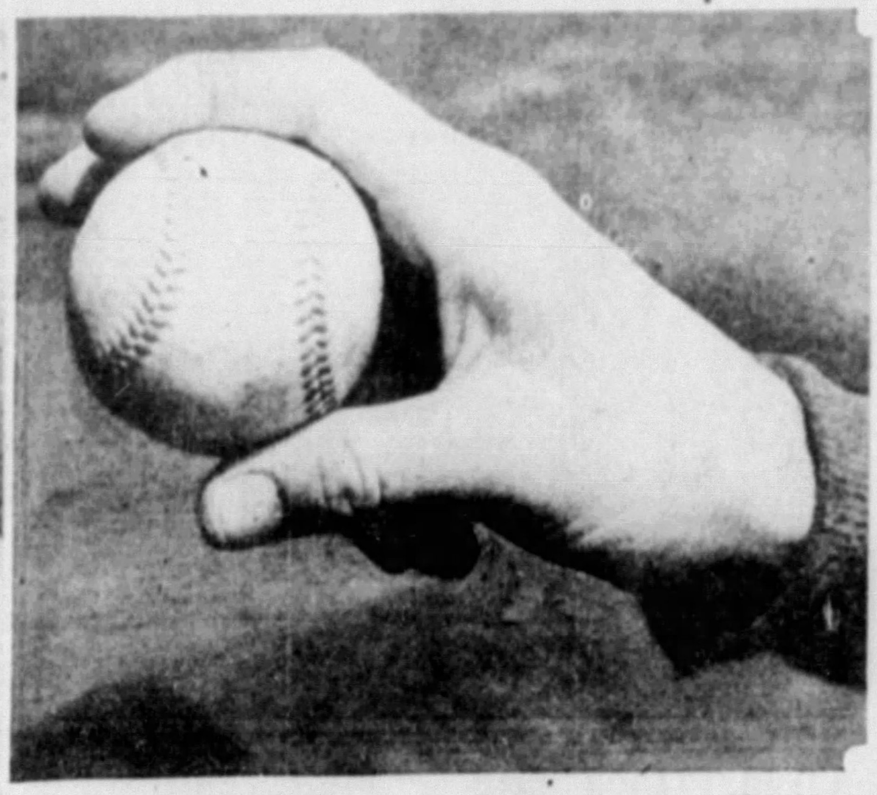
Experienced fistic men will tell the Louisiana mammoth that nothing could be farther from the fact than the idea that the mere possession of an abnormally large body gives a man an edge over heavyweights of ordinary proportions. Two giants, Jess Willard and Primo Carnera, have sat on the throne, but the ascent of each was clouded. And both Willard and Carnera were uncrowned by smaller opponents. Instead of being enough to win a championship, great bulk usually is a handicap to a fighter.

Big Hand and Good Grip Net Those Victories for the Schoolboy



HUGE HANDS OF TIGERS' MOUND STAR HOLDS SEVEN BASEBALLS . . . . CAN YOU DO IT?

Believe it or not, but big Schoolboy Rowe, the young pitching phenom of the Detroit Tigers, who has just equaled the American League record of 16 consecutive victories, can hold seven baseballs in his pitching hand. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.



THE SCHOOLBOY ROWE GRIP . . . . . HE USES THIS ONE IN ALL HIS DELIVERIES

Here is the grip the Schoolboy uses as he prepares to propel the ball plateward. It's given him 20 victories in all so far this season. Tomorrow he faces the A's in an effort to set a new league record for consecutive wins. This is an International News Photograph Service picture.

FRIENDS HONOR LEONETTI

The Little Bucs, of McKeesport, celebrated "Leonetti Day," arranged in honor of Oscar Leonetti, Duquesne High School graduate, who plays right field, in a fitting manner yesterday when they defeated Monessen in a Pennsylvania State Asociation game at Cycler Park, McKeesport, 5 to 3. Leonetti showed his appreciation for the honors bestowed upon him by his fellow townsmen and McKeesport fans by contributing a double which aided materially in the victory.

Fred E. Haines, principal at Duquesne Junior High School, presented Leonetti a gladstone bag, the gift of Duquesne baseball fans.

D. Mundo allowed only five hits as Charleroi whitewashed Jeannette, 5 to 0, while J. Davis hurled three-hit ball to give Greensburg a 7-0 victory over Washington in other league games.

Bill Corum Writes:

By BILL CORUM
Written for International News Service.

ORANGEBURG, N. Y., Aug. 28.—They had Jimmy McLarnin training with a leopard here yesterday for his return bout with Barney Ross on September 6. But I doubt if he found the spotted cat as dangerous as he will find Barney. In the first, place it was a very young and nervous leopard, and in the second place it didn't have as good a left hand as the two-time champion of Chicago.

Jimmy McLarnin

Furthermore, as you very well know, a leopard never changes its spots, whereas Ross is a cagy young man who can change his style of fighting to suit the occasion, or even the emergency as it arises.

McLarnin admitted as much in his dressing room after his workout, when we stopped by to put the D. A. on him while he was getting his rub-down.

"What makes you think you can win this fight after losing the last one?" we wanted to know.

Claims He Won

"What makes you think I lost the last one?" countered James.

"Well, I scored it that way, to begin with," I told him, "and what was more important, so did the referee and the one judge. The other judge gave practically every round to you, as I recall. Let me see now, what was his name?"

"O'Rourke," supplied James.

"When you say that, grin," I warned.

So he grinned, for he did not lose his sense of humor when he lost his welterweight title in the Madison Square Garden Bowl last May.

"But you really felt that you had won the fight then?" I wanted to know.

"Yes," he replied, "and it seems to me the very worst the officials could have given me was a draw. Much has been made over the fact that the judge voted for me was an Irishman. But isn't it possible that the other officials had leanings of some kind toward Ross?

"I don't want to be squawking at this late date. We are too close to a final settlement of the question now to be going all over that again. I took my beating and kept my mouth shut. But you ask me an honest question and so I give you an honest answer: 'Yes, until I saw Humphreys walking toward Ross' corner that night I hadn't the vaguest idea that they'd take my title from me in such a close fight.'"

Jewish Boys Tough

"You've never had much trouble with Jewish fighters," I prompted, as Trainer Charley Schoeneman parted the muscles in Jim's pitching arm and began to tease them one by one.

"Yes, I've had trouble with them and trouble aplenty. Anybody who has fought Louis Kid Kaplan and Ray Miller and Benny Leonard has had his troubles. But they never caught up with me until Ross came along, or not very seriously anyhow. I guess I was meant to have all my trouble with him. But he's a nice, clean kid, Barney is, and a smart fighter with it, and if he can beat me a second time it will be because he is a better fighter than I am now.

"But I'm not trying to build up any advance alibis because of my age. I won't be 27 years old until next December, and if I kept busy fighting I should be able to go on for three more years or until I am 30. I mean by that go on being a fighter because when the day comes I just have to go in there and take it. I'll quit that night. I wouldn't make one more fight even if I was broke, once I found myself stopping 'em. There is no percentage in that even though you are getting paid for it. There are too many smarter ways to earn at least a living."

SUHR TO SEE LEGION GAME

Gus Suhr will be the guest of honor at the Swissvale-Allison Park American Legion game at the Union Switch and Signal grounds in Swissvale this evening. The game gets under way at 6 o'clock.

The Ambassador Club, champion of the Greater Pittsburgh League, will meet the Parmelee team at Frazier Field, Oakland, at 6:15 this evening.

Last evening the Book nine dispensed with City League baseball long enough to travel to Sewickley to defeat that team in an independent game, 9-1.

In other important tussles, Ingomar swamped the Ottie Cochrans in the North Side Twilight League, 13-2; Crafton Presbyterians vanquished Ingram in the Crafton-Ingram Church League, 8-4, while Lucerne took the first battle of the R. & P. League playoffs from Ernest, 1-0.

Bucs Could Use Moundsman of This Type

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Forty-four innings in which he allowed only six hits and just one run is the pitching record compiled by 19-year-old Omar Meyers, southpaw twirler for the White House A. C.

In two seven-inning games, Meyers allowed no hits and no runs. Last night, he similarly blanked the Fairchance A. C. before the game was called in the sixth inning because of rain. In the six innings he struck out 12 batters.

Duquesne, Ambridge Open for Grid Games

Duquesne is open for games on September 22 and 28. Teams interested in filling these dates write or call Coach Parker, Duquesne High School, Duquesne, Pa.

September 22 and 29 are still open on the Ambridge schedule. Coach Moe Rubenstein may be reached at the high school in Ambridge.

COUNTY FAIR RACES TODAY

Four harness horse races, a one-mile and three-quarter mile running race, and a half-mile pony event were scheduled at the South Park track today in conjunction with the opening of the second annual Allegheny County Free Fair at South Park.

Besides the racing program, a polo game was offered with South Park opposing Old Furnace, of Zelienople. Other polo games are scheduled daily, with the exception of Saturday, until Monday.

Harvard Nine Bows To Japanese, 9-3

TOKIO, Aug. 28. — (AP.) — Rikkyo University defeated Harvard, on a baseball tour of Japan, 9 to 3, today. Two Japanese pitchers allowed the visitors only five hits. The score:

Harvard	3	5	1
Rikkyo	9	4	2

TWO HURLERS STAND OUT FOR BUCS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The spirit of Larry French and Waite Hoyt, with their club foundering in second division depths, was commended by the faithful today as the followers of the home club considered the worth while things salvaged from the wreck of the 1934 Pirate ship.

The storm scene put on by Fighting Larry in the first inning of yesterday's scrap with the Braves was worthy of a series in which a pennant was at stake. French was convinced he had made a double play after fielding a liner, but Umpire Ernie Quigley ruled that he had not made a fair catch of the drive before throwing to third.

Larry French

French was ejected and speculation this morning was rife as to whether he would be fined and suspended for his angry remarks.

Hoyt's show of teamwork has been manifest in a dozen different occasions of the present home stay of the Pirates. Recently Waite won three games in four days, two of his victories being over the Giants. Saturday he pitched and defeated the Phillies as he worked a full ball game; he went into Sunday's contest as a relief pitcher and he was on the mound in the ninth inning to clinch yesterday's contest, which the Pirates won, 8 to 5.

YOUNG RECALLED

Waite's daily appearance is due to the fact that Heinie Meine is sick and Leo Chagnon laid up with injuries. Also there may be others who are not eager to go to the slab.

The Pirates' management announced last night that Floyd Young, utility infielder, who was optioned to Albany a few weeks ago, has been recalled, due to the fact that Commissioner Landis ruled that the player already had been optioned out twice and the third time is not permitted by major league rules. Sent away to make room for Busleigh Grimes, the return of Young made it necessary for the Bucs to place Pitcher Ed Holley on the voluntary retired list. He came here from the Phils on waivers.

Before Larry could get set properly, he had been nicked for two hits by Urbanski and Mallon and the runners were on third and second.

Jordan rammed a liner back toward French. The ball was less than a foot off the ground as French reached for it with his gloved hand. To this writer it seemed that he juggled the rocket and held it. French later confirmed that this opinion was true.

LARRY EXPLODES

Urbanski lit out for the plate and he was almost half way there as French came up with the ball. He shot the sphere to Thevenow for what looked like a double play, but as he did, Manager McKechnie shouted to Umpire Quigley that Larry had dropped it.

Quigley backed up the manager of the Braves and his decision brought French charging up the diamond. All over the stands could be heard his ingignant roar:

"I did like h— drop it!"

Larry rushed the umpire whose personal safety seemed endangered. Quigley refused to allow the catch and French, backed by Manager Traynor and others, wanted to get Umpire Magerkurth's ruling on the play, but the umpire-in-chief would not agree to any suggestion.

Roused to a high degree, French carried on in such a violent manner that he was ejected and eventually the game resumed with Ralph Birkofer opposing Flint Rhem.

CLAIMS CATCH FAIR

After he had dressed, French paced up and down in the Pirate clubhouse, his invective being sharpened by reason of the fact that Quigley would not take Magerkurth into his consultation. On several occasions at Forbes Field, the field umpire has reversed the plate official when such EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: THE ETERNAL PERAMBULATOR PUSHER—Pioneer residents of Two Rivers, Wis., cannot remember the time when Mrs. Aimee Miller has not been seen on the streets and highways pushing an empty baby carriage. Curious folk have questioned her at times regarding this strange habit, and she only states that the buggy serves as a cane, and she is unable to walk unaided. But, strangely enough, she has many times walked from Two Rivers over to Algoma and back, about 75 miles, refusing lifts from motorists as she pushed her trusty "cane on wheels." Mrs. Miller is now about 79 years old and has been faithfully pushing the carriage about for more than 32 years.

OAKMONT GAINS LEAD IN WEST PENN GOLF TEAM PLAY

HULTON STARS GIVEN FIGHT BY SHANNOPIN

By TOM BIRKS

The Oakmont Country Club's well-balanced eight-man team gained a slight edge over Shannopin in the Scotch foursome play this morning and appeared destined to succeed Highland as the Western Pennsylvania champion as the singles play, concluding the competition in the annual golf team championships, got under way at the Fox Chapel Golf Club this afternoon.

Oakmont rolled up six points to the sixesomes to top Shannopin by one and one-half points. South Hills, the third survivor of the elimination staged last week when Oakmont ended Highland's two-year reign, tallied only one and one-half points and appeared to be eliminated.

The singles dueling this afternoon provided the feature of the day's competition as Jack Benson, of South Hills, West Penn amateur champion, Knox M. Young, Jr., of Shannopin, 1933 titleholder, and George Flinn, Jr., Oakmont's No. 1 performer, were matched in a battle of local links titans. The summary of this morning's sixsome play:

OAKMONT

George Flinn, Jr., and Billy Myers, 1 point. Ray Babcock and T. B. Jamieson, 1. 2 points. D. A. E. Hamlin and W. V. Ellis, 2 points. H. C. Bywater, 0, and J. W. Danforth, 1 points. Total—6 points.

SHANNOPIN

Knox M. Young, Jr., and Miss Evans, 1 point. Fred Bragg, Jr., and Eddie Meyer, 1 point. John Trimble and Bill Bruno, 2 points. Jim Bunting and E. Ells, 1 point. Total—4½ points.

SOUTH HILLS

The Alcoma Country Club's caddie team retained its caddie championship by scoring 321 points in the tournament staged at Longue Vue. Allegheny Country Club was second with 343 points, 22 behind the leader, and South Hills was third with 344. Nineteen clubs had teams entered.

TIED FOR MEDAL

Tom Blackovic and Fred Nunnenberg both scored fine 77s to lead the way to Alcoma's victory. Right behind the deadlocked medalists was another Alcoma representative, Jack Richter, who scored a 79.

Besides the team trophy, the Western Pennsylvania Golf Association presented 10 prizes to the various winners. W. White, of Longue Vue, and Al Ford, of Allegheny, tied for fourth and fifth places with 82s.

At the conclusion of the golf competition, the boys were entertained with a banquet by the officials of the West Penn body. Edward E. McCoy, George Ormiston, Rex Dunn and C. K. R. Brown were at the speakers' table.

While the caddies were staging their tourney at Longue Vue, the caddie masters competed at Nemacolin. Johnny Johnson, of Stanton Heights, won low gross prize with a 73, one over par. Joby Connors, of Chartiers Heights, was second with 74. Frank Benick, of Castle Shannon, and Butch Kaiser, of Highland, shared third honors with 77s.

PRO-AMATEUR SHARED

To the Sports Editor:

An Englishman said the other day, that there is a great amount of interest among the people of his country about the United States. I understand the number of English newspaper and magazine writers now getting material in the States has picked up. That is a good sign. The longer I live the more I realize that people think about only those things that writers write about and if we can make the English people really understand the American viewpoint we won't ever have any international difficulties in that direction. I would like to see some English sports writers come over here and study big league baseball.

HONUS WAGNER.

Our Sea-going Gridder

Who's this roving fellow doing the sailor's hornpipe? None other than Johnny Blood, the new quarterback of the Pittsburgh Pirates' professional football team, now in camp at Mt. Pleasant. He arrived here yesterday and hustled off immediately to camp. He's a former Notre Dame player who has starred with the Duluth, Pottstown and Green Bay professional teams, the Pirates purchasing him from the last-named outfit. He has just come from a trip around the world, serving as a pursuer on a ship. Hence the hornpipe. This is a Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

PIRATES' GRID SQUAD BUSY

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., Aug. 28.—The Pittsburgh Pirates' professional football team, in training here for their opening National League game with Cincinnati in Pittsburgh on September 9, went through their second workout here today under the watchful eyes of Coaches Luby DiMeolo, Jimmy Rooney and Cad Reese. Art Rooney, president of the club, was an interested spectator as his athletes went through a brisk session.

President Rooney is keeping an accurate check on the newcomers because league rules stipulate that all clubs must reduce their rosters to 25 players for the opening game.

LEE MUZZLES GIANTS, CUBS CREEP UP

Associated Press

Young Bill Lee, six-foot three-inch right-hander, has re-asserted his mastery over the world champion New York Giants but where it would do the Chicago Cubs the most good.

The burly rookie, striking his best form in weeks, scored his third successive victory over the champions yesterday, shading Carl Hubbell, master of the screwball, in a great pitching duel, 1-0. Lee permitted only three hits, allowed no Giant to pass his feet on third base and allowed only three to get as far as second. Coming on the heels of Lonnie Warneke's three-hit triumph of the previous day, the victory enabled the Cubs to elbow the Giants, National League lead to four and one-half games.

CUYLER SHOWS SPEED

Lee needed assistance to protect his perfect record against the Giants and he got it from his fellow-rookie, George "Tuc" Stainback, and the veteran Hazen Cuyler. In the seventh the Hazy Cuyler singled and came all the way home on Stainback's double against the outfield wall. That was the end of the day's scoring, as Hubbell gave only five hits.

The American League situation, in the meantime, remained unchanged as the Detroit Tigers walloped the Philadelphia Athletics, 11-6, while New York's Yankees were squeezing out a 3-2 decision over the Chicago White Sox. This combination of results left the Tigers still four and one-half games in front.

Tom Bridges gave the A's only five hits as he pitched his first victory over the Tigers' current Eastern tour. His mates supported him with a 14-hit drive to which Manager Mickey Cochrane and Marvin Owen contributed three hits apiece. Babe Ruth's pinch double in the seventh drove in the tying and winning runs for the Yankees and ruined Milt Gaston's seven-hit pitching performance for the Pale Hose.

INDIANS TRIUMPH

Other American League games saw Cleveland hold on to third place by downing the Boston Red Sox, 6-5, and Washington break its fifth-place tie with St. Louis by downing the Browns, 6-1.

Casey Stengel's Brooklyn Dodgers kept the Giants' defeat from being any more costly than it was by hammering out a 10-1 victory over the third-place St. Louis Cardinals behind Tom Zachary's effective pitching.

REYMAN BONAR

Notre Dame is looking for a big season in its football fortunes this fall, and Elmer Layden, its new coach, who was Duquesne University's last and Notre Dame's personnel has cropped in the fashion with the Irish.

This is the word that comes from Reyman (Bun) Bonar, Duquesne University quarterback, who hails from Bellaire, O., really all we needs has gridders inspired Notre Dame's the sportsman Bonar is a visitor in Pittsburgh with John Jerome high school coach Mikey Mitchell, the light-heavyweight boxer, who is training at the Pittsburgh Lyceum for his six-round windup battle with Mickey Dupont at Akron Saturday night.

SAYS WORD FOR HUNK

Bonar also has a kind word for Hunk Anderson, who was deposed as Notre Dame's coach at the end of the disastrous 1933 season. He says it wasn't altogether Hunk's fault that the team didn't come up to expectations, adding:

"We just simply couldn't get going until the last game, with Army, when we upset the dope and won. Hunk was unfortunate in that several of the best players were not available and he had to depend upon sophomores to take their places.

"I think we'll be in pretty good shape this year with Mr. Hinkwich back for the fullback job and the players of last year more experienced. Then, too, the coming of Layden, one of the famous Four Horsemen, has served to pep up everybody. They like the way he goes about things, and we accomplished a lot in our spring practice."

LAYDEN BEST KICKER

Incidentally, Bonar revealed that fact that Layden still is the best kicker on the Notre Dame campus. There isn't a punter on the squad whom he can't outkick, and he is bound to develop a few good punters with his coaching.

Bellaire will boast three quarterbacks on major college teams this year. Bonar at Notre Dame, John Kadlic at Princeton, and Mike Mancias at Pitt. In addition, a Bellaire boy, Elvo Kalbaugh, is the center and captain at Princeton.

BEARS' LINEUP INTACT FOR GAME FRIDAY

Associated Press Sports Writer.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28. The Chicago Bears, professional champions, will be able to put their full strength in the field against the Chicago All-Stars in the big game for charity tomorrow night at Soldier Field Friday night.

Coach George Halas declared today it had been learned that Dave Barnhart, Johnny Rob and Bill Dudley would be kept out of the game for certain.

Fearful that the All-Stars might complete a couple of lucky passes for touchdowns Halas had his men working at pass defense and the attack at today's practice session.

Meanwhile the All-Star coaches continue to wait about their chances. Coach Dick Harlow pointed out the difficulty of coordinating 30 different men in one style of play.

The Campbell Shamrocks, of the East End, will represent Western Pennsylvania in the national softball tournament at Chicago next month under the auspices of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

Last evening at Greenlee Field, with Anthony (Bullet) Oskin chalking up his eleventh straight mound victory in the tourney, the Shamrocks slugged their way to a 12-2 triumph over the Commercial Garage team of the Hill district, to decide the senior championship of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph's first annual Western Pennsylvania amateur softball tournament. The tournament was begun 10 weeks ago and champions were crowned in the junior girls, intermediate and senior divisions. Only the senior champions will be sent to Chicago.

BELANSKY BIG STAR

Pitchers Irving Brenner and William (Hooks) Jordan, ace moundsmen of the Commercials were solved for 15 hits by the Shamrocks. Harry Belansky, Shamrocks' first baseman, led the attack with three safeties and two passes. The winners took a five-run lead in the fourth and were never headed.

Brenner and Louis Pugliano, two of the Commercials' stars, were injured in the contest. Brenner was injured when hit in the neck with a line drive off Miller's bat, while Pugliano was hurt sliding into first. Both resumed play after recovering.

Harry Langford started the five-run attack in the fourth when he singled to left and went to third when V. Del Greco dropped Wincko's fly. After Brenner had retired Landau for the first out with a fine catch of his fly, Chester Langford gorunded to D. Bartirome, whose throw to the plate was high, Harry Langford scoring. Wincko scored a moment later with the second run on Atkinson's grounder to Pugliano, who threw late to the plate. After Albert took Massimino's pop for the second out, Pitcher Oskin helped his own cause with a single to score C. Langford and Atkinson. Yellen followed with another base hit to score Oskin with the fifth run.

LOSERS DISHEARTENED

The big inning seemed to have disheartened the Commercials and they never struck their real stride. Del Greco scored the first run for them in the fifth when he tripled to right and crossed the plate on Albert's single.

The Langford brother act and an error added two more runs to the Shamrocks' total in their half of the fifth. Harry Langford doubled to left and went to third when V. Del Greco dropped Landau's fly. Harry Langford and Landau both scored on Chester Langford's double. Brenner replaced Jordan at this point.

Another run was added in the seventh when Chester Langford singled and scored on Atkinson's double to center. The Commercials got their second run in the eighth when Metz and DeBattista both singled. Metz took third on Jordan's fly to Harry Langford and scored when the latter's toss to Yellen got away from the third sacker.

WINCKO TRIPLES

The Shamrocks put on pressure in the last of the eighth when they added their last four runs. One was out when Yellen singled. After Belansky walked, Miller drove a liner off Brenner's neck, knocking him off his feet, Yellen scoring. After Brenner was given first aid, Harry Langford forced Belansky at second. Wincko then drove out a three-bagger to right center to score Miller and Harry Langford. Landau's single permitted Wincko to cross the plate. The score:

America's Cup History

The America

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Young George Steers, designer of several of the fastest yachts of the New York Yacht Club fleet, was given an order by six members of the N. Y. Y. C. on November 15, 1850, to build The America with which they planned to invade British waters at the invitation of English businessmen.

The schooner was contracted for at a delivery price of $30,000, but owing to two delays in the completion of the work, the price was reduced to $20,000.

The America was launched on May 3, 1851, and sailed from New York on June 21 with 13 persons aboard. The schooner made the passage to Havre, France, in 17½ days, becoming the first yacht to cross the Atlantic.

The French port was chosen as the first stopping point to prevent the English getting a chance to study the yacht while she was being refitted. However, The America had a brush with a fast cuter in the trip across the channel and her speed was no longer a secret.

Several challenges for match races were posted by John C. Stevens, then commodore of the N. Y. Y. C., along with side bets of 10,000 guineas and 10,000 pounds, but they were rejected. Finally the America was entered in the Royal Yacht Squadron regatta, competing with 14 yachts ranging in size from 47 to 392 tons, with the America weighing 170 tons.

The America sailed the 53 nautical miles of the regatta's feature race in 10 hours 37 minutes, finishing 18 minutes ahead of Aurora, the smallest boat in the fleet. The victory carried with it the squadron cup, which later became known as "The America's Cup," symbol of supremacy in international yachting.

One of the legends told in connection with the race concerned Queen Victoria, of England. When apprised the America had won, the Queen turned to the quartermaster and inquired:

He replied:

"Ah, Your Majesty, there was no second."

They had the comic section cast parade at the Hickey Park fighting in Millvale last night, and it turned out to be just that sort of a show.

The Moose Butch-Ray Boree windup was a Mutt and Jeff affair, with the elongated Boree towering over the squat Moose, who knocked him out after 2 minutes 14 seconds of the fourth round.

Boree, styled the featherweight champion of Florida, held his own in the first round, but was down four times in the second, the first time for no count and then three times for nine. He took another nine count and was out at the bell in the third. A left to the jaw finally felled Butch for keeps, with rain drops spattering the ring.

Boree, with his height and reach, hit Moose often, but couldn't hurt him, and Moose's heavy lefts were too much for him. Moose outweighed his man by four pounds, so that he had all of the heft against Boree's six-foot string-bean build.

CLOWNING SHORT-LIVED

In the first scheduled 10-rounder, a K. O. Huber, of Philadelphia, entered the ring as a takeoff on Popeye, the Sailor, wearing a gob's cap and carrying a pipe in his mouth, and went through a lot of clowning. It was poor acting and his "fighting" was worse. Mike Barto, of New Kensington, his opponent, couldn't see the alleged humor of the situation, and knocked down the visitor with his first serious punch, a left, which raised a lump on the victim's jaw. Huber got up groggy on sea legs at the count of five and Referee Red Robinson stopped the bout to save him from further punishment.

Frankie Hughes, a tough veteran from Indianapolis, bested Tiger Joe Randall, of Elizabeth, in the semi-final 10-rounder, a hard fight in which Hughes, a slow-moving puncher, floored Randall for nine as the second round ended and for seven in the fourth and had the local man holding on from a body attack throughout the closing stages. One of the judges voted for a draw.

GORNICK-HOLT DRAW

In the best fight of the night, the six-round opener, Marty Gornick and Jackie Holt fought to a referee's draw. A right to the jaw dropped Gornick for a count of nine at the start of the fourth round.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Joes Zeiano, the former local bantamweight, now is fighting out of San Francisco, where his brother, Mickey Dodge, also is a boxer. A few weeks ago Joey and Tony Marino, of Duquesne, who also is campaigning in the Far West, fought a draw in Reno, Nev.

Ray Fabiani, the Philadelphia wrestling promoter, who will stage shows at Forbes Field and Duquesne Garden here this fall and winter, postcards from Reno, where he is vacationing.

Billy Williams boxes Nax Towney and Freddie Blevins meets Buddy Sherlock in six-rounders and Bill Crickett and Tiger Hairston are in the eight-round semi-final to the Paul Oger-Jimmy Columbo fight for the welterweight title of West Virginia at Charleston, Friday night.

Movies will be taken of the Vince Dundee-Ted Yarosz fight for the world middleweight title at Forbes Field two weeks from tonight.

A change in the plans of Dundee will have him remain at his New Jersey training quarters until five or six days before the battle, when he will come here and work either at Hickey Park or the Pittsburgh Lyceum, depending upon the weather.

morning contest and play both games in the afternoon.

Burleigh Grimes and Eddie Brandt opposed each other in the first game of the dual bill of today. Heinie Meine was sick with the flu and was unable to dress for the afternoon's work.

Al Lang, former mayor of St. Petersburg, Florida, and a native of Pittsburgh, arrived in town in time to see the fun. Al was accompanied by Mrs. Lang.

Pep Young, who was ordered back to the Pirates from Albany by Judge Landis, had not arrived as the first game got under way, but Joe Cambria, owner of the Albany club, was on hand. Cambria had a conference with Manager Traynor.

The Braves jumped on Grimes for four hits and two runs before he was relieved by Bill Swift in the first inning. Swift also gave a single and a run, making it three tallies for the visitors.

A double by Thompson and an infield out brought in another run for Boston in the fourth canto.

RAINBOW GAINS VICTORY OVER YANKEE

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Yankee's campaign for the honor of defending the America's Cup next month has met with an abrupt and surprising check.

In the same light breeze in which the Boston sloop had shown to such advantage previously, Yankee trailed Harold S. Vanderbilt's newly-constructed Rainbow, the only other contender, by more than three minutes in the fifth race of the final trials yesterday.

For once, Charles Francis Adams, former Navy secretary and pilot of Yankee, was outmaneuvered at the start and Rainbow led her home over the 30-mile triangular course by three minutes seven seconds.

The result left Rainbow and Yankee all even on the basis of the final trials with each holding a victory over the other. Taking all the preliminary races into consideration, however, Yankee still holds a wide lead over the Vanderbilt sloop.

The two contenders were slated for another brush today, but how many more times they were to be called upon to race was up to the selection committee of the New York Yacht Club, entrusted with the cup defense, knew.

FRENCH, HOYT AID BUCS

French's voice rang with sincerity as he shouted:

"I would stake my life that I caught that ball."

Larry intimated that were he to be fined and suspended he would not submit to the punishment in view of the facts. He was especially put out because Quigley would not confer with Magerkurth on the play.

BUCS COME FROM REAR

The Braves made three runs during and after the episode. The Pirates scored one in the second and they hammered Rhem off the slab in the seventh when they scored thrice and moved to the front, only to have the Braves tie in the eighth.

Paul Waner's ripping hit with the bases loaded and two out in the eighth scored two runs and decided the game. A moment later the two Waners went over on a double steal and a bad throw by Whitney in the play. Red Lucas batted for Birkofer in the round and Hoyt finished. Bob Smith did the relief trick for the Braves.

Menzel 'Retires' In Rye Net Play

RYE, N. Y., Aug. 28.—(AP.)—Seventeen players remained today in the chase for the eastern grass court tennis championship, but Roderich Menzel, towering Czecho-Slovakian, viewed proceedings from the sidelines.

Menzel was eliminated in the second round by Dr. Eugene McCauliff, of Yonkers, 4-6, 12-10, 4-0, retired. Menzel quit on the plea that he had injured his knee when he fell while dashing in for a net shot at game point in the fourth game of the third set.

All the seeded Americans—Frank Shields, Lester Stofen, Frankie Parker, Cliff Sutter, Berkeley Bell, George Lott, Jack Tidball and Gene Mako—had reached the third round.

STOCK MARKET IN GRIP OF DULLNESS

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—(AP)—Most financial markets were formless affairs today, with dullness paramount and moderate price changes indicating little more than current indecision regarding security trends.

The majority of stocks moved aimlessly in a narrow groove, failing to find sufficient stimulus in the news to give them a substantial push in any direction. While cotton improved, grains and other commodities were somewhat hesitant. Bonds emulated stocks. The dollar again showed strength in terms of European gold currencies.

With trading volumes generally showing few if any signs of the long looked-for fall "boom," brokerage circles were bemoaning the lack of market leadership and hoping for something to emerge from Washington that may break the stalemate.

In some quarters, which were inclined to attribute the recent speculative timidity largely to the prevalence of adverse business psychology, there were expectations that the administration would soon make a further reassuring gesture to industry. At the same time it was admitted there will still be numerous clouds on the economic horizon.

There were many guesses as to what Secretary Morgenthau may say in the address he is to make tonight at Washington on government financing. Banking circles did not believe he would go into the administration's monetary policy.

Although the financial district was confident the Treasury's September-October financing program would be of the usual refunding type, there was a rumor the authorities had discussed the advisability of paying off the maturing $525,000,000 in bills with cash instead of converting them into new obligations. This could be done, it was said, without greatly impairing the Treasury's cash position and would mean a substantial saving in interest.

Reorganization of the technical activities of the NRA was being studied closely by trade observers. The decision of the cotton garment industry to oppose the President's stand on higher wages and shorter hours, however, was received with mixed sentiment by those paying much attention to the somewhat confused code situation.

FARM INCOME GAIN SEEN

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—With cash farm income for 1934 estimated at about $6,000,000,000, farmers will receive more money for their crops than they have since 1930, an estimate of the bureau of agricultural economics indicated today.

Holding that the advance in the price of farm products will continue during the remainder of the year and will offset decreased production, the bureau estimates the increase over last year at $1,000,000,000.

Benefit payments for crop reduction and purchase of drought-stricken cattle will account for $440,000,000 of the increase in income.

Forbes

Confidence Needed.
Mergers Indefinite.
Many to Join.

By B. C. FORBES

A GENTLEMAN who has lived long, achieved notably, given much, August Heckscher—86 this week—writes this column emphasizing the need for nurturing rather than kicking and cutting business confidence.

Mr. Forbes

He says:

"We still worship the golden calf. We disregard the fact that all the gold in the world will not buy a loaf of bread or a glass of water on a barren island in mid-ocean."

Concurrently, we have belabored that noble old gentleman who goes by many aliases, including credit and co-operation, with fists and feet until he has taken to the tall timber.

"Let us bear in mind that we must revise our rules of thought and action before this devilish depression, still an obsession, will depart."

BOTH GOVERNMENT and business, as I see it, need to modify their attitude and action. The government cannot hope to restore prosperity until they restore among business men faith that industry will be accorded reasonable opportunity to thrive.

Men of affairs must adopt a sympathetic, liberal, farseeing attitude towards social legislation. The old order cannot possibly be restored. Underdogs must be treated with greater consideration.

MUCH LESS has been heard in recent months regarding the activity of brain trusters. If, as seems evident, President Roosevelt has learned from experience to doubt their infallibility, what a step towards reviving confidence and employment he could take by enrolling an unofficial advisory cabinet, composed of America's ablest men of affairs—and conferring seriously with them before instituting further far-reaching economic experiments.

Since America's material well-being depends so greatly upon restoring business and industrial health, surely it would be logical for the nation's chief executive to take counsel with the most capable upbuilders of business and industry.

I LEARN authoritatively that absolutely nothing concrete has taken shape in merging various automobile companies. Feelers have been put forth; nothing definite has resulted.

If, by and by, anything actually develops, Auburn is likely to be the prime mover. Its heads, Messrs Cord, Manning, Faulkner, all in the prime of life, are dynamically aggressive.

JUDGING FROM letters received by this column, the American Liberty League will encounter little difficulty in enrolling a large, representative membership.

So much political significance has been attached by the newspapers to the new organization that business leaders are hesitating to voice publicly their promised wholehearted endorsement.

Future lists of names of those associated with the movement will contain more business than political figures.

RAILWAY EXECUTIVES are hopeful that their application for permission to raise freight rates will be sanctioned. They assuredly need the money.

STEEL AND automotive manufacturers remain resolutely determined not to place themselves under the heel of what they call "outside" labor unions. Bureaucratic threats don't stampede them. Their stand is that the constitution has not been abrogated and that the United States Supreme Court will confirm this contention.

NEW DEALERS are playing an appallingly costly game. Do they realize that their supply of billion-dollar chips cannot be renewed indefinitely?

"FOR GOD'S SAKE, keep prices down!" exhorts General Johnson. "For God's sake, put prices up!" thunders Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. One more bureau should be added to the multiplicity already created: a bureau to control bureaus.

IN THE BIG fight, Johnson versus Richberg, my money's on Richberg.

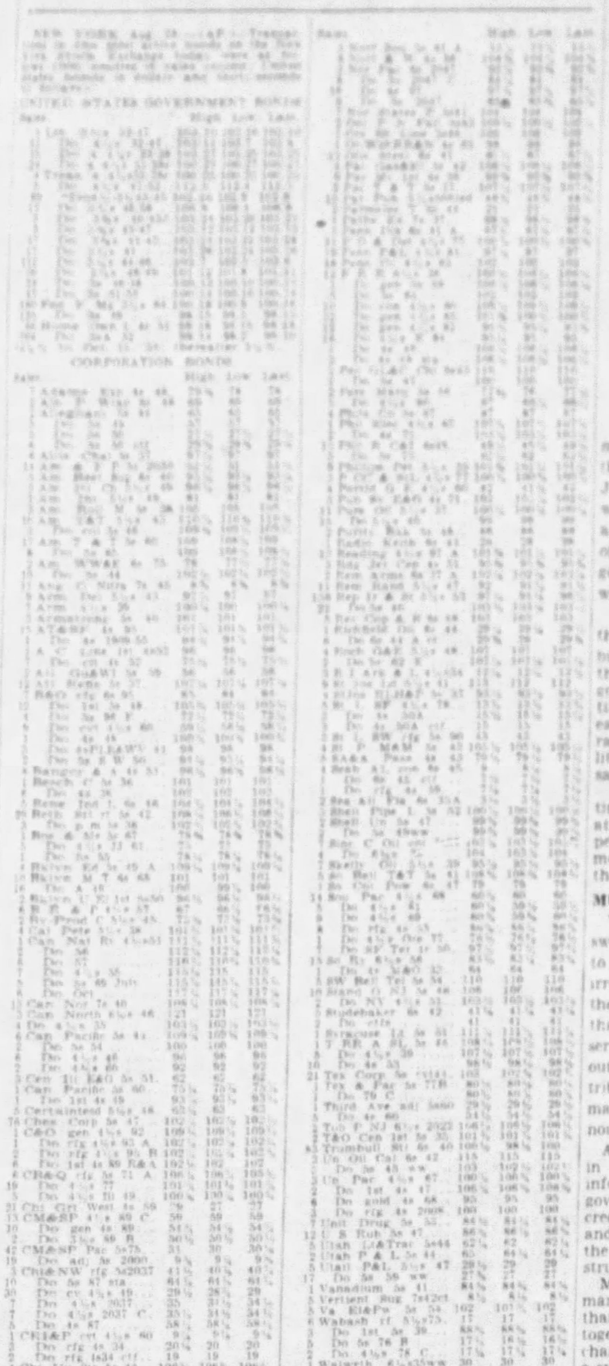
NEW YORK BOND MARKET



NEW FINANCING FACTOR IN MARKET

In the next months the government will borrow nearly two billion dollars. Herewith is the second of three articles by M. L. Ramsay, Universal Service specialist on financial and economic subjects, analyzing and explaining this federal financing which will be a dominant factor in banking, the investment markets and business.

By M. L. RAMSAY
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Almost any day now Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr., and his corps of expert aides will put their heads together for as audacious and difficult a feat of responsible guessing as the government and the financial world have seen in many a moon.

They must forecast how eager the most critical and hard-boiled buyers of investment securities in the country will be to purchase government bonds, notes or certificates at a given day and hour early next month, what interest rates will tempt them, and how little interest the government can safely offer.

Will these critical investors continue to lend for 10 to 12 years, at three or three and a quarter percent? Or will they demand more, and lend only sparingly if they fail to get more?

MUCH DATA AVAILABLE

These questions must be answered by the Treasury from two to four days before the final and irrevocable answers are given by the banks and investors. It takes that long to notify Federal Reserve banks and branches throughout the country, prepare and distribute circulars, and get all the machinery set before public announcement is made of new loans.

And the Morgenthau group must in some measure stake upon its informed guess the credit of the government, at a time when that credit finances virtually all relief and recovery, and largely supports the public and private financial structure of the country.

More "inside" reports on the market's condition and temper than all Wall street's dopesters together could assemble, and more charts of past performances than a system player at the race tracks would dream of, will be available to guide decisions.

BANKS BIG BUYERS

But financial lore cannot foretell precisely the course of the securities markets. And this time, with currencies cutting up, and with Wall Street more interested in drastic moves the Treasury might make, than in the cautious moves it has made, judgment and shrewd estimates are at a premium.

By the recent pattern, Morgenthau can expect the national and state banks to buy well over half the securities he offers. They will buy mostly for investment, but partly for resale. Corporations will be his second best customers, followed in order by private investors, Federal Reserve banks and insurance companies.

Many of the new securities likely to be exchanged for the 1.246 million dollars of Liberty Loan bonds payable October 15 will go to a multitude of small investors.

STEEL UNITS GET MERGER TERMS

CLEVELAND, Aug. 28.—The industrial giant that was born four years ago with the union of eight steel companies at the inspiration of Cyrus S. Eaton stretched out today to attain new stature under fresh merger plans.

One $523,000,000 company, with the Republic Steel Corporation, third largest in the industry, as the keystone, is the goal of merger negotiations which have been completed by officials of Republic, the Corrigan, McKinney Steel Company, and the Truscon Steel Company.

The proposals will be submitted to stockholders at special meetings October 30.

PLAN EXCHANGE

Holders of Republic preferred will be offered the right to obtain in exchange for each share of preferred one-half share of new prior preference stock and two shares of common stock.

Republic will deliver to Corrigan-McKinney $15,361,000 of 5½ per cent 20-year purchase money bonds, 27,929 shares of new prior preference stock, par $100, and 698,223 shares of common stock, no par, the announcement said.

The Truscon agreement, which will be completed after the acquisition of the Corrigan-McKinney properties, is contingent upon acceptance by 75 per cent of the Truscon stockholders, the announcement said.

For each share of preferred stock of the Truscon company, Republic will offer one-half share prior preferred stock and two shares of Republic common. For each share of Truscon common, Republic will offer 4/10 of a share of Republic common.

The proposed changes in the capital structure of Republic will permit it to reduce the amount of preferred stock outstanding, eliminate dividends in arrears, permit $24,000,000 of new financing, the proceeds of which will be used to retire the present outstanding refunding and general mortgage, repay bank loans and provide additional working capital.

Capt. Midnight

By LOUIS ARTHUR CUNNINGHAM

CHAPTER VI

"She does not," admitted Paul, seating himself on the window ledge and becoming a silhouette against the blue night sky.

"This man," said Jean Pierre, "who calls himself Capt. Midnight, but who, one tells me, was once a gallant member of your noblesse—what brought about his downfall? What put that jarring unearthly sound into his laughter and made of him the nocturnal bird of prey——"

"What?" Guy Lauzier laughed softly, but there was no other answer in that room where little coals of red glowed in the long pipes. There was a strained and potent silence.

"Ah!" said Jean Pierre. "Let us play."

They played. Paul Caron drank heavily and lost heavily. His head rolled with the weight of wine. He played foolishly. The others, Simon Girard excepted, were in much the same boat. Steadily the lawyer won. the pile of gold in front of him rose steadily higher and higher. His confidence, his arrogance grew likewise. He laughed contemptuously—especially at Jean Pierre, who seemed as fuddled as the rest.

Girard a Cheat

"A stiffer game than you played in France, Monsieur Martel, eh? You do not seem to shine. You are quite beyond your depth it would appear. We play fast and for high stakes and—"

"Dishonestly," said Jean Pierre sharply.

All the feigned heaviness, the dullness, dropped from him. He shot up from his chair and Simon Girard moved nearly as fast; the others awoke from their stupor in time to see Jean Pierre's rapier flash from its scabbard and bridge the board, its point against the lawyer's heart, pinning him to the wall behind him.

The startled cries, the oaths, ceased.

"My sword point," said Jean Pierre, "rests against a pack of cards in this man's coat. They are the pack he substituted for the ones we started with and switched again a moment ago—after he had won. Those cards are marked. We have been cheated. Girard has done it before."

Lauzier reached into the lawyer's pocket, found the cards and spread them on the board, backs up.

"It is an old trick," explained Jean Pierre, his index finger touching the cards. "Here you see a variation in the width of the border; here a dot, there a circle, there a cross. One must have keen eyes to see. But you were a fool, Girard—did I not tell you ere we sat down that I have a fine pair of eyes? And I did not drink so much wine as you thought. Take your money back, gentlemen. Ah—so you would——!"

Girard Disarmed

Simon Girard ducked clear of Jean Pierre's sword point and drew his own rapier. Fury, chagrin blinded him to every other consideration but that of avenging himself upon this man who had exposed his trickery.

But Jean Pierre met his attack, cool and unperturbed. The blades clicked as they crossed; they clashed with glinting fires. Simon Girard was no swordsman; Jean Pierre was a master.

It lasted only a minute; then Jean Pierre's blade seemed to glue itself to Girard's and Jean Pierre's wrist, that seemed one piece, of the same steel, with his sword bent down inexorably till the points of the locked swords touched the floor when, with a lightning-quick jerk, the lawyer's sword was torn from his fingers and fell clattering to the floor.

"You are forgetful, monsieur," he said to Girard, who could not speak, so great was his chagrin and so futile his anger. "First you scorn my vaunted reputation with the cards, next with the sword; what else, pray?"

"Come," he said, "I am going your way, Paul."

Paul chattered away about nothing, but, receiving little encouragement from his companion, he soon fell silent or muttered to himself. Jean Pierre guided him unerringly to the Caron house.

Yvonne Waiting

"I must go in by the gate in the wall—into the garden," announced Paul. "If I enter by the main door I may awaken Yvonne—"

"Ah, I see," said Jean Pierre, and they walked to a heavy wooden door fastened with iron, that opened into the gray stone wall.

"Your key?" asked Jean Pierre in a whisper.

"I have none. You give me a leg over, monsieur. The gate is bolted on the inside——"

"Permit me, then—" Jean Pierre had a notion Paul would break his neck if he tried to climb that wall. Lightly, then, Jean Pierre leaped up, grasping the coping with his fingers, pulling himself atop the wall, then vaulting down to the sward, shadowed there by the wall and the laurels growing to the door.

There hidden in the shadows was Yvonne, of all people. He almost collided with her. Indeed, as he straightened, his shoulder touched hers.

"Paul," she said. "I waited—"

Her face was upturned to Jean Pierre, she stood so close that he could feel the warmth of her, see the whiteness of her throat and sense the pale allure of her form under the fur-bordered robe she wore. And Jean Pierre could not help it. He caught her in his arms and reveled for an instant in the stolen ecstasy of her lips.

"You—you will pay for that insult, m'sieur," she said coldly. "I have one now who will make you pay. And you will regret it."

"Never, milady," said Jean Pierre. "I do not doubt I shall pay for it, but I shall never regret it."

Yvonne fled.

Jean Pierre was left standing by the open gate, silent but unabashed. He touched his lips, and he smiled, touched his still stinging cheek, and he laughed softly.

"Yvonne!" he said. "Little lovely spitfire—the bride of Captain Midnight—"

Listens to Music

From her garden, that night, she could see the lights at the Castle of St. Louis; hear the music of harp and viol, wafted to her ears on the night wind that muted it so softly. Almost, across the lighted squares of the windows she could see the dancers pass in the minuet and madrigal. Paul was there; practically everybody of note in Quebec would be there. That did not bother Yvonne. Usually, at such gay parties, she had a wretched time. Perhaps her conventual training had spoiled her for the frivolous and vapid pleasures they expected her to share; more likely it was that, deprived of father and mother, she had always considered life a rather serious business. And when she did go to the castle, she invariably wandered off alone to the Governor's Garden, where it was hard to have such uninterrupted solitude as she had there within her own walls of thick gray stone.

Uninterrupted — she heard a light thud upon the firm sward by the wall, not far from where she sat. She arose, startled, her hand to her lips, her eyes straining into the heavy black mass of shadow cast by the wall. The moon had not yet risen, the stars' light was dim and kindly.

"Who—who is there?" she called softly.

Kisses Captain

He stood before her, took the hand she hesitantly extended to him, raised it to his lips.

"I am not content with that, Yvonne," he said. His voice was low, thrilling in its eagerness, such a voice as she had never heard, for in the chapel of Girard's house at Charlesbourg, the chapel where they were wed, he had not spoken so. "Your lips," he whispered. "And your heart beating close to mine."

Half eager, half resisting, she let him, still holding her hand, draw her into the circle of his arm, his hand beneath her chin, tilted her face up until his own, masqued, looked down upon her. She gave herself then. From its stiffness her body became pliant in his arms and her lips returned the pressure of his.

Confused, with a short, husky laugh, she released herself. He smiled; she saw the luminous flash of his teeth. Not relinquishing her hand, he led her to a wooden bench in the shadow of a kiosk and made her sit beside him.

"While the dance goes on," he said, gazing for a moment at the myriad twinkling lights of the chateau in the distance. "You would not join in the revel tonight, Yvonne? Are you happier here?"

"Infinitely happier," she said, gazing down at her hand where Capt. Midnight's finger caressed the little band of gold—her wedding ring. "But I—I did not think you would come to me . . ."

"I could not stay away longer. It has seemed ages, ages, since last I saw you. I had to come. I would brave any danger, take any risk, to come to you, mignonne. You would not have me stay away! You did wish to see me?"

(To Be Continued)

Synopsis

Midnight and of the arrival from France of Jean Pierre Martel, who is reputed to be the greatest lover and worst scoundrel in France. Yvonne pleads with Paul not to gamble with Simon Girard. Paul leaves her and Simon appears. He tells her of Paul's theft of government funds and promises protection if she will marry him. He leaves with a warning to "think well." From the shadows appears, a stranger. Yvonne and Martel meet. Capt. Midnight holds up Martel, but lets him keep valuables. Capt. Midnight visits Martel and tells him of rendezvous with death. Capt. Midnight stops wedding. Capt. Midnight, man Gerard paid the Iroquois to kill, forced to wear mask to hide face disfigured in torture by Indians, Bigot tells him. Martel asks Paul if his sister knows who Capt. Midnight is.

Now Go On

Junior Patrol Mail Box

Remember, it closes Thursday night. The subject is "Who is the greatest man living today?" We want you to write a letter and tell us who he is and why you think so.

Probably it's better not to ask anybody else what they think.

Your letters shouldn't be more than 100 words long, but you can write as many as you want. Send all entries to the Junior Patrol contest. Put your thinking caps on right now!

First prize letter in last week's contest was written by Kenneth Clark, of 1438 Lincoln street, Monessen, Pa.

He says:

"A little boy of 10 would like to have a vacation all the time. Don't you think so? I do. But if we can't do that I would rather have mine in summer. In summer I can play ball, go swimming, and go fishing. In the winter there are many sports too but it is so cold I can't enjoy them. I just spend three weeks in the country. I had many nice times running all over the farm, and playing in the hay.

"But I couldn't do this in the winter because last winter they were snowbound and I wouldn't like that very well and I am glad vacation time comes in summer."

You argue for the summer mighty well, Kenneth. Now let's see what second prize winner Isabel McGregor, of R. D. 3, New Sheffield, Pa., has to say.

"I would like to have a vacation in the summer better than the winter because in the summer you don't have to wear your coat and you can wear prettier dresses if you happen to go to a special place. You swim and you don't have to freeze your fingers and nose off like in the winter. And besides you can do more things because you aren't all bundled up."

Tito's Tryst :: Daily Short Short-Story

BY ELEANOR BLAKE

For three months, now, Mr. Gunther had reached for his hat at the end of every working day with a sense of anticipation. For three months, until tonight. Tonight the long, but ride home on the street car would seem hotter and longer, the walk down the shady street afterward a cool relief, true enough, but with a melancholy in the very shade, the dinner that would be waiting for him a good dinner, but unshared with Tito. No—Tito was gone. Tito wouldn't be there.

Mr. Gunther shook himself, irritated, told himself he must snap out of it—pull himself together. It was nothing short of childish for a man of forty to have allowed to grow in his heart an affection so strong and warm for a little dog. Not even any particular kind of a dog—just a little, brown fellow with a curly coat and long, silken ears and clear eyes that had fixed themselves on those of his master with steadfast devotion . . .

Besides, Agnes had been right about it. Tito had brought in dirt—thick on his paws, tracking up the carpet they'd saved so long to buy; he'd chewed up slippers, begged at the table—barked. Yes, barked! And in a way that had annoyed the neighbors. No, Mr. Gunther didn't blame his wife a bit for insisting, all last week, that Tito must go.

"You can find a good home for him, Charlie. There's plenty of people would be glad to have him—people who don't live in an apartment. How about that Mr. Kennedy, down at your office? Didn't he say he'd like a dog? Didn't he say he liked Tito? Well, then . . ."

Now, while Mr. Gunther's heart was warm with affection for his dog, it was warmer with affection for his wife. And, in any case, he was more desirous of peace than possession. Since Agnes had decided to make an issue of it—since the presence of Tito was actually threatening the even tenor of domestic ways—well, Tito must go.

Down at the office Charles Gunther had taken up the subject of Tito with Ike Kennedy and Ike Kennedy had been—in his own phrasing—"pleased as Punnish."

"Bu-gre!" Kennedy had said. "I'm out on the road a lot, Gunther, and the Missus gets kind of nervous sometimes being in the house alone at night. Now, with a dog like that—you say he'll bark? That's be just dandy. You bring him over any time—right away. How about tonight, Gunther?"

"Not—not tonight." Charles Gunther had managed to stammer out. "Tomorrow night all right with you? I ought to fix him up a little—give him a bath."

But "tomorrow night" had come as inexorably as "tonight." And when dinner was over and the dishes cleared and washed and put away Mr. Gunther had descended the three flights of stairs that led from his little apartment to the street. Tito was on a leash and Agnes walked beside him. Yes, she'd gone along to make sure Tito would have a good home.

* * *

"You know, Charles," Agnes had said while they strolled together in the cool of the summer evening down streets of shaded apartment buildings like their own and at last past rows of little houses where men in shirt-sleeves watered their own front lawns, talked to their children, played with their dogs, "you know I like Tito, too." Her voice choked a little. Charles Gunther looked up into her face quickly, hopefully, and then away again. No—Agnes' lips were set in a firm line beneath her eyes that were softening to tears. "But he's such a nuisance and, besides, the neighbors."

He sighed again as, the next night, he got off the street car at the corner near his home, worming his way through the crowded aisles, pushing and shoving past the hot and tired bodies of his fellow workers. Well, Tito wouldn't be at the door to greet him, wouldn't be welcoming him with a patter of upraised paws, a joyous bark. He hoped Agnes was satisfied—now she'd had her way.

He climbed the three flights of stairs and put his key in the lock. Dinner was waiting on the table, a good, hot, appetizing dinner after a long day of work—cold, clear glasses of iced tea, shaded lights. Yes, it was a clean, well-ordered house and Agnes smiled as she came toward him. Well . . .

But they ate in silence. Charles Gunther could think of nothing to say. His mind was full of Tito. But this was nonsense. He was acting like a boy—not like a man grown. He looked up at his wife. Pleasant and charming she was under the yellow glow of the light that hung above the table. But what was that? Were those tears at the edges of her eyes? Yes, surely, and her lips were quivering.

"Charles, I—I—do you think the Kennedys would let us have Tito back? You miss him so—and I—I do, too, Charles . . ."

There was a scratching and a whining at the door—a sniffing and a sharp bark. Charles Gunther flung his napkin on the floor and rushed to the screen. Yes, ther was Tito—a Tito dusty and panting, lifting gingerly the furry paws that were sore from padding blocks of unaccustomed pavement—a Tito pleading but triumphant.

And now Agnes was on her feet, too, had rushed to the door, the tears that had risen to her eyes beginning to overflow.

"Why, Charles!" she cried. "He's come home all this way alone!" Her words ended abruptly; her voice ceased on a note of question and dismay. For there, outside the screen, stood Tito, right enough, but not alone. By his side, dustier and more road-worn even than Tito, thinner, his pink and thirsty tongue lolling from his open mouth, sat a half-grown spotted pup. Tito had come home and, coming home, had brought along a friend.

They claim the debt to England was a frameup. They say that England on occasion was a horizontal heavyweight. Yet, we hear that England is a station past the doldrums and is perched as pretty as a girl on a Pasadena rose float.

They also say that all these things will be talking over back. That when the time comes to pay the piper everybody will have a flute and a tin cup.

An ancient public servant asks where is the money to come from? Why worry over the future until the Joneswards hand out their 1938 calendars?

The money is coming from taxation. We have a new source of revenue that is worth 100 mugs on the dollar at any pawnshop. We are going to let the customers carry the burden.

Wines and beer are worth one billion a year to the Treasury. Some people think that's a dirty way to collect clean money.

But, and on the other gnarled hand, why not?

Why not tax the bad?

We didn't tax the loose habits for 14 years and they ran away from us.

There is an old slogan that carries its own proof. If a thing is bad make it expensive.

If a boy wants to smoke corn husk back of the barn don't spank him. Fine him a dime.

In the meantime, we have a slight bill to collect from the rabid drys. It's for the fourteen billion dollars we didn't collect from 1919 to 1933. Please remit by return mail.

That fourteen billion is the difference between the slump and prosperity. We know we cannot get it. So we forgive them. We also forgive the temperance lecturers. Go, and chin no more.

But we warn them that we cannot stand another stroke like that. We are just recovering from their last amiable effort in our behalf.

We close with a gentle rebuff for the 36 smug states which think repeal was a glorious victory and a triumph for the rights of man. Repeal was not the voice of the people, but the voice of the cash register. It was economic and not philanthropic.

Allegheny Reservoirs Should Be Included in Public Works Program

ACCORDING to news dispatches from Washington, the Roosevelt administration has adopted a program devised by Secretary of the Interior Ickes calling for a permanent expenditure by the Federal Government of five hundred million dollars a year for public works throughout the United States.

The plan is to be carried through, it is stated, irrespective of the spur of economic necessity.

Unquestionably further improvements to inland waterways will be prominent in the list of projects embarked upon. An important corollary to the promotion of interior navigation is the regulation of streams by source control.

The prevention of floods with attendant benefits will unquestionably be included in the far-flung public works program.

* * *

THE ADOPTION of this policy by the Federal Government will give encouragement to those advocates of flood control for the Pittsburgh region who have labored so hard over a long period of time to bring about the construction and operation of storage reservoirs at the headwaters of the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers.

These reservoirs are designed not only to hold back excess water in time of flood but also to release this stored supply in times of drought in aid to navigation, to increase water supplies and to improve sanitary conditions in the rivers. The development of water power at the sites of the reservoirs is also being carefully considered.

* * *

NO GREATER lasting benefit can come to Pittsburgh and the many other communities along the Allegheny, Monongahela and Ohio Rivers than the creation of these reservoirs, envisioned many years ago by such sturdy Pittsburghers as H. J. Heinz, A. J. Kelly, Jr., W. H. Stevenson, A. H. Burchfield, T. Clifton Jenkins, Morris Knowles, Julian Kennedy, H. D. W. English, W. G. Wilkins, Gen. A. J. Logan, D. P. Black, George S. Davison, E. K. Morse, Emil Swensson and others, who formed the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh out of a special committee created by the Chamber of Commerce.

Partial fruition of the long tedious effort came with the adoption by the Federal Government last year of a $12,000,000 reservoir project on the Tygart River designed to regulate the flow of the Monongahela River.

Actual construction work on this mammoth dam is to be started shortly. Not only will this reservoir be of prime permanent importance to navigation and flood prevention in the Monongahela valley, but it will stimulate industry and create employment in that region during this present and temporary period of necessity.

* * *

TO COMPLETE the task so splendidly begun by the Flood Commission of Pittsburgh, RESERVOIRS MUST BE CONSTRUCTED ON THE ALLEGHENY RIVER.

It is pleasing to learn that plans are being formulated to revitalize this effort and a sincere and relentless campaign embarked upon to induce the federal authorities to grant the necessary appropriations. Communities located on all three rivers in Pennsylvania, West Virginia and Maryland are to join in the fight and great encouragement is lent to this effort by the announcement of the adoption of a permanent national policy of expending five hundred million dollars a year on sound public works projects.

There never was a time when it was more important to LEAVE NO STONE UNTURNED to bring about the building of the Allegheny River reservoirs. Fortunately the advocates of flood control are alive to the situation.

State Indictments Needed

County Authorities Should Proceed in Election Cases If Federal Prosecution Fails

Disregarding the authority of Pennsylvania's Secretary of Banking, a Federal court recently appointed a receiver for a Pennsylvania building and loan association.

In another case the United States Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania has held that it had authority, upon petition of a non-resident beneficiary of a mortgage pool, to appoint a receiver to take out of the hands of the Secretary of Banking of Pennsylvania, assets of a closed bank aggregating some five million dollars, notwithstanding that in the administration of the assets of the bank the Secretary of Banking is subject to the jurisdiction of and must account to the state courts. An appeal from this decision is pending.

In an address at Milwaukee yesterday Attorney General William A. Schnader spoke with concern of these cases as flagrant Federal encroachments on state sovereignty. He pointed out that the Secretary of Banking has exclusive jurisdiction to determine if the condition of a state bank or building and loan association is such as to require its closing. No Pennsylvania court will consider a plea for the appointment of a receiver. The reason is that a single unfounded bill of complaint might easily result in a run on the bank, and its ruin.

In these cases there appears to be good ground for the fear expressed by Mr. Schnader as to the effect of Federal encroachment on state sovereignty. In other cases, however, we wonder if the state does not have itself to blame because of failure to do its duty, for Federal encroachment on its sovereignty. We have in mind the Allegheny County election fraud cases recently tried in the United States District Court.

It was almost if not quite unprecedented for the United States Attorney to prosecute these cases, and it is doubtful if he would have done so but for the fact that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania showed no disposition to proceed against the election crooks.

The fraud was against the state as well as against the United States, and in the Federal trials much evidence was adduced which could only be used indirectly against the accused, because it had to do with cheating in the election of state officials rather than United States Congressmen. It was admitted, however, as tending to show a conspiracy.

Some of the convicted conspirators who have appealed think they have in this fact a good chance of escaping the penitentiary. The offense proved, if any, was against the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and not against the national government, they say.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park should take cognizance of this situation and lay the evidence before the grand jury at its next session, with a view to prosecuting the accused in case their conviction in the Federal Court is set aside. Otherwise the statute of limitations may permit them to go scot free.

There is no need, perhaps, to draw up state indictments against the conspirators who have not appealed from the Federal conviction but are accepting the penalty. It may not be desirable to employ the state indictments against the others if their conviction is upheld by the higher court. But Mr. Park should have the indictments "on ice," ready for use if it seems probable that otherwise the election crooks will go unpunished.

Uncompromising performance of duty by the Commonwealth officials will rob the Federal Government of any excuse for encroaching on state sovereignty.

First Aid to Teachers

They'll Appreciate It

One of the latest wonders of science is a machine on view at the National Schoolmart, 111 Eighth avenue, New York City.

It tells how bright—or dumb—a pupil is, and as such will doubtless be welcomed by teachers.

It's rather simple.

Then the exam paper is fed into the machine, which tabulates the results.

That's all there is to it.

If the machine could only invent the questions, it would be nearly perfect.

It hasn't done this yet, though you never can tell.

But at least it seems to be a great step toward the goal of the old college professor who was asked how he liked teaching.

"-Fine," he said, "except for the students."

'Hitler the Humanitarian'

Always Obliging

Mr. Hitler is nothing if not obliging.

He makes the death penalty in Germany almost a pleasure for the victim—there are so many choices.

You can be shot, have your head chopped off or take poison at your option.

It's a humanitarian idea that should appeal to everybody, if only for its novelty.

As an Irish reader writes to inform us, "the world hasn't seen the like of it since Socrates drank the shamrock."

Should Mothers Be Criticized?

"Why," says she, "do you so often criticize mothers? You say you're a mother yourself, but I don't believe it; for no real mother would dream of criticizing motherhood. Every woman who has ever had a child knows that mother love is the most beautiful and sacred thing on earth, and that any mother would gladly give her life for her child."

Why do I criticize mothers? Because people like you make remarks like that, lady. And they've made them so often, and for so long, that the world has come to believe them. With the result that Mother Worship has become a vicious racket and widespread menace.

There is, indeed, no nobler thing on earth than the love of a fine and intelligent mother. But there are several things just as noble—amongst them the love of a fine and intelligent father. And the mere fact that a female has given birth to a child is no guarantee that she, herself, is noble or fine or even loving.

The birth ordeal in itself is as purely a physical process as any of our bodily functions. There is nothing in that ordeal that can possibly transform a stupid woman into a bright and well-informed one; a selfish woman into an unselfish one; a coarse, lazy, unreliable woman into a creature of beauty and light.

Yet nine out of ten otherwise sensible citizens actually believe that this miracle happens — and blaze with righteous indignation if you insist that it doesn't and can't.

We view, with proper contempt, the silly, selfish acts of a worthless young women. Yet let that woman become a mother and we immediately enshrine her and grant her extraordinary privileges and exemptions. All of which is malicious tommy-rot.

It would be as idiotic to confer the degrees of lawyer, doctor or civil engineer upon a young man because he'd endured a day of colic as to endow a young woman with the combined status of philosopher and saint merely because she has gone through the birth travail.

Nor could any practice be more maudlin or malicious than our popular custom of raving about the heroism of young women because they have "gone down into the valley of the shadow of death to give life to their little ones." The simple fact is that in nine cases out of ten motherhood is at first most unwelcome, however much the baby may be adored thereafter. And instead of being Voluntary Heroines most Mamas are extremely Mad Martyrs.

Also, every really honest and loving mother knows that, no matter how great her suffering, the joy of motherhood is worth all it costs—and to such a mother a child is always a privilege, never a sacrifice.

Equally silly and dangerous is the theory that any mother would give her life for her child. The plain fact—of which we all see abundant proof daily—is that many mothers won't even sacrifice their temporary comfort for a child; much less, give their lives for it.

Moreover, the fact that a mother would die bravely for her child is no proof that she will live sensibly for it. Intelligent and successful motherhood, like any other job, requires hard study. No amount of "mother instinct" (even if such a thing existed) could possibly teach a young woman the physiological and psychological facts required to properly feed and train a child.

Yet, because of the sentimental attitude toward motherhood, the average young mother believes she needs no equipment save her uninstructed and uncontrolled affection.

If a plumber or a carpenter knew as little about his job as the average mother knows about hers, and went about it as sloppily, he'd be kicked out of his union pronto.

It is often said that "You have only one mother." Many a nagged and neglected child could heartily answer that one is quite enough!

WOMAN WORLD NEEDS

By Winifred Black

Sallie is blue—very blue indeed—and when I come to think about it, I don't blame Sallie a bit.

Bright little woman, Sallie; lighthearted. She's had a lot of trouble in her day, and it does seem as if she might have a little good luck, just for a change.

Let me tell you about her. Maybe you'll be interested for a minute or so, anyway.

Sallie was as pretty as a picture, when she began to dance for a living.

And could she dance? She could indeed! She could dance so well that she was paid a topping salary to go around the world two or three times, dancing at every city and every town and every village and almost every camp on the way around.

Sallie had a mother and some brothers and sisters at home, and she was always sending funny little gifts by mail—bolts of odd-looking cloth made of palm fiber and cocoanut fiber, bracelets, earrings, dressing gowns, filigree thingumbobs—but mostly she sent perfectly good postal orders for plain, everyday money.

She sent her little brothers and sisters to school, and had a good dentist and a good throat specialist for her mother, and "on the road," as they used to say in those days, she worked very hard, learning new dance steps and practicing them, and making gay little frocks and trimming gorgeous picture hats for herself and the rest of the girls in her company.

She was crazy about cooking, too, and she always carried a little alcohol arrangement, so she could make sort of homey little suppers in her room after the show.

The room was always full of flowers—roses, lilies, violets and things—and baskets of fruit. Oh, Sallie had a regiment of admirers from one end of the world to the other.

Yes, sometimes she went out to supper with one of the admirers. But somehow she always managed to take one or two of the other girls along.

Then Sallie married. She said she wasn't going to bring her children up in the theater, so she took her savings and bought a little farm and raised strawberries for the market. Later, when her husband died, Sallie brought up her children, and sent them to school, and took care of them when they were ill. And everybody in the little village knew Sallie, and they all sent for her when the old mother lay dying or when the new baby arrived. She was a born nurse and a born mother.

Well, times were pretty hard now for Sallie, as they were for a good many people. But Sallie wasn't discouraged or worried—not Sallie.

"There are lots of people who need me," said Sallie, and she went and asked for a job at the relief bureau.

But there wasn't any room for Sallie there; no, nor at any of the places. You see they don't want anything but university girls. You have to take a course in sociology, it seems, to know how to help a mother with three children and no money, to keep alive.

Well, now, do you know if I were poor and desperate and ill—I believe I'd rather tell Sallie about it, and ask her to help me. Somehow those university girls seem so sort of cool and impersonal.

Old-fashioned of me, isn't it? Sallie? Oh, she'll get along somehow, just as the Sallies of this world always do. It's the people who need her, and can't get her, that sort of worry me, don't you see?

Will Rogers Says:

MOSCOW, Aug. 28.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

From the Far East to Europe seven and a half days from Harbin, Manchuria. If you wanted to make no stop you can come from Tokyo in 10 days. It's a great trip; only way to go round the world; fine train, great diner, food enough for Primo Canera and select enough for Dolly Ganns. Meals all start with a soup bowl full of caviar. Unfortunately I dont like the stuff, but it's still on the gold standard in society. Never saw as many big rivers and all full of floating logs and not an inch of land the whole way that couldent be cultivated. These birds have got nature with 'em anyhow. Now for the city sights. Yours, WILL.

Aviation Achievements Excite No More Wonder Than the Feats of the Pony Express 75 Years Ago

By Edwin C. Hill

JAMES FARLEY, our principal postmaster, believes the day will come, and soon, when a letter mailed in New York at six in the morning will be delivered in San Francisco at four in the afternoon. Which seems a prediction fairly conservative when one listens to Prof. Piccard, the stratosphere man, and to Miss Amelia Earhart, our No. 1 girl flyer. They think that within a few years we will be flying over land and sea at 500 miles an hour, breakfasting in New York and dining in Paris.

All of which comes under the head of modern miracles, but miraculous as they are, or surely will be, one doubts very much if this blase age, familiar almost to the point of contempt with the wonderful machines and gadgets that the magic of science has given to us, will be half so thrilled over this terrific mail-delivery and flying speed as Americans of three-quarters of a century ago were agog over the flying pony of the plains, the amazing Pony Express, which carried the mail from St. Joseph, Missouri, to Sacramento, California in nine and a half days or so.

Mark Twain Tells Of the Wonder

YOU CAN get a glimmering of a notion of what wonder, amounting almost to awe, the flying riders created in their passing by reading Mark Twain. Young Clemens was riding west in a stage coach to take a job under his brother in Nevada Territory. And suddenly his attention was riveted:

"Away across the endless dead level of the prairie a black speck appears against the sky . . . In a second or two it becomes a horse and rider, rising and falling, rising and falling—growing more and more distinct and more sharply defined—nearer and still nearer, and the flutter of the hoofs comes faintly to the ear—another instant a whoop and a hurrah from our upper deck, a wave of the rider's hand but no reply, and man and horse burst past our excited faces and go winging away like a belated fragment of a storm!

"So sudden is it all and so like a flash of unreal fancy, that but for the flake of white foam left quivering and perishing on a mail sack after the vision had flashed by and disappeared, we might have doubted whether we had seen any actual horse and man at all."

Truly of them could it be written those words that Herodotus spoke of the messengers of Cyrus the Great: "Neither snow nor rain nor heat nor gloom of night stayed these couriers from the swift completion of their appointed rounds."

There were great doings in Sacramento on April 13, 1860, when the first Pony Express rider came dashing in with his precious mail sack, and equally joyous celebrations in St. Joe, Mo., when the eastbound rider came thundering in, 10 days out, with his 85 precious letters.

Put Out of Business By Telegraph

THE RIDERS dressed according to their taste, but the usual costume was a buckskin hunting shirt, cloth trousers, boots or shoes and cap or felt hat. Some had a full buckskin suit with the hair on for cold or rainy weather. They carried a pair of Colt's army pistols, sheath knife and at first a Spencer carbine, but this was soon discarded because of its weight.

The letters were carried in a pair of saddlebags fitting over the saddle horn. Written on the thinnest of paper, the letters were wrapped in oiled silk to preserve them from dampness. Westbound the average number of letters was 50 a trip, but eastbound the number carried ran from 200 to 300. Californians being looser with their money than Eastern folk.

At the height of its activity the Pony Express used 420 horses, as fast as could be found, and 125 riders, picked men, selected for horsemanship, daredevil courage and light weight.

Each rider had to gallop from 55 to 120 miles at top speed, no matter what the weather was, no matter how many warlike Indians were about.

Anti-Japanese Outbreak Feared in Arizona

By James T. Williams, Jr.

IF THE government and people of Arizona are alive to their national responsibilities they will prevent any violence to the Japanese farmers who have moved into the Salt River valley of that state.

The report that 150 Arizona farmers had recently held a meeting to organize a movement to drive out the Japanese by the use of physical if not armed force has greatly stirred the people of Japan and brought immediate representations from the federal government.

Ever since President Roosevelt entered the White House he has done his best to ease the growing friction in the relations between this country and Japan, without yielding any American principle. This policy has apparently begun to bear fruit. Relations already have been improved, in so far as the Japanese Foreign Office can influence the course of Japanese policy.

But an anti-Japanese outbreak in Arizona at this time would undo much of the good work which the President has been able to do. He might soon find himself in the same embarrassing situation that the first President Roosevelt faced when the anti-Japanese activities broke out in the state of California during his administration.

Foreigners Often Victims of Mobs

AMERICAN diplomatic history, unfortunately, contains altogether too many instances where foreigners resident in this country have been the victims of mob violence. Protests against these outrages have resulted in the payment of large indemnities to the victims of these assaults.

In looking into the record of these cases, when he was Secretary of State, during the presidency of Theodore Roosevelt, Mr. Root found that "in every case the indemnity was in fact paid because the United States had not done in the particular case what it would have done for its own citizens if our laws had been administered as our citizens were entitled to have them administered."

The record shows that government of the United States has too frequently fallen short of its international obligation to the same degree of protection and opportunity for redress of wrong to foreigners residing here that it gives to its own citizens.

In 1880, Chinamen were mobbed in Denver. Other Chinamen were mobbed at Rock Springs, Wyo., in 1885. In New Orleans in 1891 Italians were lynched and again at Rouse, Col., in 1895.

* * *

Italians Lynched In Southern States

IN YREKA, California, Mexicans were lynched in 1895. Italians were again lynched at Tallulah, Louisiana, in 1899, and again at Erwin, Mississippi, in 1901.

Then there was that outrageous killing at Ardmore, Oklahoma, several years ago, when the lives of two young Mexicans who had come to this country for their education were snuffed out [illegible] Oklahoma police officials, [illegible] the claims for indemnity resulted from these cases [illegible] ernment had no defense to [illegible].

In view of the fact that [illegible] Federal Government would be held responsible for any injury done the Japanese in Arizona, President Roosevelt acted swiftly, bringing home to the government of that state the seriousness of the situation created by the threats against the Japanese. There are legal ways of protecting the rights of Arizona citizens against alien aggression without making the aliens the victims of mob violence.

The assurances that there will be no violence but that the Arizona farmers will look to the courts for any redress due them will reflect credit upon the youngest state in the Union if they are lived up to. And by living up to these assurances Arizona will greatly aid President Roosevelt's efforts to improve relations between Japan and the United States.
